OPENING SPEECH

by Vladimir N. Sinyukov, Vice-Rector for Research of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), Doctor of Law

Dear Congress Attendees!

This Congress is dedicated to comparative civil law and is intended for exchange of scientific knowledge obtained in the course of comparative studies of civil law doctrines in different countries.

Remarkably, our Congress is attended by academicians from the USA, China, Italy, Latvia and the Republic of Belarus. We have the opportunity to learn first-hand about legal doctrines of the respective countries, which will allow us to correctly identify common features and differences in understanding of certain legal phenomena, legislative regulation, determine general trends of civil law development in modern society.

I really hope that proceedings of the Congress will deliver constructive solutions and facilitate the establishment of further fruitful professional contact.
OPENING SPEECH

by Elena E. Bogdanova, Doctor of Law, Acting Head of the Department of Civil Law of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL)

Dear Congress Attendees!

I am very pleased to welcome you to the 1st International Congress on Comparative Civil Law.

Let me express my hope that annual holding of the International Congress on Comparative Civil Law will become a good tradition of our Department of Civil Law and the University as a whole. The congress will be timed to coincide with the anniversaries of prominent Soviet and Russian civilians, who conducted comparative legal studies of the civil law doctrines of different countries and made an invaluable contribution to the development of the Russian civil law.

This Congress is dedicated to the memory of Viktor Pavlovich Mozolin, who headed our Department for many years and was one of the pioneers in the formation and development of comparativism in civil law studies in Russia.

I wish the participants of the Congress interesting discussions, productive dialogues, and creative success!
Viktor Pavlovich Mozolin
(1924 - 2015)

After the Great Patriotic War, Viktor Pavlovich entered the law faculty of Moscow State University, graduated from it and, under the supervision of Professor A.F. Kleinman, defended his Ph.D. thesis dedicated to the civil procedural relationship (1954); by the way, this thesis, as well as many other Viktor Pavlovich’s papers written in Soviet times, is still quoted. He had risen through the ranks from lecturer to professor at the Department of Civil Law of Moscow State University, where he worked together with classics of Soviet civil law I.B. Novitsky, V.P. Gribanov and many others.

In the 1960s he left for the United States, where he taught and worked on his doctoral thesis in corporate and antitrust law of the United States, which was successfully defended in 1967. In the USSR, he was a pioneer in the study of foreign corporate law, and his paper “Corporations, Monopolies and Law of the United States” is still one of the few relevant studies on the theory of US corporate law in the Russian language.

In the 1970s, Viktor P. Mozolin participated in the creation of the Faculty of Law at Peoples' Friendship University of Russia (RUDN University), which became the next phase of his teaching and academic life. Viktor P. Mozolin worked at the Faculty of Law of the RUDN University from 1971 to 1981 as the head of the department, dean and vice-rector.

From 1981 to 1999, Viktor P. Mozolin was the chief researcher at the Institute of State and Law of the Russian Academy of Sciences, where he led the civil law sector. In 2000, at the invitation of O.E. Kutafin, Viktor P. Mozolin took charge of the Department of Civil and Family Law of Moscow State Law University.

He prepared a brilliant assemblage of talented scientists, under his leadership doctoral and master’s theses were written, some of his students work at Kutafin University.

He always took a lively interest in everything new and had an amazing ability to ‘light up’ his colleagues, students, postgraduate students, push them to new and interesting topics ‘on the cutting edge’. The range of Viktor Mozolin’s academic interests was truly immense, he looked into corporate law as well as law of obligations, law of things and intellectual property law.

In 2011, under his editorship and the editorship of Professor A.I. Maslyaev, the first Russian textbook on civil law was published in the UK; it was translated into English and prepared for publication by Professor William E. Butler.
Viktor P. Mozolin died in 2015, he passed away immediately after his 90\textsuperscript{th} anniversary.

Viktor P. Mozolin passed away, but he left behind contributions that remain relevant to this day. Ideas. Adherents. School of thought.
