V. MATERIAL AND TECHNICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Provision of the Educational Process with Other Library and Information Resources and Means of Supporting the Educational Process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text working program of the academic discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational, and Social Network of the University (hereinafter referred to as DSESN), which includes "Electronic Personal Accounts of Students and Teaching Staff." Access to materials is possible by entering an individual password. The DSESN is designed to create a personalized information and communication environment that ensures information interaction among all participants in the educational process of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL), including providing them with publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services based on the applied information systems of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL).

Each student is provided with individual unlimited access to electronic library systems (electronic libraries) and the electronic information and educational environment of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL) throughout the entire period of study. In addition to the electronic libraries of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL), students are provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases, and legal reference systems connected at the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL) under license agreements, with adapted website versions for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (electronic library) and the electronic information and educational environment ensure simultaneous access for 100% of students from any location with internet access, both on and off the premises of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL).

The electronic resource collection of the Library includes the following legal reference systems, databases, and electronic library systems:

V. MATERIAL AND TECHNICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Providing the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational and Social Network of the University (hereinafter referred to as the DSESН), in the system of which the "Electronic personal accounts of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" operate. Access to the materials is possible through the introduction of an individual password. The DSESN is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that provides information interaction for all participants in the educational process of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), including the provision of publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services operating on the basis of applied information systems of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL).

During the entire period of study, each student is provided with individual unlimited access to electronic library systems (electronic libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL). In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and legal reference systems connected at the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) on the basis of license agreements, and having adapted versions of sites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (electronic library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access to 100 percent of students from any point where there is access to the information and telecommunication network "Internet", both on the territory of the Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

The Library's collection of electronic resources includes the following legal reference systems, databases and electronic library systems:

I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

1.1. Goals and objectives of mastering the discipline (module)

The purpose of mastering the discipline (module) " Arbitration procedure" is formation of the student's professional skills and abilities necessary for conducting civil cases in courts with the aim of protecting the rights of citizens and organizations in commercial courts¹.

The implementation of this goal requires the solution of a certain number of tasks. The solution of each task contributes and advances the student to achieve the goal.

The objectives of the discipline (module) "Arbitration procedure" are mastering the norms of procedural law by the student and preparing the student for professional activity in the implementation of:

- actions related to the implementation of legal norms;
- legal representation in the protection of private, state, municipal and other forms of property;
- consulting on legal issues;
- legal expertise of documents;
- familiarization with modern problems of the theory of civil procedural law and the practice of its application;
- acquisition of skills in drafting procedural documents.

1.2. The place of the discipline (module) in the structure of the educational programme

The discipline (module) " Arbitration procedure" belongs to the mandatory part of Block 1. Disciplines (modules) of the basic professional educational program of higher education.

Mastering a discipline (module) makes it possible to expand and deepen the knowledge gained at the previous stage of training, to acquire skills and abilities determined by the content of the program. Competencies that are formed in the process of mastering a discipline (module) are necessary for successful professional activity. Students acquire the ability to independently find and use the necessary content and logical connections with other disciplines (modules) of the program, such as "Public and legal theory", "Constitutional Law", "Civil Law (General Part)", "Civil Law (Special Part)", "Administrative Law", "Family Law", "International private law", "Civil procedure", " Business law".

¹ Notion "arbitration procedure" in the title of the course is used in the following meaning: "procedure in commercial courts" or "commercial procedure" or "arbitrazh procedure" and reflects linguistic ambiguity existing in Russian language between words "arbitration" and "arbitrazh" (commercial).

1.3. Emerging competencies and indicators of their achievement (planned results of mastering the discipline (module))

Types of assignments for seminar-type classes in all sections for students of all forms of education:

Preliminary familiarization with the lecture material, as well as with educational and specialized literature on the topic of the practical lesson.

Study of the issues of the practical lesson in accordance with its topic.

Collection and summarization of the latest regulatory acts on the topic of the practical lesson.

Search for decisions of the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation and the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation on the topic of the practical lesson (in accordance with the Practical Work);

Solving problems on the topic of the practical lesson (see Practical Work on Labor Law of Russia / edited by K.N. Gusov).

Brief description of approaches and assignments for preparation for the practical lesson for all forms of education.

Each topic of the practical lesson contains questions for study and tasks for preliminary preparation, which, according to the teacher's instructions, must be solved for the practical lesson. Preparation for classes should begin with a careful study of the lecture text, methodological instructions, the relevant section of the textbook and specialized literature. It is advisable to use commentaries to the Labor Code of the Russian Federation, thematic journals. For a deeper understanding of the fundamentals of labor law as a science, the development of legal thinking skills, it is necessary to study classical monographs, including those of the Soviet period.

When solving a problem, you should first clarify the subject of the labor dispute, determine the range of issues that need to be resolved, and formulate them in writing. Then study the relevant regulatory legal acts and judicial practice (they are usually included in the list of legal sources for each topic), select suitable legal norms and give their interpretation in relation to this case.

When answering the questions posed in the problem, it is necessary to give precise answers and make specific references to the relevant regulatory acts, indicating their article and paragraph. In this case, it is necessary not only to present the content of the norm, but also to explain its meaning. The answers must be complete, detailed, and sufficiently reasoned. In conclusion, based on theoretical provisions and regulatory material, it is necessary to formulate a solution to the problem and make clear conclusions. In addition to problems, teachers can offer specific tasks (analyze legal norms, compare comments from different authors on the same controversial issue, compile a table, develop a draft local regulatory act, prepare employer orders, etc.), the purpose of which is an in-depth study of regulatory material and comments to it, and the practical application of the knowledge gained.

The types of independent work of the student are:

- preliminary familiarization with the program before the lecture;
- study of the issues of the practical lesson in accordance with its topic;
- search and study of regulatory legal acts, including the use of electronic databases;
- search and study of scientific literature, including the use of the information and telecommunications network "Internet";
- search and study of judicial practice on individual issues and compilation of generalizations of judicial practice;
- preparation of abstracts;
- preparation of presentations;
- preparation of discussions and round tables;
- search for decisions of the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation and the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation on the topic of the practical lesson;
- solving problems proposed by the teacher in preparation for the practical lesson;
- preparing reports for student research groups and thematic conferences;
- completing assignments from the teacher given in the course of individual work with the student (solving problems, preparing reports, essays and reports, summarizing published judicial practice, studying documents, preparing draft documents, preparing for business and role-playing games, etc.).

Model (features) of independent work of students on individual sections and topics:

1. Preparation of a draft local regulatory act on the preferential right of employees to remain at work upon termination of an employment contract under paragraph 2 of part 1 of Article 81 of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation.
2. Drafting a regulation on bonuses based on the results of work for the year.
3. Drafting the Internal Labor Regulations.
4. Preparation of a draft act on the employee's refusal to provide a written explanation on the essence of the violation committed.
5. Preparation of a draft order (instruction) on the application of disciplinary action.
6. Preparation of a draft statement of claim for reinstatement at work and payment for the time of forced absence, compensation for moral damage.

7. Analysis of the employer's orders proposed by the teacher on bringing the employee to disciplinary responsibility in accordance with Articles 192 and 193 of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation.

Model (features) of independent work of correspondence students

In preparation for practical classes, correspondence students solve problems specified in the methodological literature in writing. The solution specifies the regulatory acts to which the student refers in support of his/her position. On complex and controversial issues, the opinion of students must be legally competently motivated. If there is an explanation of the Plenum of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation on the issue, it should be indicated.

Peculiarities of independent problem solving by correspondence students

Assignment by options:

Option 1. For students whose last names begin with letters from "A" to "D" (inclusive)

Option 2. For students whose last names begin with letters from "E" to "K" (inclusive)

Option 3. For students whose last names begin with letters from "L" to "P" (inclusive)

Option 4. For students whose last names begin with letters from "R" to "Ya" (inclusive)

Option No. 1.

Disclose the content of the following question and solve the problem with legal justification:

1. Grounds for the emergence of labor relations (give a brief explanation for each ground, and for Art. 19.1 provide a specific court decision). Based on this decision, fill out the table:

Details of the court decision (name of the court, date of the decision, case number, names of the parties)	Summary of the plaintiff's position	Summary of the defendant's position	Summary of the Court's rationale	Court decision	Your opinion regarding the court's decision

1. Gromov committed a disciplinary offense, which was discovered by the shop manager on December 16, 2024. On December 23, 2024, the employee submitted a written explanation of the violation to his immediate supervisor, the foreman. The head of the organization learned of this offense on January 18, 2025 and issued an order on January 21, 2025, severely reprimanding him. Gromov applied to the Labor Disputes Commission with a statement on recognizing the disciplinary sanction as illegal.

Resolve the dispute on the merits.

Option No. 2.

Explain the content of the following question and solve the problem with legal justification:

1. Show the difference between termination of an employment contract by mutual agreement and dismissal at the employee's initiative (give one example from current judicial practice for each of the grounds for termination of an employment contract). Based on this solution, fill in the table:

Details of the court decision (name of the court, date of the decision, case number, names of the parties)	Summary of the plaintiff's position	Summary of the defendant's position	Summary of the Court's rationale	Court decision	Your opinion regarding the court's decision

1. The employer verbally suggested that the department employees stay after work for 4 hours to complete a quarterly report. The employees carried out this order and approached the employer with a demand to pay them for overtime work. However, the employer, citing the absence of a written order, refused to pay them, drawing attention to the fact that the employees did not object to working extra hours, and the employment contracts specified an irregular working hours regime. Should this work be considered overtime? In what order and should this work be compensated?

Option No. 3.

Expand the content of the following question and solve the problem with a legal justification:

1. Make a table indicating the difference between special disciplinary responsibility and general disciplinary responsibility (using the example of one of the categories of employees in relation to whom the charters and regulations on discipline established by federal laws apply.)

2. Smirnov, who worked as a foreman in the department of specialized works, was dismissed due to the discovered discrepancy with the position held due to insufficient qualifications. The basis for the dismissal was Smirnov's refusal to pass an exam on construction standards, labor protection, safety precautions, and the rules for the operation of overhead cranes. Considering the dismissal to be incorrect, Smirnov filed a lawsuit in court for reinstatement and payment for forced absenteeism.

How should this dispute be resolved?

Option No. 4.

Explain the content of the following question and solve the problem with legal justification:

1. Explain the issue of the material liability of the head and deputy head of the organization. Provide an example from judicial practice under Article 243 of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation. Based on this solution, fill in the table:

Details of the court decision (name of the court, date of the decision, case number, names of the parties)	Summary of the plaintiff's position	Summary of the defendant's position	Summary of the Court's rationale	Court decision	Your opinion regarding the court's decision

2. Chief accountant of PJSC "Cascade" Petrova was late for work, about which a corresponding act was drawn up and a written explanation was received from the employee. The director issued an order to apply a disciplinary sanction - a reprimand.

During the audit, errors in accounting were discovered, the annual balance sheet was not drawn up on time.

Without waiting for the end of the audit, the director of PJSC "Cascade" issued an order to deprive Petrova of her quarterly bonus, in addition, her vacation was postponed from July to September, additional vacation was not provided for work in an irregular working hours mode, dividends were not paid. Petrova was dismissed under paragraph 5 of part 1 of article 81 of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation.

Are the actions of the director of PJSC "Cascade" lawful?

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF MASTERING A DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

In order to record the results of mastering a discipline (module), the teacher conducts a control check of the students' knowledge level at the last lesson of the module. The check, at the teacher's discretion, can be carried out in one of the following forms: writing an essay, solving problems. Sample essay topics are presented below. At the request of the student, the topic of the written work can be agreed upon individually (in advance). Based on the results of the check, the teacher enters a grade in the electronic journal.

Routine monitoring is carried out by conducting a survey of students on the topic of the practical lesson, checking individual assignments, a test task on the material covered.

Model tasks for conducting current monitoring and midterm certification based on the results of mastering the discipline.

When conducting current monitoring and midterm certification, the materials of the Practical Course, test tasks, and other materials proposed by the teacher can be used.

Examples of model tasks:

Option 1. Model assignment for conducting current control on the topic: "Sources of labor law".

Technology: drawing up a complex diagram with the participation of all students in the group.

Lesson content. The students in the group are given the task of drawing up a diagram illustrating the classification of sources of labor law by legal force. One person is invited to the board. The first one begins to draw a diagram, indicating a specific source, each subsequent student supplements the diagram with subsequent sources (with specific examples), revealing their meaning and content, up to full disclosure. When drawing up a diagram, special attention should be paid to the general and special norms of labor law, supporting them with appropriate examples.

Option 2. Model assignment for conducting current control on the topic: "Principles of labor law".

Cooperative learning on the issue: "Prohibition of discrimination in the sphere of labor". After receiving assignments and instructions from the teacher, the group is divided into 3 small groups. One studies the concept of discrimination and its signs, given in international legal acts, and the second highlights the signs of discrimination according to the Constitution of the Russian Federation, the third studies Article 3 of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation. Then each group independently works on the task until all its members understand it and successfully complete it. Subsequently, the students must exchange the knowledge they have gained.

Option 3. Model task for conducting current control on the topic: "Subjects of labor law".

Technology: guided discussion with the participation of the entire group.

Lesson content. During the lesson, the teacher puts up for discussion a complex debatable issue about the volitional criterion of the legal capacity of an employee and invites students to present the views of scientists on this issue, as well as formulate and substantiate their point of view. Controversy is initiated.

Option 4. Model assignment for conducting current control on the topic: "Legal regulation of employment and employment of the population"

Technology: creative assignment, project presentation.

Preliminary assignment. Students are offered as homework to select examples of acts of subjects on issues related to the Federal Law of 12.12.2023 N 565-FZ "On Employment of the Population in the Russian Federation" and examples from judicial practice, prepare a presentation of the material.

Option 5. Model assignment for conducting current control on the topic: "Concept and parties to an employment contract".

"Brainstorming" ("brain attack") on the issue of the employer as a party to the employment contract.

Lesson content. The teacher formulates a problem related to the possibility of a branch and representative office to be an employer, and forms an expert group (3-4 people) capable of selecting the best ideas and developing indicators and evaluation criteria. Then each group independently develops its own position on this problem. Subsequently, the students must exchange the knowledge they have gained.

Option 6. Model assignment for conducting current control on the topic: "Conclusion of an employment contract".

Cooperative learning on the issue of "Guarantees when hiring". After receiving assignments and instructions from the teacher, the group is divided into 3 groups. One studies the concept of discrimination and its signs, listed in Art. 3 of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation, the second group - in Art. 64 of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation, the third group analyzes the concept of "business qualities of an employee". Then each group independently works on the assignment until all its members understand it and successfully complete it. Subsequently, the students must exchange the knowledge they have gained.

Option 7. Model assignment for conducting current monitoring on the topic: "Conclusion of an employment contract".

Technology: creative assignment, project presentation.

Preliminary assignment. Students are asked to select an example from published judicial practice on the issue of illegal refusal to hire as homework. Based on this example, it is necessary to clearly formulate the court's position and prepare a presentation of the material.

Option 8. Model assignment for conducting current monitoring on the topic: "Termination of an employment contract at the initiative of the employer"

Technology: drawing up a complex diagram with the participation of all students in the group.

Lesson content. The students in the group are given the task of drawing up a diagram of the procedure for terminating an employment contract due to a reduction in the number or staff of employees. One person at a time is invited to the board. The first one starts drawing a diagram, indicating the condition of the legality of such termination, each subsequent student supplements the diagram with subsequent conditions, revealing their meaning and content, up to their full disclosure.

Option 9. Model task for conducting current monitoring on the topic: "Termination of an employment contract at the initiative of the employer"

Technology: Case method.

Lesson content. The teacher asks students to determine which of the employees expected to be dismissed due to a reduction in the number and staff has the preferential right to remain at work. Information about employees is provided through printed text, which the teacher distributes and, having determined the time for its study, ensures that the students study it independently. Students must determine what information is missing. This is determined by an open exchange of opinions. Next, students must highlight the essential circumstances necessary to solve the main problem - the possibility or impossibility of laying off a specific employee, justifying their decision with references to the relevant norm of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation. The adoption of a common decision is carried out by the method of free discussion.

Option 10. Model assignment for conducting current monitoring on the topic: "Wages".

Technologies: creative assignment, presentation of a project on the topic: "Wages".

Preliminary assignment. Students are asked to select an example from published judicial practice on the issue of the minimum wage as homework. Based on this example, they are instructed to clearly formulate the position of the Constitutional or Supreme Court and prepare a written and oral presentation of the material.

Option 11. Model assignment for conducting current monitoring on the topic: "Labor disputes".

Role-playing game on the topic "Individual labor disputes"

Content. The teacher carries out a set of individual roles (an employee who has filed an application with the commission, his representatives and representatives of the employer). The group is divided in half and a labor dispute commission is formed. The game interaction of the game participants is carried out, in the future the situation is played out by changing roles by different participants, also by repeating the situation with a different composition of participants.

Option 12. Model assignment for conducting current monitoring on the topics of "Working hours", "Rest time", "Labor discipline", "Material liability of the parties to the employment contract", etc.

Analysis of specific situations (case study), in which students and teachers participate in a direct discussion of business situations or tasks.

Content. The teacher offers a specific situation. Students are divided into small groups of 4-6 people. Each group is given an assignment aimed at testing knowledge, practical skills and abilities on the topic: to solve a problem and legally motivate the decision. The teacher distributes the roles of students within each group: the "leader" (one student) listens to colleagues, records the arguments, formulates the final decision and argues, and reports it; "advisers" offer solution options and their legal justification.

Each group develops options for solving the problem, then a public defense of the developed options for resolving the situation is carried out, followed by opposition, after which the teacher sums up the results and evaluates the results of the lesson.

Option 13. Model task for conducting current control at the last practical lesson of the discipline "Labor Law".

Technology: Method of structured contradiction.

Content. Students are divided into 2 groups, one of which must identify the shortcomings, and the second the advantages of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation, while each of the groups can be divided into small subgroups analyzing individual chapters of the Labor Code of the Russian Federation. Subsequently, each group discusses one side of the problem, but with the goal not to win, but to collect as much material as possible to explain the problem as a whole. Then each pair discusses the opposite side of the problem. The result should be a holistic solution to the problem by the entire group.

Study Article 199 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation and the Resolution of the Plenum of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation dated 26.11.2019 No 48 "On the practice of application by the courts of legislation on liability for tax crimes". Who, as a contractor, should be responsible for tax evasion?

Case 4: Poryvaev killed his wife in a state of physiological affect. When he came to his senses and realized what had happened, the man felt bad. A forensic psychiatric examination established that after the murder, Poryvaev developed a reactive mental disorder, and that at the time of the examination, the man could not realize the actual nature of his actions (inaction) and control them.

Can the court declare Poryvaev insane? What decision can the court make?

Case 5: A citizen committed a theft in which he was not interested due to his high material well-being. He claims that he committed the crime solely under the influence of alcoholic intoxication. Having sobered up, he immediately returned the stolen goods. In his opinion, the court should have imposed a punishment taking into account the provisions of Article 22 of the Criminal Code, since the state of severe alcohol intoxication should be considered as a mental disorder, which does not exclude sanity. However, the court refused to apply Article 22 of the Criminal Code, there is no reference to this article in the verdict. He indicated these circumstances in the cassation appeal, asks to cancel the verdict.

Motivate the cassation ruling in terms of criminal law issues.

2. Draw up written schemes on the following issues: "Insanity, limited sanity, age-related insanity: correlation of concepts", "Subject of crime and personality of the perpetrator: criminal legal significance".

3. To prepare reports with a presentation on the following topics: "Correlation of the concepts of "sanity", "legal capacity" and "legal capacity"; The state of intoxication: concept, types, criminal legal meaning"; "The Concept of "Criminal Personality" in Criminal Law and Criminology".

4. Pass the test on the topic "Subject of the crime" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 9. Stages of the crime

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: Aspidov decided to poison his neighbor in a communal apartment. Not having sufficient knowledge, he studied specialized sites and forums on the Internet for several days. The young man found out which poisons do not leave traces of their presence in the body, and found the formula of one of these substances.

Is Aspidov subject to criminal liability?

Incident 2: Shurupov attached a radio-controlled explosive device to the bottom of Portnov's car. While waiting on a bench, the attacker saw that Portnov was approaching the car not alone, but with his five-year-old son. Not wanting to cause the boy's death, Shurupov pressed the button ahead of time. Portnov and the child remained alive and unharmed; the car was destroyed.

Is Shurupov subject to criminal liability?

Case 3: Private Bayramov, not wanting to continue his military service, deserted from his post with the weapons entrusted to him. After two weeks of wandering, having come to his senses, he returned to the military unit and voluntarily surrendered his weapons.

Is there a voluntary refusal to commit a crime in Bayramov's actions?

Case 4: Butylkin, being intoxicated, opened indiscriminate shooting from the window of an apartment on the second floor. As a result, the health of one of the passers-by was seriously harmed.

The preliminary investigation authorities assessed Butylkin's actions as attempted murder. Is the qualification correct?

Case 5: A citizen out of jealousy shot at his wife, wanting to take her life, but missed, the bullet only scratched the victim's cheek. The sound of the shot frightened him, he realized that he could have done the irreparable. He did not shoot again, although he had such an opportunity.

Is he liable for attempted murder?

2. Draw up written schemes on the following issues: "Types of attempt", "Signs of voluntary refusal to commit a crime".

3. To prepare reports with a presentation on the topics: "Voluntary refusal and active repentance"; "The time of the crime and the moment of the end of the crime".

4. Pass the test on the topic "Stages of the crime" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 10. Complicity in a crime

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Incident 1: The recidivist thief Lokhmatov learned from the newspapers that the exposition of the city museum of local lore was replenished with the dagger of the Rear Admiral of the Russian Imperial Navy. Coming to Tuzov, a well-known antique dealer, Lokhmatov offered to steal rare weapons for him. Tuzov gladly agreed. Soon the theft was committed. Lokhmatov brought the antique dealer what he had promised, but he said that he had changed his mind. And he decided to be careful.

Evaluate Tuzov's behavior.

Case 2: Truslyvtsev stopped a skinny boy of 11-12 years old in the courtyard of a residential building. Showing him an open window on the first floor, he asked him to climb into the apartment and bring all the money and valuables that he could find. The child fulfilled the request. At the preliminary investigation it turned out that at the time of the theft the boy was 14.5 years old. He decided to give only jewelry to Truslyvtsev. The banknotes were folded and hidden in a sock.

Qualify the deeds of each of the characters.

Case 3: Nakhrapov, Bragin, Grushnitsky, Kuznechik and Neukluzhev had been friends since the third grade and grew up in the same yard. At the age of 15-16, they became interested in hand-to-hand combat and since then they often organized training in the evenings on a vacant lot. Arriving at the debtor's office, they beat his employees and, taking all the money available in the cash register, left.

Determine the form of complicity.

Case 4: After the opening of a supermarket on the next street, Kasimov's grocery store suffered losses. The entrepreneur decided to ask his friend Yusov, who had recently been released from prison, to start a fire in the building of a competitor. The instigator remarked that with the confusion that arose in the store, it would be easy to profit from something worthwhile. Yusov refused the offer, and Kasimov left with nothing. Yusov's nephew Bushtakhov heard their conversation interesting, and a few days later the supermarket burned down.

Qualify the behavior of each actor.

Case 5: Zhiletkin and Bubentsov decided to steal from the apartment of a wealthy lawyer. To do this, they asked the retired "bear hunter" Potapov for the necessary tools. He handed them a master key to open the door to the house, and a set of keys, one of which could fit the lock of the safe. Later, having learned who was to become the victim of the crime, Potapov decided to prevent the encroachment. He demanded the return of everything previously taken. He was given a bunch of keys, and the elderly thief did not notice the absence of a master key.

The criminals used it in the theft.

Evaluate the deeds of Potapov.

2. Draw up written schemes on the following issues: "Types of accomplices", "Types and forms of complicity".

3. To prepare reports with a presentation on the following topics: "Types and forms of complicity in crime: debatable issues of the science of criminal law"; "An intermediary in the norms of the Special Part of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation and his relationship with an accomplice"; "Varieties of an Organized Group of Persons in the Norms of the Special Part of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation".

4. Pass the test on the topic "Complicity in a crime" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 11. Multiplicity of crimes

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: Traffic police officer Severov decided to spend his next vacation in Tahiti. He lacked 50 thousand rubles to buy a voucher. The inspector decided that until he "accumulates" the necessary amount, he will "negotiate on the spot" with every third violator of traffic rules, without issuing a fine. In total, Severov received ten bribes of 5 thousand rubles each.

How many crimes did Severov commit?

Case 2: At the age of 16, Shustov was convicted of theft under Part 1 of Article 158 of the Criminal Code and released from punishment with the use of coercive measures of educational influence. A year later, he was again caught in simple theft, was convicted and sent to an educational colony for 1.5 years. Three months before his release, Shustov escaped. Hiding from persecution, he stole Surikatov's car, But having lost control, he hit a pedestrian, causing serious harm to his health.

Determine the form(s) of multiplicity.

Case 3: Andreeva, while serving a sentence of imprisonment for a period of 2 years for committing theft with illegal entry into the vault, received permission for a short-term departure to the limits of the general regime correctional colony to accommodate her young son with relatives. After the expiration of the established period, Andreeva did not return to the place of serving her sentence.

Is there a plurality of crimes in Andreeva's actions? What shape and type?

Case 4: Potapov attacked Strunkin with the aim of stealing. The victim died from a blow to the head. A month later, the man again committed a murder: a passer-by out of hooligan motives.

Is there a multiplicity of crimes in Potapov's actions? What shape and type?

Case 5: Akhmetov decided to burn down the neighbor's house, which was located too close to his site, and created an unnecessary shadow. The attacker chose a warm summer night for the crime. The neighbor and his family slept in a room with large open windows. Akhmetov hoped that if they heard the fire, they would be able to leave the house.

Is there a multiplicity of crimes in Akhmetov's actions?

2. Draw up written schemes on the following issues: "Types of complex single crime", "Forms of multiplicity".

3. To prepare reports with a presentation on the following topics: "Theoretical classifications of recidivism"; "Types of competition of criminal law norms".

4. Pass the test on the topic "Multiple crimes" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 12. Circumstances excluding the criminality of an act

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: Pukhova was returning home alone. It was dark and deserted outside. The area in which she lived was considered criminally unfavorable. The woman heard that someone was following her. She accelerated her pace – the unknown person did not lag behind. Pukhova started running – the pursuer ran after her.

The man who frightened her turned out to be a neighbor from the third floor.

He lost the keys and hoped to enter the entrance with Pukhova. Pepper gas caused an allergic attack in the man, which led to a short-term health disorder (slight harm to health).

Evaluate what happened.

Incident 2: Batrakov was walking through a wasteland when he was attacked by a pack of stray dogs. To protect himself, he killed one of the animals.

Qualify what you have done.

Incident 3: The Konovalovs, in order to stop thefts at the dacha, left a bottle of vodka diluted with methanol on the table. Petrov and Sidorov broke the window, entered the house and, finding vodka, drank it. As a result of methanol poisoning, Petrov died, and Sidorov went blind.

Did the Konovalovs commit a crime (see Articles 105, 111, 114 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation)? If you did, then qualify the deed.

Case 4: Serviceman Pavlov was kidnapped and tortured, demanding to tell about the deployment of troops in the settlement. Unable to bear the pain, he gave out secret information. As a result, the enemy decided to conduct a sabotage operation, many soldiers died.

Is Pavlov liable for what he has done?

Case 5: The patient began to go blind as a result of a brain tumor. There was no threat to life, but in the future such a threat could arise as a result of the growth of the tumor. After conducting examinations, the doctor decided to remove the tumor, realizing the possibility of death of the patient during the operation. He explained the risks to the patient and obtained his consent to surgery.

What fact should be established to answer the question of whether a doctor is liable for the death of a patient?

2. Draw up written diagrams/tables on the following issues: "Types of circumstances excluding the criminality of an act", "Necessary defense, extreme necessity, detention of a person who has committed a crime: comparative table".

3. To prepare reports with a presentation on the following topics: "Sports risk as a type of justified risk"; "Justified risk in medical activities"; "Criminal Liability of Servicemen for Failure to Execute an Order in Peacetime and in Combat Conditions".

4. Pass the test on the topic "Circumstances excluding the criminality of an act" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 13. The concept and goals of punishment. System and types of punishment

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: A charitable organization offered the head of the correctional institution to equip a computer class for the professional training of convicts. The head refused, pointing out that the correctional colony is not a resort.

Does the boss understand the purpose of punishment correctly?

Case 2: Dryndin was sentenced under Part 1 of Article 158 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation to a fine of 50 thousand rubles.

Can the inaction of a convict be considered a malicious evasion of payment of a fine?

Case 3: Poloskin, previously convicted under Part 2 of Article 158 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation and serving a sentence of imprisonment, was convicted under Part 3 of Article 163 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation. He was again sentenced to imprisonment.

In what type of correctional institution will he serve it?

Case 4: A serviceman undergoing military service under conscription for a crime under paragraph "b" of Part 2 of Article 158 of the Criminal Code was sentenced to detention in a disciplinary military unit for a period of 3 years.

Could the court impose such a punishment?

Case 5: Card sharper Kopytov was convicted of fraud. The court sentenced him as a punishment to imprisonment with deprivation of the right to play cards for a period of 2 years.

Is the punishment in accordance with the criminal law?

2. Draw up written charts/tables on the following issues: "Signs of punishment", "Purposes of punishment", "Legislative classification of types of punishments", "Types of institutions executing punishment in the form of imprisonment for a certain period", "Compulsory, corrective and forced labor: comparative table".

3. To prepare reports with a presentation on the following topics: "Punishment as the essence of criminal punishment"; "Death Penalty: Pros and Cons"; "Life imprisonment and the purposes of criminal punishment"; "Criminal Punishment and Other Measures of a Criminal Law Nature".

4. Pass a test on the topics "Concept and Goals of Punishment", "System and Types of Punishment" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 14. Sentencing

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: Kuzaev, who has a conviction for robbery, committed an attempt to intentionally cause grievous bodily harm (Part 1 of Article 111 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation). A month later, he undertook a robbery (Part 2 of Article 162 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation). For each of the crimes, he was sentenced to the maximum possible punishment.

Determine the limits within which punishment can be imposed for a combination of crimes.

Case 2: 17-year-old Mayorov purchased a firearm (Part 1 of Article 222 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation) to commit a robbery (Part 2 of Article 162 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation). For each of the crimes, he was sentenced to the maximum possible punishment.

Determine the limits within which punishment can be imposed for a combination of crimes.

Case 3: Mazulin was sentenced under Part 3 of Article 158 of the Criminal Code to imprisonment for a term of 2 years, served his sentence. Four months after his release, he was convicted of robbery under Part 1 of Article 162 of the Criminal Code to 3 years in prison.

What is the maximum and minimum punishment that can be imposed on Mazulin in the aggregate?

Case 4: Golutin was sentenced for theft (Part 1 of Article 158 of the Criminal Code) to 1 year of correctional labor with deduction of 20% of earnings and for battery (Article 116 of the Criminal Code) to one year of correctional labor with deduction of 15% of earnings.

Determine the final punishment for the combination of crimes.

Case 5: Sopatkin was sentenced to 4 years of forced labor for a crime under Part 2 of Article 127 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation. The same punishment was imposed on him for a crime under Part 1 of Article 163 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation. b) the second crime was committed after serving half of the sentence for the first crime; c) both crimes were committed before the conviction for the first of them, but the second encroachment became known after serving 1/4 of the sentence for the first.

2. Draw up written schemes on the following issues: "Mandatory mitigation of punishment", "Mitigating and aggravating circumstances: classification".

3. To prepare reports with a presentation on the following topics: "Taking into account the personality of the offender when sentencing"; "Imposition of a milder punishment than provided for this crime: theory and judicial practice".

4. Pass the test on the topic "Sentencing" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 15. Exemption from criminal liability

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: Geroev caused slight harm to his wife's health, but reconciled with the victim and was released from criminal liability. A month later, he again committed a crime against his wife under Article 115 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation.

Should the investigator grant her request?

Will the decision change if the Heroes were convicted for the first time?

Incident 2: Boyarov killed his companion, safely hid the corpse and flew to Argentina on the next flight. After 15 years, he returned.

Can Boyarov be prosecuted?

Incident 3: Slonivtsev kidnapped the director of the trade organization Abramov and demanded 500 thousand rubles for his return. At this time, the organization went bankrupt and could not collect the necessary amount.

Does the note to Article 126 of the Criminal Code apply to Slonivtsev?

Case 4: Pensioner Kukushkin ran over Bradoreev, causing serious harm to the latter's health. The victim stated his desire to reconcile with the guilty and categorically refused material compensation for damage.

Does the investigator have the right to release Kukushkin from criminal liability in connection with reconciliation with the victim?

Case 5: Kapustin made a living by reselling used cars. He did not have registration as an individual entrepreneur. For two years, his revenue amounted to 2.5 million rubles.

Can he count on exemption from criminal liability? What do you need to do for this?

2. Draw up written schemes on the following issues: "Exemption from criminal liability and exemption from criminal punishment: comparative analysis", "Types of exemption from criminal liability".

3. Prepare reports with a presentation on the following topics: "Reconciliation with the victim and termination of a criminal case (criminal prosecution) in cases of private prosecution"; "Special types of exemption from criminal liability".

4. Pass the test on the topic "Exemption from criminal liability" in the Distance Learning System.

Topic 16. Exemption from punishment

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: Korovkin was sentenced under Part 3 of Article 159 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation to 5 years in prison. A year later, his wife was deprived of parental rights, and since the convict had children aged 5 and 7 under the custody of the convict, he was granted a deferral of sentence.

Is the deferment subject to cancellation if Korovkina's parental rights are restored?

Case 2: Medvedev, sentenced to life imprisonment, committed a crime under Part 1 of Article 111 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation 10 years after parole.

Is parole subject to cancellation?

Case 3: Polosukhin was sentenced for theft to 2 years of suspended imprisonment. After that, it became known that before being convicted of theft, he had committed robbery. For robbery, the court sentenced him to imprisonment for a term of 3 years without the application of Article 73 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation.

What is the fate of a suspended sentence? Is it necessary to impose a punishment for a combination of crimes? If necessary, how to do it?

Case 4: Karpov was sentenced to 5 years in prison. The court decided to consider the sentence conditional. The public prosecutor did not agree with this decision and appealed the verdict. In the period between the issuance of the first verdict and the adoption of the ruling, which dismissed the appeal, Karpov committed a crime under Part 1 of Article 112 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation.

Should the court cancel the suspended sentence?

Case 5: At the age of 18, Pimenov took part in a robbery committed by an organized group (paragraph "a" of Part 4 of Article 162 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation). Then he served in the military under conscription, participated in hostilities and was awarded the medal "For Courage". Model task for intermediate certification:

Variant of the practical task. Yakovlev and Rudin, meeting Chicherin on the street, attacked him with hooligan motives and began to beat him, hitting the victim on the head and body. Then they jointly stabbed Chicherin in the neck, after which they cut off his clothes, leaving the victim, who was inflicted a head injury, as a result of which the victim died.

Are there signs of complicity in the actions of Yakovlev and Rudin? If yes, then determine the type and form of complicity, as well as the role of each person in the commission of the crime.

Variant of solving a practical task. In the actions of Yakovlev and Rudin there are objective signs of complicity in the crime: 1) quantitative – according to the terms of the task, both persons have the characteristics of the subject of the crime; 2) qualitative – the actions to deprive Chicherin of life were committed jointly, and there are also subjective signs of complicity in the crime: 1) the crime committed by Yakovlev and Rudin is intentional"; 2) both persons acted in relation to Chicherin with direct intent.

The type of complicity in a crime is simple complicity, the form of complicity is a group of persons without prior conspiracy.

Yakovlev and Rudin are co-perpetrators, since they jointly carried out the objective side of the crime.

Criteria for evaluating the solution of a practical task:

1) students who have proposed the correct solution to the practical task, argued it in detail, have a high level of knowledge of the theoretical aspects of solving the practical task, operate with references to the explanations of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation and the provisions of judicial practice when solving the task – receive an "excellent" grade;

2) students who have proposed the correct solution to the practical task and sufficiently argued it, who have shown a sufficient level of knowledge of the theoretical aspects of solving the practical task, who use references to the content of the norms of the criminal law when solving the task, receive a "good" grade;

3) students who have partially correctly solved the practical task, who have offered insufficient argumentation for their solution, who have a superficial knowledge of the norms of the criminal law – receive a "satisfactory" grade;

4) students who have incorrectly solved a practical task, who are not able to offer another solution, in the absence of the necessary knowledge of the theoretical aspects of solving the task and the norms of criminal law, receive an "unsatisfactory" grade.

The final grade of the student's intermediate certification is set taking into account the student's answer to the theoretical questions of the ticket and the solution of the practical task.

2.4. Independent work

Types of independent work:

1. Study of legislation, resolutions of the Plenum of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation and literature recommended for each topic of lectures and seminars.

2. Preparation for seminar-type classes includes the following types of independent work of the student in any form of education:

- solving practical cases formulated for each topic;
- drawing up written schemes and (or) comparative tables on specific issues of the topic of the practical lesson;
- preparation of reports with a presentation on the topics that are indicated for each topic of the practical lesson;
- testing in the Distance Learning System for each topic of the practical lesson.

3. Performance of term papers.

The recommended volume of the term paper is 20-25 pages. The text must be typed on a computer in the Microsoft Word Windows editor and presented in doc format. Font size of the main text is 14 pt. Line spacing is one and a half.

In the course work, legislation, educational literature (textbooks, manuals, comments), special literature (monographs, scientific articles), materials of judicial practice (3-5 examples) should be used.

In the course work, the student should focus on debatable and complex issues, legally competently arguing his position on these issues.

Model of independent work of students of all forms of education:

1. Solving cases (tasks) in writing, formulated for each topic of the seminar-type lesson. The decision indicates the normative acts to which the student refers in support of his position, their articles and paragraphs (if any). On complex and controversial issues, the student's position must be legally competently motivated, including references to the resolutions of the Plenum of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation (monographs and scientific articles). If it is necessary to qualify a crime when solving a problem, then the qualification must be reasonable, accurate and complete.

2. Presentation of material on individual issues indicated for each topic of the seminar-type lesson, in the form of diagrams or comparative tables, with their subsequent discussion during the practical lesson in order to identify advantages and disadvantages.

3. Preparation of a report with a presentation using the computer program Microsoft PowerPoint, in which the student expresses his opinion on certain theoretical or practical problems listed for each topic of the seminar-type lesson, based on the analysis of the relevant provisions of criminal law, as well as the studied educational and scientific literature.

4. Testing in the Distance Learning System on the topics of seminar-type classes.

Types of independent work on topics for all forms of education:

Topic 1. The concept and system of the Special Part of Criminal Law. Fundamentals of Qualification of Crimes. Crimes against life and health

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: Zhiganov, in need of money, decided to commit a robbery. Choosing a victim, he paid attention to immigrants from the Caucasus, experiencing a hostile feeling towards them. Finding, as it seemed to him, a wealthy passer-by, the attacker stabbed him in the chest, took away his bag and phone and fled the scene of the crime. That during the encroachment he was noticed by Abov, who had already been summoned to the investigator. In order to prevent the spread of information, Zhiganov killed for the second time.

Qualify what happened.

Incident 2: Tolikov decided to kill Markelov, to whom he owed a large sum of money, by planting an explosive device in his car, parked at the entrance of an apartment building. Markelov's wife decided to use the car. When the ignition was turned on, an explosion occurred, Markelova died on the spot, in addition, serious harm to health was caused to Dedov and Tomina passing by the car. A week later, Dedov died in the hospital from his injuries.

Qualify Tolikov's act.

Case 3: Having learned about her pregnancy, Zhuravleva decided to kill the child at birth. She informed her husband about this decision, who supported him. The birth took place at home. As soon as the baby was born, the woman gave him to his father, who was supposed to take the baby's life. Zhuravlev felt sorry for the child, and he threw him to the hospital.

Qualify what happened.

Case 4: Surgeon Bidsman, who had a higher medical education, in the operating room, which he equipped in his house, systematically performed abortion operations for a fee, without having the necessary license for this and regardless of the timing of pregnancy and medical indications. None of the clients was injured.

Qualify what happened.

Case 5: Doctor Konovalov and nurse Doglyadova decided to fix the patient Butov with a diagnosis of "alcoholic delirium". They did not control the degree of fixation to the bed. The patient's requests to loosen the matings were ignored. As a result, Butov had a circulatory failure, the functions of the limbs were impaired, and subsequently the patient was assigned the second group of disability.

Qualify what happened.

Once, when he arranged another loud party at home with music and dancing, Troshin called two orderlies, and on his instructions they forcibly brought Petukhov to the hospital, locked him in a free ward. The victim stayed there for three days until he reconciled with his neighbor and was released by him.

Evaluate the actions of the director of the clinic.

Case 4: Karnaukhov owes Brusnitsyn a large amount of money. One day he came to his creditor's country house to ask for another postponement of the debt payment.

Brusnitsyn, wishing to receive compensation immediately, locked Karnaukhov in his plot and, threatening with a pitchfork, forced him to clean the cesspool.

When the work was finished, Brusnitsyn released the debtor.

Case 5: Zaitsev, speaking at the rally, called for voting in the elections of the head of the local administration against the incumbent head Mukhin, calling him a thief and a bribe-taker. A criminal case was initiated against Zaitsev under Part 2 of Article 1281 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation. Zaitsev claimed that he was sure that Mukhin was a thief and a bribe-taker, since he had bought an expensive car and built a good house, which could not be done for wages. that the property acquired by criminal means proves Mukhin's guilt in mercenary crimes.

Qualify Zaitsev's actions.

1. Submit a reasoned solution to the cases:

Case 1: 19-year-old Makrov dated 15-year-old Nikolaeva for six months, repeatedly having sexual intercourse with her consent. Later, he met Nikolaeva's 14-year-old girlfriend Barshcheva. Once, left alone with her, Makrov raped Barshcheva, using violence that was not dangerous to life and health. After 3 months, it turned out that the girl was pregnant. Under pressure from relatives, Barshchev married her, but soon divorced and married Nikolaeva.

Assess the situation from the point of view of criminal law.

Incident 2: 17-year-old Maksakov attacked Dugova, who, as he knew, studied at his school, two grades younger. Threatening with a knife, he forced her to take off her clothes, pushed her to the ground. Due to strong excitement, the teenager did not manage to have sexual intercourse. Angry, he hit Dugov hard in the face, causing a fracture of the upper jaw without displacement, and ran away.

Qualify Maksakov's actions.

Incident 3: One day, 40-year-old Uskov invited 11-year-old Sinitsina, whom he did not know, to his home to watch cartoons. Left alone with the victim, he committed a sexual act with her. The girl did not resist. A week later, Uskov met Sinitsina again and invited her to visit. When she refused, the criminal promised that he would tell the girl's parents about their last meeting. Sinitsina accepted the invitation. On the way to Uskov's house, they were detained by police officers.

Qualify what you have done.

Case 4: Ukhabov, from whom the Zvukovs rented an apartment, offered their 15-year-old daughter to have sexual intercourse with him, promising that in case of refusal he would increase the payment for accommodation. The girl agreed. After six months of periodic meetings, when Zvunkova turned 16 years old, Ukhabov asked her to marry him, but was refused.

Model task for intermediate certification:

Variant of the practical task. Yakovlev and Rudin, meeting Chicherin on the street, attacked him with hooligan motives and began to beat him, hitting the victim on the head and body. Then they jointly stabbed Chicherin in the neck, after which they cut off his clothes, leaving the victim, who was inflicted a head injury, as a result of which the victim died.

Qualify the actions of Yakovlev and Rudin. Justify your position.

Variant of solving a practical task. The actions of Yakovlev and Rudin should be qualified as the murder of their hooligan motives, committed by a group of persons by prior conspiracy.

According to the position of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation, murder is recognized as committed by a group of persons when two or more persons, acting together with the intent aimed at committing murder, directly participated in the process of depriving the victim of life, using violence against him, and it is not necessary that the injuries resulting in death were inflicted by each of them.

Hooligan motives, in accordance with the explanations of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation in murder cases, mean the desire of a person to oppose himself to others, to demonstrate a disdainful attitude towards them. Murder from hooligan motives is committed, as a rule, without an apparent reason or with the use of an insignificant pretext.

Criteria for evaluating the solution of a practical task:

1) students who have proposed the correct solution to the practical task, argued it in detail, have a high level of knowledge of the theoretical aspects of solving the practical task, operate with references to the explanations of the Supreme Court of the Russian Federation and the provisions of judicial practice when solving the task – receive an "excellent" grade;

2) students who have proposed the correct solution to the practical task and sufficiently argued it, who have shown a sufficient level of knowledge of the theoretical aspects of solving the practical task, who use references to the content of the norms of the criminal law when solving the task, receive a "good" grade;

3) students who have partially correctly solved the practical task, who have offered insufficient argumentation for their solution, who have a superficial knowledge of the norms of the criminal law – receive a "satisfactory" grade;

4) students who have incorrectly solved a practical task, who are not able to offer another solution, in the absence of the necessary knowledge of the theoretical aspects of solving the task and the norms of criminal law, receive an "unsatisfactory" grade.

The final grade of the student's intermediate certification is set taking into account the student's answer to the theoretical questions of the ticket and the solution of the practical task.

V. MATERIAL AND TECHNICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Providing the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational and Social Network of the University (hereinafter referred to as the CSOSS), in the system of which the "Electronic personal accounts of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" operate. Access to the materials is possible through the introduction of an individual password. The CSOSS is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that provides information interaction for all participants in the educational process of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), including the provision of publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services operating on the basis of applied information systems of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL).

During the entire period of study, each student is provided with individual unlimited access to electronic library systems (electronic libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL). In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and legal reference systems connected at the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) on the basis of license agreements, and having adapted versions of sites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (electronic library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access to 100 percent of students from any point where there is access to the information and telecommunication network "Internet", both on the territory of the Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

The Library's collection of electronic resources includes the following legal reference systems, databases and electronic library systems:

2. JUDICIAL PRACTICE

2.1. RULINGS AND DETERMINATIONS OF THE CONSTITUTIONAL COURT OF THE RUSSIAN FEDERATION¹

¹ After the adoption of the Constitution of the Russian Federation on December 12, 1993, the norms of criminal procedural law contained in the CPC of the RSFSR of 1960, have been repeatedly checked by the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation on complaints about violation of constitutional rights and freedoms of citizens and requests of courts (more than 30 rulings (historically, the first one should be recognized as the Ruling of May 3, 1995 No. 4-P on the case of checking the constitutionality of Articles 2201 and 2202 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the RSFSR in connection with the complaint of citizen V.A. Avetyan) and many definitions). As a result of the review, a significant number of criminal procedural norms were found to be inconsistent with the Constitution of the Russian Federation as contrary to the principles of adversarial criminal proceedings. In the RF CPC, which came into force on July 1, 2002, the legislator sought to establish a model of legal proceedings, the pre-trial part of which (initiation of criminal proceedings and preliminary investigation) is under the control of the court when deciding on the need to restrict the constitutional rights and freedoms of citizens (parts 2 and 3 of Article 29 of the RF CPC), while the judicial part is based entirely on the principle of adversarial proceedings (part 3 of Article 123 of the RF Constitution, Article 15 of the RF CPC). However, even the new CPC of the RF was not perfect in terms of compliance of some of its norms with the Constitution of the Russian Federation, therefore the Constitutional Court of the RF has already adopted more than 70 decisions and a significant number of definitions correcting the norms of the CPC of the RF or their interpretation in law enforcement practice. The legal positions formulated by the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation in relation to the provisions of the CPC of the RSFSR of 1960 remain valid also in relation to the relevant norms of the CPC of the Russian Federation of 2001, to which the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation constantly draws attention in its new rulings and definitions. The legislator does not always promptly bring the text of the CPC of the RF into compliance with the legal positions expressed by the Constitutional Court of the RF in its rulings and definitions. In a number of cases, the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation comes to the conclusion of formal compliance of a criminal procedural norm with the Constitution of the Russian Federation, but gives this norm a constitutional-legal interpretation. In this case, by virtue of Article 6 of the Federal Constitutional Law “On the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation”, the constitutional-legal meaning of a legal norm identified by the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation is generally binding and excludes any other interpretation in law enforcement practice. The true meaning of criminal procedural norms cannot be understood and assimilated without studying the rulings and definitions of the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation, and the application of the CPC

1) Decision of December 8, 2003, No. 18-P in the case concerning the verification of the constitutionality of the provisions of Articles 125, 219, 227, 229, 236, 237, 239, 246, 254, 271, 271, 378, 405 and 408, as well as Chapters 35 and 39 of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the Russian Federation in connection with requests from courts of general jurisdiction and complaints from a number of citizens.

2) Resolution No. 13-P of June 29, 2004, on the case concerning the verification of the constitutionality of certain provisions of Articles 7, 15, 107, 234 and 450 of the CPC of the RF in connection with a request from a group of deputies of the State Duma.

3) Resolution No. 4-P of March 22, 2005, on the case concerning the verification of the constitutionality of a number of provisions of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the Russian Federation regulating the procedure and time limits for the use of remand in custody as a preventive measure at the stages of criminal proceedings following the end of the preliminary investigation and the referral of a criminal case to a court, in connection with complaints from a number of citizens.

V. MATERIAL AND TECHNICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Provision of the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the academic discipline (module) is posted on the Digital scientific, educational and social Network of the University (hereinafter - CNOSS), in the system of which the "Electronic personal cabinets of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" function. Access to the materials is possible by entering an individual password. CNOSS is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that ensures information interaction between all participants in the educational process of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL), including providing them with publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services based on applied information systems of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL).

Throughout the entire period of study, each student is provided with individual unrestricted access to electronic library systems (e-libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL). In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unrestricted access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and legal reference systems connected at the O.E. University. Kutafina (MSAL) on the basis of licensing agreements, and having adapted versions of websites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (e-library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access for 100 percent of students from anywhere with access to the Internet information and telecommunications network, both on the territory of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

The Library's electronic resource collection includes the following legal reference systems, databases, and electronic library systems:

GPC-6 Able to participate in the preparation of draft regulatory legal acts and other legal documents.	IGPC 2.1 Defines the entities authorized to apply specific legal norms; IGPC 2.2 Demonstrates legal fact-finding skills; IGPC 2.3 Analyzes the circumstances in order to apply specific rules of substantive and procedural law; IGPC 2.4 Anticipates the legal consequences of the application of substantive and procedural law IGPC 6.1 Determines the need to prepare regulatory legal acts and other legal documents and their industry affiliation; IGPC 6.2 Highlights the features of various types of regulatory legal acts and other legal documents; IGPC 6.3 Highlights the features of various types of regulatory legal acts and other legal documents

As a result of mastering the discipline (module), the student should:

1) know:

- the basic laws of development of science and the branch of environmental law, the system of sources regulating the sphere of environmental protection, judicial practice and the practice of state authorities and local governments in this area;
- the essence of environmental protection and rational use of natural resources in order to preserve a favorable human habitat, modern concepts of the legal mechanism for environmental protection and rational use of natural resources;
- institutions for environmental protection and rational use of natural resources, the role and place of environmental law in the system of branches of Russian law;
- the grounds for the emergence, change and termination of the right to use natural resources, types of permits;
- legal mechanisms for protecting property rights and other rights to natural resources from illegal seizure, illegal use and actions leading to the deterioration of natural resources and objects;
- methods of economic regulation in the field of environmental protection and the use of natural resources;
- the mechanism of legal liability for violation of legislation in the field of environmental protection and the use of natural resources, compensation for damage to the environment;

2) be able to:

- apply theoretical provisions of environmental legislation in practice when carrying out economic and other activities, when resolving cases in courts of various jurisdictions, when providing legal assistance to individuals and legal entities, when drafting relevant documents;

- apply the norms of legislation establishing criminal, civil, administrative, material and disciplinary liability for violations of environmental legislation, and also be able to use the governing and current judicial and arbitration practice when resolving specific disputes when carrying out economic activities in the field of environmental protection and rational use of natural resources;

3) possess:

- the basic concepts and categories of environmental law, the main patterns of development of science and the branch of environmental law, as well as the skills of using theoretical knowledge in the process of solving various practical problems.

II. STRUCTURE AND CONTENT OF THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

The volume of the discipline (module) is 4 c.u., 144 academic hours. The form of intermediate certification is an exam.

2.2. Lecture-type classes

Lecture 1. Environmental Law of the Russian Federation. Sources of Environmental Law (2 academic hours)

Content:

To understand this topic of the lecture, students should understand that environmental law of the Russian Federation is an independent branch of law in the Russian legal system, which was historically formed in connection with the allocation of environmental issues on environmental protection and ensuring the rational use of natural resources into an independent category. The subject of environmental law is public environmental relations - a special group of public relations that develop regarding the protection and use of natural objects and the environment as a whole.

The system of environmental law consists of legal norms regulating social relations in the area of interaction between society and nature (environmental relations). The objects of environmental relations are the environment as a whole and its individual components in their legal understanding, environmental rights of citizens and environmentally hazardous types of economic activity. The subjects of environmental legal relations are individuals and legal entities.

Sources of environmental law are regulatory legal acts of authorized bodies that sanction the norms of environmental law.

The Constitution of the Russian Federation is the foundational source for practically all branches of law. Environmental relations in the Constitution of the Russian Federation are regulated by Articles 9, 36, 41, 42, 58, 71, 72, and 114, which establish forms and types of ownership of natural objects, ecological limitations on private property rights, environmental rights of citizens, and the division of powers in environmental protection between the Russian Federation and its constituent entities. The constitutional norms are further developed in various provisions of environmental legislation, ensuring the implementation of the Constitution of the Russian Federation.

Environmental protection and natural resource use regulation fall under the joint jurisdiction of the Russian Federation and its constituent entities. Environmental legislation develops along the path of integrated (with regard to the environment as a whole) and differentiated (with regard to individual components of nature – land, forests, subsoil, etc.) legal regulation. The foundation of environmental legislation is the Federal Law of January 10, 2002, № 7-FZ «On Environmental Protection» which serves as a framework federal law defining the basics (general principles) of legal regulation of environmental relations. Natural resource legislation is represented by the Water and Forest Codes, as well as laws such as «On Subsoil», «On Wildlife», «On the Protection of Atmospheric Air», «On Fisheries and Conservation of Aquatic Biological Resources», and «On Hunting and Conservation of Hunting Resources».

At the level of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation, there are also comprehensive laws on environmental protection and special laws regulating the protection and use of specific natural objects within the territory of the respective constituent entity of the Russian Federation.

Preparation tasks:

1. Familiarize yourself with the Report of the International Commission on Environment and Development «Our Common Future» (M., Progress, 1989)
2. Prepare a list of laws on environmental protection and nature management in historical sequence, adopted before the 90s of the XX century.

Lecture 1. Ownership rights to natural resources and objects. Right of nature use (2 academic hours)

Content:

The lecture should begin by stating that the Constitution of the Russian Federation (Article 9) establishes the diversity of forms of ownership of natural resources. Paragraph 2 of this article proclaims that land and other natural resources may be in private, state, municipal, and other forms of ownership. However, as modern legislative practice shows, the implementation of the norms of the Constitution of the Russian Federation and other federal laws (the Water Code of the Russian Federation, the Forest Code of the Russian Federation) does not practically encompass all the diversity of forms and types of ownership of natural resources and objects. As noted by the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation, the phrase «may be located» means that, «while allowing the possibility of natural resources being in various forms of ownership, the Constitution of the Russian Federation does not, however, oblige that all natural resources must be in these various forms of ownership».

Understanding of this topic will also be facilitated by identifying the general concept of the right to use natural resources both in the objective and subjective sense. In the objective sense, it refers to an independent legal institution that combines a system of similar legal norms establishing the general procedure and conditions for the use of natural resources, their general principles, grounds for the emergence, modification, and termination of the right to use natural resources, as well as the most general (typical) rights and obligations of all subjects of the right to use natural resources. In the subjective sense, it is a list of specific rights and obligations of users of natural resources concerning natural resources and objects.

Using regulatory legal acts that govern relations on the use and protection of individual natural components - the Land Code of the Russian Federation, the Law of the Russian Federation «On Subsoil», the Federal Law «On Wildlife», the Water Code of the Russian Federation, the Forest Code of the Russian Federation, the Federal Law «On Specially Protected Areas», and others, it is necessary to identify the main conditions for providing individual components of the natural environment for use, types of the right to use natural resources, main legal regimes for the use and protection of individual natural objects, and their dependence and interconnection with such elements of the legal regime as forms and types of ownership, features of management regimes for certain natural resources, special conditions of encumbrances and requirements for the protection of specially protected areas and objects, and restrictions on use, peculiarities of committed environmental offenses, and measures of legal responsibility.

Special attention should be paid to legal facts that serve as the basis for the emergence, modification, and termination of the right to use natural resources, which change depending on the object, subject, and type of the right to use natural resources.

In addition, students must have a clear understanding of the procedures for the emergence and termination of the right to use natural resources established by law, as well as the types of documents that establish such rights.

Preparation tasks:

1. Study the provisions of forestry, land, water, faunal, and mining legislation in terms of normative legal regulation of property relations on natural resources and objects, as well as the provision of relevant natural objects for use.
2. Draw up a diagram of the types of nature management.

Lecture 3. Environmental management in the Russian Federation (2 academic hours)

Content:

To understand the role and system of state environmental management, the study of the topic should begin with the question of the concept and general characteristics of environmental management as a whole. Depending on the level of the entities carrying out environmental management, state, municipal, industrial, and public environmental management are distinguished. It is necessary to characterize the specifics of each type of management listed and indicate the main regulatory legal acts that define the powers of the entities involved in environmental management.

The central type of environmental management is state management. State environmental management is carried out at the federal level and at the level of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation. When characterizing state environmental management, it is important to focus primarily on the structure of federal government bodies in the field of environmental protection and natural resource use, as well as the principles and main management functions, such as: Environmental Impact Assessment (EIA), standardization, monitoring, environmental expertise, licensing, state environmental control (supervision), accounting, technical regulation, etc. Further, it is necessary to describe the system and powers of federal government bodies in the sphere of environmental protection and natural resource use.

Within the system of state environmental management bodies, there is traditionally a distinction between bodies of general and special competence. When discussing the system of bodies of general competence, it is necessary to outline the role and powers of the Government of the Russian Federation, state executive authorities of the Russian Federation, and constituent entities of the Russian Federation in the field of natural resource use and environmental protection. The central place in the system of bodies of special competence is occupied by the Ministry of Natural Resources and Ecology of the Russian Federation, the Ministry of Agriculture of the Russian Federation, the Ministry of Economic Development of the Russian Federation, the services and agencies under their jurisdiction, as well as other federal ministries, services, and agencies.

Preparation tasks:

1. Study the powers of the Ministry of Natural Resources and Environment of the Russian Federation, its subordinate services and agencies, as well as other authorized federal government bodies implementing state management in the sphere of nature management and environmental protection. Draw up a diagram.

Lecture 4. Legal regulation of the use and protection of mineral resources (2 academic hours)

Content:

The study of this topic should begin with identifying the role of subsoil as an ecologically significant component of the environment that contains mineral and raw material resources. The task for students is to comprehend and evaluate how legal means ensure solutions to problems related to the rational use and protection of subsoil.

Students are required to understand the fundamentals of subsoil use law and its specific features, the key provisions of current legislation regulating property rights over subsoil and their resources, the conditions for implementing these rights, state regulation of subsoil use relations, the procedure for granting subsoil plots for use under a licensing regime or production sharing agreements, and ecological and land-related issues during subsoil use.

Special attention should be paid to identifying the characteristics of state management in the area of rational use and protection of subsoil (distribution of powers between federal state authorities and state authorities of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation, maintaining a state cadastre of deposits and occurrences of minerals, a state balance of mineral reserves, state accounting and registration, state examination of mineral reserves, state supervision over the rational use and protection of subsoil, state supervision over the safe conduct of operations related to subsoil use, and state monitoring of subsoil conditions).

In addition, it is advisable to outline the main requirements for environmental protection and the rational use of subsoil when placing, designing, constructing, reconstructing, commissioning, and operating oil and gas production facilities. These include requirements for environmental protection during the construction and operation of oil and gas production facilities, processing, transportation, and storage of oil and gas located in water areas, on the continental shelf, and in the exclusive economic zone of the Russian Federation. The order, grounds, and procedure for establishing restrictions on subsoil use, the main requirements for the safe conduct of operations related to subsoil use, including the procedure for the liquidation and conservation of enterprises involved in mineral extraction and underground structures not related to mineral extraction, as well as the timelines for preparing projects for the liquidation or conservation of mining works and land reclamation, should also be addressed. Attention should be given to the issues of associated petroleum gas utilization and determining legal measures to prevent oil spill accidents. Particular focus should be placed on judicial practice in resolving disputes related to harm caused to subsoil due to violations of subsoil legislation.

Preparation tasks:

1. Study the Law of the Russian Federation of February 21, 1992 № 2395-I «On Subsoil». Create a diagram of «Grounds for the emergence of the right to use subsoil areas».

Lecture 5. Legal regulation of the use and protection of waters (2 academic hours)

Content:

In order to better understand the issues of this topic, it is necessary to identify the significance of water bodies in the development of modern society and the possibilities for meeting economic, social, physiological, ecological, therapeutic, recreational, and other needs through water resources and water bodies. It is also important to be aware of the modern factors negatively affecting the state of water and the main sources of such impacts.

Special attention should be paid to studying the Water Code of the Russian Federation dated June 3, 2006, № 74-FZ, as well as other regulatory legal acts of water legislation.

When studying issues related to the legal protection of water from pollution, littering, and depletion, it is essential to clearly distinguish between the essence of these concepts and their content. Attention should also be directed towards the specific features of state management of water resources, particularly the presence of special basin water management authorities responsible for developing recommendations on the use and protection of water bodies located within the boundaries of a basin district. This ensures rational use and protection of water bodies, delineation of powers between federal state authorities and state authorities of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation in the field of water relations, implementation of state monitoring of water bodies, standardization of water quality, maintenance of the state water register, hydrographic and water management zoning of the territory of the Russian Federation, preparation of schemes for the integrated use and protection of water bodies, as well as the implementation of state control (supervision) over the use and protection of water bodies.

Among the arsenal of legal means for water protection, significant importance is given to legal responsibility for violations of water legislation. Special attention should also be paid to judicial practice in resolving disputes related to harm caused to water bodies due to violations of water legislation.

Preparation tasks:

1. Study the Water Code of the Russian Federation of June 3, 2006, № 7-FZ. Create a diagram of the «Grounds for the emergence of the right to use water bodies».

Lecture 6. Legal regulation of the use and protection of forests (2 academic hours)

Content:

The forest is a crucial component of the environment, as it represents a complex of ecological systems that unite the plant and animal world, land, and water resources into a single entity. The ecological function of forests lies in their ability to regulate the climate, provide recreational opportunities, protect soil, and maintain water resources. Forests serve as a source of oxygen replenishment for the atmosphere, filter and purify the air, and support the hydrological regime of rivers. In order to ensure everyone's right to a favorable environment, it is necessary to preserve the medium-forming, water-conserving, protective, sanitary-hygienic, health-improving, and other beneficial functions of forests (Article 1, Paragraph 2 of the Forest Code of the Russian Federation).

Forest resources significantly impact the economies of more than 40 constituent entities of the Russian Federation, where the production of the forest industry accounts for 10 to 50% of the total volume of industrial output.

When studying this topic, it is important for students to understand the diversity of public relations regulated by the Forest Code of the Russian Federation and other regulatory legal acts.

During the lecture, students should explore the legal essence of the concepts «forest», «forest plot», «lands of the forest fund», «use of forests», and their interrelation. In preparation for the lecture, it is necessary to examine such functions of state management in the field of forest relations as the organization of forest use, forest management, forest protection, protection from pests and diseases, forest reproduction, implementation of state forest control (supervision), maintenance of the state forest register, state forest inventory, and others.

Students should also be familiar with the concept and types of forest violations and the measures of legal responsibility for committing them. Particular attention should be paid to the judicial practice of resolving disputes related to harm caused to forests due to violations of forest legislation.

Preparation tasks:

1. Study the Forest Code of the Russian Federation of December 4, 2006, № 200-FZ. Make a diagram of the «Grounds for the emergence of the right to use forest areas».

Lecture 7. Legal regulation of the use and protection of wildlife (2 academic hours)

Content:

The study of this topic should begin with identifying the concept of wildlife as an independent component of the environment, paying attention to the socio-economic, socio-ecological, aesthetic, and scientific significance of wildlife.

The general features and elements of the legal regime of wildlife objects are determined by the Federal Law of April 24, 1995, № 52-FZ «On Wildlife», as well as by subordinate regulatory acts adopted for its implementation. A special object of protection and use of wildlife consists of rare and endangered species of animals.

An independent subject of study within this topic is the rules of fishing, conservation, and use of aquatic biological resources contained in the Federal Law of December 20, 2004, № 166-FZ «On Fishing and Conservation of Aquatic Biological Resources».

It is also necessary to pay attention to the Federal Law of July 24, 2009, № 209-FZ «On Hunting and Conservation of Hunting Resources and on Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation», which regulates relations arising in connection with carrying out activities in the field of hunting management.

In addition, when studying this topic, it is necessary to analyze regulatory legal acts that regulate, in particular, the protection of aquatic bioresources and animals on the continental shelf of the Russian Federation, resolutions of the Government of the Russian Federation, as well as regulatory legal acts of federal state authorities on issues related to the protection and use of wildlife objects.

An effective legal means of protecting and rationally using wildlife is the application of measures of legal responsibility for violating legislation. Particular attention should also be paid to judicial practice in resolving disputes related to harm caused to wildlife objects due to violations of faunistic legislation.

Preparation tasks:

1. Study the Federal Law of April 24, 1995 № 52-FZ «On the Animal World», the Federal Law of December 20, 2004 № 166-FZ «On Fishing and Conservation of Aquatic Biological Resources», the Federal Law of July 24, 2009 № 209-FZ «On Hunting and the Conservation of Hunting Resources, and on Amendments to Certain Legislative Acts of the Russian Federation». Create a diagram of «The Grounds for the Emergence of the Right to Use Objects of the Animal World».

Lecture 8. Legal regulation of the protection of atmospheric air. Legal regime of specially protected areas (2 academic hours)Content:

When exploring the first part of this topic, it is necessary to identify the characteristics of atmospheric air as an object of use and protection in accordance with the requirements of the Federal Law of May 4, 1999, No. 96-FZ "On the Protection of Atmospheric Air." To understand atmospheric air as an object of legal protection, it is also important to recognize the difference between atmospheric air and indoor air.

The foundation of the legal protection of atmospheric air consists of measures aimed at regulating air quality and permissible impacts on atmospheric air. It is necessary to study the relevant requirements regarding the procedures and criteria for establishing standards for maximum allowable concentrations (MAC) of pollutants in the air and harmful physical impacts on it, as well as the mechanism for setting standards for maximum allowable emissions (MAE) for enterprises and other stationary and mobile sources, and the specifics of technical regulations. Particular attention should be paid to the role and procedure for granting permits for the emission of pollutants into the atmosphere. It is important to consider these requirements from the perspective of both protecting atmospheric air within the Russian Federation and fulfilling Russia's international obligations concerning global issues like ozone layer depletion and climate change. Additionally, it is essential to understand the mechanisms for reducing the production and consumption of ozone-depleting substances, cutting greenhouse gas emissions, and protecting natural greenhouse gas sinks.

In addressing the second part of this topic, it is necessary to explore the concept of specially protected natural territories and their classification into types. Attention should be drawn to the comprehensive nature of the legal regulation of the protection and functioning of valuable natural territories and objects, as well as the shared goals and objectives behind the establishment of such natural areas.

When studying the legal regime of individual specially protected natural territories, one must determine the differences in the legal status of state nature reserves, national and natural parks, dendrological parks, state nature sanctuaries, and other types of natural territories.

Studying the Federal Law of March 14, 1995, № 33-FZ «On Specially Protected Natural Territories» will help clarify the differences in the organization of legal protection for all specially protected natural territories and objects, as well as the rules governing their use for environmental protection, conservation, scientific, recreational, health-improvement, sanitary-hygiene, and other purposes provided for by federal laws and regulations.

Preparation tasks:

1. Study the Federal Law of May 4, 1999, № 96-FZ «On the Protection of Atmospheric Air», the Federal Law of February 23, 1995, № 26-FZ «On Natural Healing Resources, Health Resorts, and Spa Areas», and the Federal Law of March 14, 1995, № 33-FZ «On Specially Protected Natural Territories». Create diagrams titled: «Standardization of Emissions of Harmful Pollutants into the Atmospheric Air», «Types of Specially Protected Natural Territories», and «Legal Regime of Geoparks».

2.3. Seminar-type classes

Practical lesson 1. «Environmental law of the Russian Federation». «Sources of environmental law» (2 academic hours)

Questions for preparation:

1. The essence of environmental problems. Causes of emergence and solutions.
2. Concepts of environmental law.
3. Environmental law as an independent branch of law, academic discipline, and field of legal science. The relationship between environmental law and other branches of law.
4. The subject and methods of environmental law.
5. The system and structure of environmental law.
6. Principles of environmental law.
7. Environmental legal relations. Subjects, objects, types.
8. The concept of sources of environmental law. Classifications.
9. Constitutional foundations of environmental legislation.
10. International treaties of the Russian Federation in the field of environmental protection and ensuring rational use of natural resources.
11. Documents of state strategic planning as sources of environmental law.
12. Federal legislation in the field of environmental protection and natural resource use.
13. Decrees of the President of the Russian Federation as sources of environmental law.
14. Resolutions of the Government of the Russian Federation as sources of environmental law.
15. Normative legal acts of federal executive bodies as sources of environmental law.
16. The place and role of normative legal acts of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation and local self-government bodies in regulating environmental relations.

Tasks for preparation:

Characterize the state of the environment in the Russian Federation using materials from the State Report of the Ministry of Natural Resources and Ecology of the Russian Federation «On the State and Protection of the Environment of the Russian Federation», as well as materials from other federal government bodies responsible for environmental protection, natural resource use, and ensuring ecological safety, including statistical reporting data.

Study the scientific works of leading Russian scientists on the system and structure of environmental law, its correlation with other branches of Russian law, and methods of legal regulation of environmental relations.

Familiarize yourself with the Report of the International Commission on Environment and Development «Our Common Future» (Moscow, Progress, 1989).

Provide a description of the main functions of environmental law as a branch of law, science, and academic discipline.

Name the main objects, goals, objectives, and types of environmental relations.

Present a classification of the principles of environmental law.

Explain the relationship between environmental law and other branches of law.

List the main legal categories and concepts of environmental law, as well as the institutions of general and special parts of environmental law.

Prepare a draft «Environmental Code of the Russian Federation».

Create a list (scheme) of documents of state strategic planning for all types of natural resources.

Discussion. «Environmental Law as a Branch of Law» Game Description

Participants are divided into three groups of «specialists» representing different viewpoints on the place of environmental law within the system of modern Russian law.

Group № 1 is convinced that environmental law is a complex integrated branch of law and includes two sub-branches: environmental protection law and natural resource law.

Group № 2 believes that environmental law (also known as environmental protection law) and natural resource law are two independent, though interconnected, branches of law.

Group № 3 holds that environmental law is a part (sub-branch) of land law, since land as a natural object and Earth as a planet form the basis and territorial foundation for the existence of all other natural objects – the animal and plant world, subsoil, water resources, etc.

Practical lesson 2. «Ownership rights to natural resources and objects». «Right of nature use» (2 academic hours)

Questions for preparation:

1. The concept of ownership rights to natural resources and objects. Objects of ownership rights.
2. Forms and types of ownership rights to natural resources and objects.

3. Grounds for the emergence and termination of ownership rights to natural resources and objects.
4. The concept of environmental use rights, types, principles.
5. Subjects of environmental use rights. Rights and obligations of environmental users.
6. Objects of environmental use rights.
7. General and special environmental use rights.
8. Grounds for the emergence, modification, and termination of environmental use rights.
9. Payment for the use of natural resources and environmental pollution.

Tasks for preparation:

Explain the concept, content, forms, and types of ownership rights to natural resources and objects.

Characterize state ownership of natural resources and objects, as well as the procedure for its delimitation.

Characterize municipal ownership of natural resources and objects.

Explain the concept and content of private ownership of natural resources and objects.

List the restrictions on private ownership rights established by current environmental and natural resource legislation.

Prepare oral presentations for a practical session on the topics: «The Concept of State Ownership of Natural Objects» and «The Procedure for Delimiting State Ownership of Natural Objects».

Explain the concept of environmental use rights in both objective and subjective senses.

Classify environmental use into types based on objects, intended purposes, duration, and grounds for emergence.

Explain the content of general and special environmental use.

Characterize the objects and subjects of environmental use rights.

List the rights and obligations of environmental users.

Practical Session 3. «Environmental Management in the Russian Federation» (2 academic hours)

Questions for preparation:

1. The concept, types, forms, and principles of environmental management.
2. State, municipal, industrial, and public environmental management. Concept and specifics.
3. The system, structure, and powers of state environmental management bodies.
4. Functions of state environmental management.

Tasks for preparation:

Explain the concept, types, main objectives, and principles of environmental management in the Russian Federation.

Analyze the system and structure of bodies implementing state environmental management in the Russian Federation and describe their main powers.

List the main functions of environmental protection management and provide a brief description of each function.

Prepare an oral report for presentation at the practical session on the topic «Legal Regulation of the Use of Best Available Techniques (BAT)».

Create a diagram of general and specialized environmental management bodies.

Practical Session 4. «Legal Support for Environmental Safety». «Legal Requirements for Handling Production and Consumption Waste and Radioactive Waste» (2 academic hours)

Questions for Preparation:

1. The concept and essence of environmental safety. The relationship between the concepts of «environmental safety» and «environmental protection». Legislation in the field of ensuring environmental safety: general characteristics.

2. Environmental-legal support for specific types of safety: industrial safety, radiation safety, chemical and biological safety, genetic engineering activities, handling hazardous chemical and biological substances, pesticides, and agrochemicals.

3. Legal regulation of prevention and elimination of natural and man-made emergencies.

4. Types and legal regime of environmentally disadvantaged territories. Emergency zones, zones of ecological disaster, and territories affected by radioactive contamination.

5. The concept and classification of production and consumption waste.

6. Procedures for handling production and consumption waste. Licensing activities related to the collection, use, neutralization, transportation, and disposal of waste from hazard classes I - IV.

7. Standardization in the area of waste management. Procedures for developing and approving waste generation norms and limits on their disposal.

8. Requirements for waste disposal sites. Operation procedures for landfills handling production and consumption waste. Maintenance of the state register of waste disposal sites. Extended producer responsibility for waste recycling.

9. Regional programs in the field of waste management, including municipal solid waste. Federal scheme for handling municipal solid waste and territorial waste management schemes.

10. The concept of radioactive waste. Procedures for handling radioactive waste.

11. State accounting and control of nuclear materials, radioactive substances, and radioactive waste.

12. Storage and processing of nuclear materials, radioactive substances, and radioactive waste. Operation procedures for radioactive waste storage sites.

13. Procedures for importing and exporting radioactive substances and nuclear materials into and from the Russian Federation.

14. Main safety requirements for planned placement and construction of nuclear installations, radiation sources, and storage points. Establishment of sanitary protection zones and observation zones.

Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare oral presentations for discussion at the practical session on the topics "Legislative Regulation of Environmental Safety," "System of Measures Aimed at Preventing Natural and Man-Made Emergencies."

Prepare oral presentations for discussion at the practical session on the topics "Extended Producer Responsibility for Waste Recycling," "Separate Collection of Municipal Solid Waste in Russia and Foreign Countries," "Specifics of Legal Regulation of Activities Related to Radioactive Waste and Production and Consumption Waste," "Safety Measures Against Radiation Accidents."

Practical Session 5. «Legal responsibility for environmental offenses». «Compensation for damage caused to the environment» (2 academic hours)

Questions for Preparation:

1. The concept, essence, and functions of legal liability for environmental offenses. Types of legal liability.

2. The concept of an environmental offense. Types of environmental offenses. The elements of an environmental offense.

3. Administrative liability for environmental offenses.

4. Criminal liability for environmental crimes.

5. Property liability for violations of environmental protection legislation.

6. Disciplinary and material liability for violations of environmental protection legislation.

7. The concept and types of environmental harm.

8. Legal regulation of compensation for harm caused to the environment and its individual components.

9. Legal regulation of the elimination of past (accumulated) harm caused to the environment.

Tasks for Preparation:

1. Problem solving

Solve problem № 1. Citizen K., residing in Murmansk, filed a lawsuit against the Water Utility due to harm caused to his health by the use of contaminated drinking water. A medical examination report was submitted to the court, confirming that the disease was caused by polluted drinking water. Additionally, the Murmansk Environmental Protection Committee presented the court with the results of water quality tests from the city's drinking water source, which proved that the excess of maximum permissible concentration (MPC) standards was caused by wastewater discharges from the Water Utility. However, it was also noted that the company had a permit for discharges exceeding the established norms of maximum permissible discharges (MPD) and had paid for discharges within the allowed limits. The court reviewed Citizen K.'s claim and issued the following decision:

- To grant the claim and obligate the Water Utility to fully compensate Citizen K. for health recovery costs and damages caused by water pollution.
- To dismiss the claim since there is no evidence of an offense in the actions of the enterprise.
- To grant the claim and require the enterprise to compensate for health recovery costs, but only in the amount necessary for additional nutrition.
- To dismiss the claim because there is no causal link between the actions of the enterprise and the resulting consequences.
 1. The position must be argued during the court hearing.
 2. Conduct a comparative analysis of Chapter 26 of the Criminal Code of the Russian Federation and Chapter 8 of the Code of Administrative Offenses of the Russian Federation, and determine the criteria for distinguishing between criminal and administrative liability for environmental offenses.

2. Problem solving

Solve problem № 2. The transport workshop foreman of the «Zhilstroy» Construction and Installation Directorate in Dubinsk, Khromov, to avoid responsibility for the idle tank containing emulsol (a type of petroleum product), instructed workers to drain 16 tons of emulsol into a ravine, at the bottom of which a stream FZows that feeds into a pond. In turn, the pond is connected to the Volga River via another river. As a result, the Volga River was polluted. According to expert estimates, the damage amounted to 22 million rubles.

Questions:

What type of liability can Khromov be subjected to? Are there grounds for initiating a criminal case?

3. Problem solving

Solve problem № 3. At one of the railway sidings in the Chuvash Republic, a freight train was derailed, with 24 cars going off the tracks. Phenol and diesel fuel spilled from the damaged cars onto the soil and into rivers. As a result of the train crash, the spread of toxic chemicals, and the outbreak of fire, significant harm was caused to the environment: severe soil contamination, pollution of groundwater and surface water, mass fish poisoning, and the death of other animals and algae in open water bodies. The total amount of damage amounted to 4 billion rubles. Additionally, a threat to citizens' health emerged.

The Volga Environmental Prosecutor filed a lawsuit in the arbitration court on behalf of the Ministry of Natural Resources (MNR) of the Chuvash Republic and in defense of state interests against OAO «Railways» (the owner of the railway) for the recovery of 4 billion rubles.

During the consideration of the case, the MNR of the Chuvash Republic and OAO «Railways» reached an out-of-court settlement agreement, which provided for the company to undertake measures to restore the damaged condition of the soil and the environment as a whole.

Questions:

What types and measures of liability and to which persons can be applied in this situation?

Does the conclusion of such a settlement agreement release legal entities and officials from any liability in the event of their guilt in the accident that occurred?

Practical lesson 6. «Legal regulation of the use and protection of mineral resources » (2 academic hours)

Questions for preparation:

1. Concept, content, principles, objects and subjects of subsoil use rights.
2. Types of subsoil use. Subsoil plots provided for use. State subsoil fund. Subsoil plots of federal and local significance. Federal fund of reserve subsoil plots.
3. Features of State Management in the Field of Ensuring the Rational Use and Protection of Subsoil Resources (division of powers between federal state authorities, state authorities of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation, maintaining the state cadastre of mineral deposits and occurrences, the state balance of mineral reserves, state accounting and registration, state examination of mineral reserves, state geological control (supervision), federal state mining supervision, and state monitoring of the condition of subsoil resources).
4. Procedure for Granting Subsoil Plots for Use under a Licensing System and under Production Sharing Agreements.
5. Specifics of granting subsoil plots of the Russian continental shelf for use.
6. Environmental Protection and Rational Use of Subsoil Requirements for the placement, design, construction, reconstruction, commissioning, operation, decommissioning, and conservation of enterprises engaged in mineral extraction and underground facilities not related to mineral extraction.
7. Basic Safety Requirements for conducting operations related to the use of subsoil resources.
8. Environmental Protection Requirements during the construction and operation of oil and gas production facilities located within water bodies, on the continental shelf, and in the exclusive economic zone of the Russian Federation.

Tasks for preparation:

Group work. Problem-solving.

For a number of years, construction companies have been operating a quarry to extract rubble and crushed stone in the Caucasus Mineral Waters region. Studies by the Institute of Resort Medicine have shown that these operations are destroying the resort's microclimate, polluting the mineral water, and contaminating its sources.

In response to demands from sanitary and epidemiological supervision authorities to halt the quarry operations, the companies claimed that stopping the stone extraction would cause irreparable harm to their economic activities since there are no similar deposits of construction stone in the adjacent regions of the European part of Russia.

Questions:

1. What principles and priorities, enshrined in the current legislation on environmental protection, should be followed in the competition of economic and environmental interests in the case under consideration?
2. Reveal the legal regime for the use of common minerals?

Practical lesson 7. «Legal regulation of the use and protection of waters» (2 academic hours)

Questions for preparation:

1. The concept, characteristics, and classification of water bodies.
2. The content, principles, objects, and subjects of water use rights.
3. The procedure and process for granting water bodies for use. Water use agreements. Decisions on granting water bodies for use.
4. Features of state management in the field of use and protection of water bodies (division of powers between federal state authorities and state authorities of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation in the area of water relations, basin districts, basin councils, state monitoring of water bodies, the state water register, hydrographic and water management zoning of the territory of the Russian Federation, schemes for the integrated use and protection of water bodies, state control (supervision) over the use and protection of water bodies).
5. Legal measures to protect water bodies from pollution, contamination, and depletion. Regulation of impacts on water bodies. Water protection zones and coastal protective strips.
6. Rights and obligations of owners of water bodies and water users in the use of water bodies.
7. Grounds for suspending, restricting, or terminating water use rights.
8. Legal measures for the protection of the marine environment.

Tasks for preparation:

Group work. Problem-solving.

LLC «Sanatorium» in the Moscow Region entered into an agreement for the right to use part of Lake Lesnoye for recreational purposes. Soon after, the sanatorium began repair work on its buildings. In order to obtain construction cement and to save on purchasing building materials, the sanatorium started extracting sand from the bottom of the lake within the allocated water area. Following a complaint from members of a nearby garden cooperative, environmental inspection authorities conducted a review of the ongoing operations to check compliance with environmental legislation.

Questions:

1. Were the requirements of environmental legislation violated by the Solnechny sanatorium? If so, which ones?
2. Explain the procedure for obtaining the right to extract sand from the bottom of water bodies?

Practical Session 8. «Legal Regulation of the Use and Protection of Forests» (2 academic hours)Questions for Preparation:

1. The concept of a forest and a forest plot. Relationships regulated by forest legislation. Categories of land on which forests are located.
2. Content, principles, objects, and subjects of forest use rights.
3. Types of forest use. Classification of forests by purpose. Requirements for forest use.
4. Features of state management in the field of forest use, protection, conservation, and reproduction (timber accounting and marking, division of powers between federal state authorities, state authorities of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation in the area of forest relations, forest planning documents (forest plan of the subject of the Russian Federation), forestry regulations of a forest district, state or municipal examination of forest development projects, state forest inventory, maintenance of the state forest register, state cadastral registration of forest plots, state registration of rights to forest plots and transactions with them, federal state forest control (supervision) (forest guard)).
5. Procedure and specifics of providing citizens and legal entities with forest plots located in state or municipal ownership.
6. Measures for the protection and conservation of forests (ensuring fire safety in forests, protective measures for forests, sanitary safety in forests, forest pathology monitoring, aviation operations for the protection and conservation of forests, protection of forests from radioactive contamination, protection of forests from oil pollution, protection of rare and endangered species of trees, shrubs, vines, and other forest plants, submission of reports on forest protection and conservation).
7. Procedure for carrying out activities for forest reproduction and afforestation.
8. Specifics of protecting protective forests and specially protected forest areas.

Tasks for Preparation:Group work. Problem-solving.

During a patrol of the forest fund territory, specialists from the Yugra Environmental Oversight identified that a company had caused oil contamination of a forest plot covering an area of 11,120 square meters. As a result, in addition to causing damage to the forest fund, soil destruction occurred, and harm was also caused to wildlife, including invertebrate animals. The Yugra Environmental Oversight is preparing a claim against the violator.

Questions:

1. Explain the concept of forest and forest area contained in the legislation.
2. In what ways and on the basis of what regulatory legal documents will the damage caused to each of the components of the environment - forest, soil and wildlife - be compensated?
3. Study the Resolution of the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation, which reveals the specifics of calculating the amount of damage caused to forests.

Practical Session 9. «Legal Regulation of the Use and Protection of Wildlife» (2 academic hours)Questions for Preparation:

1. The concept, content, principles, objects, and subjects of the right to use wildlife resources.
2. Features of state management in the field of use and protection of wildlife resources (division of powers between federal state authorities, state authorities of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation in the area of wildlife use and protection, state accounting and state cadastre of wildlife resources, state monitoring of wildlife resources, state supervision in the field of conservation, reproduction, and use of wildlife and their habitats, standardization in the area of wildlife use and protection and their habitats).
3. Types, methods, conditions, and procedures for using wildlife resources.
4. Rights and obligations of users of wildlife resources.
5. Measures for the protection of wildlife resources and their habitats.
6. Specifics of legal regulation of hunting and fishing.

Tasks for Preparation:Group work. Problem-solving.

I. LLC «Tahorg» conducts activities related to the use of wildlife classified as hunting resources within the hunting grounds of "Pandora," based on a hunting agreement concluded with the Hunting and Fisheries Committee of N Region and the Ministry of Natural Resources and Ecology of the Saratov Region. Due to non-payment of the fee for the use of wildlife resources and causing damage to wildlife, the Committee and the Ministry intend to file a lawsuit seeking the termination of the hunting agreement due to its substantial violation.

Questions:

1. What are the types of use of wildlife?
2. What are the basic rights and responsibilities of wildlife users?
3. What regulatory legal acts govern relations arising in connection with hunting and conservation of hunting resources?
4. On what basis does a person acquire the right to extract hunting resources?
5. What is a hunting management agreement?

6. What violations committed by the Company during the conclusion and execution of a hunting management agreement can be considered by the court as material? (give an example from arbitration judicial practice)
7. What are the grounds for termination of the right to use wildlife?

II. The North-Eastern Territorial Department of the Federal Agency for Fisheries, in accordance with Article 50 of the Federal Law of December 20, 2004, No. 166-FZ «On Fisheries and Conservation of Aquatic Biological Resources», approved an application from the Limited Liability Company «GOLD» to conduct evaluation and exploration work for alluvial gold, subject to the company implementing measures to preserve aquatic biological resources and their habitat, including through compensatory measures for the reproduction of aquatic biological resources. The Department informed the company of the need to compensate for the damage caused to aquatic biological resources and their habitat during the specified works by releasing 380,263 juveniles. The company refused to compensate for the damage, disagreeing with the assessed amount, prompting the Department to file a lawsuit demanding the company to compensate for the harm caused to fish stocks.

Questions:

1. Provide a legal basis for the claim of the Administration (see the Law on Environmental Protection, the Law on the Wildlife, the Law on Fisheries and the Conservation of Aquatic Biological Resources, the provisions of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation on compensation for damage caused).
2. Provide the basic principles of environmental protection on the basis of which, in this case, the plaintiff is not required to prove the fact of damage to aquatic biological resources.
3. What regulatory act establishes the procedure for coordinating the implementation of activities that impact aquatic biological resources and their habitat by the Federal Agency for Fisheries?
4. What are the methods for preserving aquatic biological resources and their habitat, and which method should be applied in this case?

Practical Session 10. «Legal regulation of the protection of atmospheric air». «Legal Regime of Specially Protected areas» (2 academic hours)

Questions for Preparation:

1. Legislation in the field of atmospheric air protection: general characteristics.
2. Requirements in the field of atmospheric air protection.
3. Procedure for establishing charges for environmental pollution by emissions of harmful (polluting) substances into the atmospheric air and other forms of impact on it.
4. Legal regulation of reducing greenhouse gas emissions.
5. The concept, categories, and types of specially protected territories and objects.

6. Procedure and specific features of organizing the protection of specially protected natural territories.
7. State accounting of specially protected natural territories.

Tasks for Preparation:

Analyze the main international agreements in the field of atmospheric air protection (UNECE Convention on Long-Range Transboundary Air Pollution of 1979, Vienna Convention for the Protection of the Ozone Layer of 1985, Montreal Protocol on Substances that Deplete the Ozone Layer of 1987, Activities of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change (IPCC), UN Framework Convention on Climate Change of 1992, Kyoto Protocol, Marrakesh Accords, Paris Agreement on Climate).

Analyze the Statute of the World Network of Biosphere Reserves, approved by Resolution 27C/2.3 of the UNESCO General Conference on March 20-25, 1995, in Seville (Spain).

Analyze the legislation of the constituent entities of the Russian Federation in the field of creating and functioning geoparks.

2.4. Independent Work

- Types of independent work;
- Forms of independent work (writing essays, preparing reports, writing summaries, creating glossaries, developing projects (individual or group), completing case assignments, compiling thematic portfolios, conducting information searches, developing multimedia presentations, constructing summary tables) with specified topics and tasks.
- Model (features) of independent work for students on individual sections and topics of the discipline (module) in full-time education.

2.4.1. Types of Independent Work

In the process of mastering the academic discipline (module) «Environmental Law», students perform the following types of independent work:

- Note-taking (creating summaries) of lectures;
- Completing assignments;
- Solving problems;
- Working with reference and methodological literature;
- Working with normative legal acts;
- Delivering presentations or reports during seminars;
- Defending completed works;
- Participating in quick (current) quizzes on specific topics of the studied discipline;
- Participating in interviews, business (role-playing) games, discussions, round tables, and conferences;
- Participating in testing, etc.

2.4.2. Forms of Independent Work

Independent work by students outside of class time can include:

- Reviewing lecture material;
- Preparing for seminars (practical sessions);
- Studying educational and scientific literature while covering sections of the course designated for independent work;
- Working with normative legal acts (including electronic databases);
- Solving problems assigned during practical sessions;
- Preparing for tests, quizzes, etc.;
- Preparing oral presentations (reports) for seminars;
- Writing essays, term papers, and other individual written assignments given by the instructor;
- Completing term papers as provided for in the curriculum.

2.4.3. Model (Features) of Independent Work for Students on Individual Sections and Topics of the Discipline (Module) in Full-Time Education

Topic 1. «Environmental Problems in the Modern World». «Environmental Law of the Russian Federation»

Tasks for Preparation:

Characterize the state of the environment in the Russian Federation using materials from the State Report of the Ministry of Natural Resources and Ecology of the Russian Federation titled "On the State and Protection of the Environment of the Russian Federation," as well as materials from other federal government bodies responsible for environmental protection, natural resource use, and ensuring ecological safety, including statistical reporting data.

Study scholarly works by leading Russian scientists on the system and structure of environmental law, its correlation with other branches of Russian law, and methods of legal regulation of environmental relations.

Familiarize yourself with the Report of the International Commission on Environment and Development «Our Common Future» (M., Progress, 1989).

Provide a characterization of the main functions of environmental law as a branch of law, science, and academic discipline.

Name the primary objects, goals, objectives, and types of environmental relations.

Present a classification of the principles of environmental law.

Explain the correlation of environmental law with other branches of law.

List the main legal categories and concepts of environmental law, as well as the institutions of general and special parts of environmental law.

Topic 2. «Sources of Environmental Law»

Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare a draft of the «Environmental Code of the Russian Federation».

Create a list (scheme) of state strategic planning documents covering all types of natural resources.

Topic 3. «Environmental Rights of Citizens and Non-Profit Organizations»

Tasks for Preparation:

Define the content of environmental rights and other rights in the field of environmental protection and natural resource use. Highlight the key distinguishing features.

Study the information legislation regulating relations in the area of access to environmental information. Prepare an essay on the topic: «Sources and Procedures for Obtaining Environmental Information».

Create a comparative table titled «Environmental Rights of Citizens in Russian and Foreign Legislation».

Topic 4. «Ownership Rights to Natural Resources and Objects»

Tasks for Preparation:

Explain the concept, content, forms, and types of ownership rights to natural resources and objects.

Characterize state ownership of natural resources and objects, as well as the procedure for its delimitation.

Characterize municipal ownership of natural resources and objects.

Explain the concept and content of private ownership of natural resources and objects.

List the restrictions on private ownership rights established by current environmental protection and natural resource legislation.

Prepare oral presentations for discussion during practical sessions on the topics: «The Concept of State Ownership of Natural Objects» and «The Procedure for Delimiting State Ownership of Natural Objects».

Topic 5. «The Right to Natural Resource Use»

Questions for Preparation:

1. The concept of the right to natural resource use, types, and principles.
2. Subjects of the right to natural resource use. Rights and obligations of natural resource users.
3. Objects of the right to natural resource use.
4. The right to general and special natural resource use.
5. Grounds for the emergence, modification, and termination of the right to natural resource use.
6. Payment for the use of natural resources and environmental pollution.

Tasks for Preparation:

Explain the concept of the right to natural resource use in both objective and subjective senses.

Classify natural resource use into types based on objects, intended purpose, duration, and grounds for emergence.

Describe the content of general and special natural resource use.

Characterize the objects and subjects of the right to natural resource use.

List the rights and obligations of natural resource users.

Topic 6. «Environmental Management in the Russian Federation»Tasks for Preparation:

Explain the concept, types, main objectives, and principles of environmental management in the Russian Federation.

Analyze the system and structure of bodies responsible for state environmental management in the Russian Federation and describe their main powers.

List the primary functions of environmental protection management and provide a brief description of each function.

Prepare an oral presentation for a practical session on the topic «Legal Regulation of the Use of Best Available Techniques (BAT)».

Create a diagram of bodies with general and specialized competencies in the field of environmental management.

Topic 7. «Economic Regulation in the Field of Environmental Protection. Standardization in the Field of Environmental Protection, Technical Regulation, Environmental Licensing, and Certification»Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare oral presentations for a practical session on the topics: «Licensing in the Field of Natural Resource Use and Environmental Protection», «The Institution of Standardization in Environmental Law», and «Best Available Technologies in Russia and Foreign Countries».

Draft a project for an environmental certificate; / a license for the use of natural resources; / projects of regulatory and technical or instructional and methodological documents in the field of environmental protection; / an environmental passport project; / an environmental declaration.

Topic 8. «Environmental Impact Assessment. Environmental Expertise»Tasks for Preparation:*Problem Solving.

Following an inspection of the Company's activities regarding compliance with Russian Federation legislation on nature management and environmental protection, the Federal Service for Supervision of Natural Resource Usage (Rosprirodnadzor) revealed that the company had been conducting commercial crab fishing operations on the Russian Federation's continental shelf using a vessel it owned, based on a fishing permit issued by the Rosselkhoznadzor Administration for the Sakhalin Region. This was done without a positive conclusion from the state environmental review, which in turn served as grounds for imposing administrative liability.

The company filed a claim with the Arbitration Court of the Sakhalin Region requesting the recognition as illegal and the cancellation of the decision to impose administrative liability.

According to the appellant's argument, activities related to the extraction of aquatic biological resources are not subject to state environmental expertise.

Solve the case.

Topic 9. «Information Support for Natural Use and Environmental Protection in the Russian Federation»

Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare a list of state information systems in the field of accounting for natural resources, natural objects, as well as sources that have a negative impact on the environment.

Topic 10. «Control (Supervision) in the Field of Environmental Protection (Environmental Control)»

Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare a script for conducting a scheduled inspection of an economic activity site that has a negative impact on the environment. (Participants: a state inspector from Federal Service for Supervision of Natural Resource Usage, a representative of a legal entity, representatives of the authorities of a constituent entity of the Russian Federation, and representatives of the public).

Topic 11. «Environmental Protection Requirements for Economic and Other Activities»

Tasks for Preparation:

Analyze judicial and arbitration practices related to disputes involving administrative liability for violating environmental protection requirements during various types of economic and other activities.

Topic 12. «Legal support for environmental safety»

Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare oral presentations for a practical session on the topics: «Legislative Regulation of Environmental Safety» and «The System of Measures Aimed at Preventing Natural and Man-Made Emergencies».

Topic 13. «Legal Requirements for Handling Production and Consumption Waste and Radioactive Waste»

Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare oral presentations for a practical session on the topics: «Extended Producer Responsibility for Waste Recycling», «Separate Collection of Municipal Solid Waste in Russia and Foreign Countries», «Specifics of Legal Regulation of Activities Related to Handling Radioactive Waste and Production and Consumption Waste», «Measures to Ensure Safety from Radiation Accidents».

Topic 13. «Legal responsibility for environmental offenses»

Tasks for Preparation:

Problem solving

During the consideration of the case, the MNR of the Chuvash Republic and OAO «Railways» reached an out-of-court settlement agreement, which provided for the company to undertake measures to restore the damaged condition of the soil and the environment as a whole.

Questions:

What types and measures of liability and to which persons can be applied in this situation?

Does the conclusion of such a settlement agreement release legal entities and officials from any liability in the event of their guilt in the accident that occurred?

Topic 15. «Compensation for damage caused to the environment»Tasks for Preparation:

Prepare a report on the topic: «The Mechanism of Compensation for Harm Caused to the Health of Citizens, Property of Individuals, and Legal Entities by an Environmental Offense».

Topic 16. «Legal Regulation of the Use and Protection of mineral Resources»Tasks for Preparation:*Problem solving.

For several years, construction organizations have been developing a quarry for the extraction of rubble and crushed stone in the Caucasus Mineral Waters mountains. In response to demands from sanitary and epidemiological supervision authorities to cease quarry operations, the organizations claimed that halting stone extraction would cause irreparable harm to economic activities, as there are no similar deposits of construction stone in the adjacent regions of the European part of Russia.

Questions:

1. What principles and priorities enshrined in the current environmental protection legislation should be followed when balancing economic and ecological interests in this case?
2. Explain the legal regime for the use of widespread mineral resources?

Topic 17. «Legal regulation of the use and protection of waters»

Tasks for Preparation:

Problem solving.

LLC «Sanatorium» in the Moscow Region entered into an agreement for the right to use part of Lake Lesnoye for recreational purposes. Soon after, the sanatorium began repair work on its buildings. In order to obtain construction cement and to save on purchasing building materials, the sanatorium started extracting sand from the bottom of the lake within the allocated water area. 1. Explain the concept of forest and forest area contained in the legislation.
2. In what ways and on the basis of what regulatory legal documents will the damage caused to each of the components of the environment - forest, soil and wildlife - be compensated?
3. Study the Resolution of the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation, which reveals the specifics of calculating the amount of damage caused to forests.

Topic 19. «Legal Regulation of the Use and Protection of Wildlife»

Tasks for Preparation:

Problem solving.

I. LLC «Tahorg» conducts activities related to the use of wildlife classified as hunting resources within the hunting grounds of "Pandora," based on a hunting agreement concluded with the Hunting and Fisheries Committee of N Region and the Ministry of Natural Resources and Ecology of the Saratov Region. Due to non-payment of the fee for the use of wildlife resources and causing damage to wildlife, the Committee and the Ministry intend to file a lawsuit seeking the termination of the hunting agreement due to its substantial violation.

Questions:

1. What are the types of use of wildlife?
2. What are the basic rights and responsibilities of wildlife users?
3. What regulatory legal acts govern relations arising in connection with hunting and conservation of hunting resources?
4. On what basis does a person acquire the right to extract hunting resources?
5. What is a hunting management agreement?
6. What violations committed by the Company during the conclusion and execution of a hunting management agreement can be considered by the court as material? (give an example from arbitration judicial practice)
7. What are the grounds for termination of the right to use wildlife?

II. The North-Eastern Territorial Department of the Federal Agency for Fisheries, in accordance with Article 50 of the Federal Law of December 20, 2004, № 166-FZ «On Fisheries and Conservation of Aquatic Biological Resources», approved an application from the Limited Liability Company «GOLD» to conduct evaluation and exploration work for alluvial gold, subject to the company implementing measures to preserve aquatic biological resources and their habitat, including through compensatory measures for the reproduction of aquatic biological resources. 10. Goals, significance, and procedure for reserving land for state and municipal needs.
11. State cadastral registration of land plots.
12. Authority of local self-government bodies in the field of land relations.
13. Specifics of providing land plots for purposes not related to construction.
14. Land management as a function of state administration in the field of land relations.
15. Implementation of the principle of unity of land plots and objects permanently attached to them in current Russian legislation.
16. Legal regime of agricultural lands.
17. Legal regime of urban lands.

18. Zoning as a method of establishing the legal regime of territories and land plots.
19. Land plot as an object of land relations.
20. Intended purpose and permitted use of a land plot.

Sample Model Assignments for Full-Time Students:

1. Independent preparation of tests on the topic under study for solving during practical sessions.
2. Determining the legal regime of a land plot using its cadastral number through the public cadastral map.
3. Preparing to participate in a discussion on the topic of the session.
4. Drafting a legal opinion on the proposed situation.
5. Analyzing proposed land plot title documents.
6. Creating comparative and contrasting tables on the topic under study.
7. Preparing presentations on the topic under study.

Situation Analysis:

1. Qualification of the disputed land legal relationship.
2. Identifying the list of norms regulating this legal relationship, with references to relevant regulatory legal acts.
3. Developing a legal position for one of the parties involved in the disputed land legal relationship in the proposed situation.
4. Evaluating the legality of actions taken by a specific subject in the proposed situation.
5. Creating an algorithm of actions for various subjects of land legal relationships in the proposed situation.
6. Identifying types of evidence to resolve the proposed disputed situation.
7. Drafting an interview plan for a client based on the proposed situation.

Creation of Comparative Tables and Diagrams:

1. «Types of Land Legal Relationships» indicating the type of relationship, subject composition, and objects.
2. Grounds for the emergence of ownership rights of state and municipal entities in the Russian Federation.
3. The system of other rights to land plots.
4. Norms of Chapter VII of the Land Code of the Russian Federation (LC RF) and Articles 235, 276, 283, and 287 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation (CC RF).
5. Authorities carrying out state land supervision and their powers.
6. Correlation between the concepts of «populated locality» and «urban and rural settlement».
7. Changes in the status of lands based on key characteristics over the past five years.
8. Types of lands in this category and corresponding zones with special conditions for territorial use, characteristic of each type.

9. The ratio of forested and non-forested lands within the lands of the forest fund.

Creation of Action Algorithms:

1. For altering the boundary of a populated locality for an interested private individual.

Discussion:

1. Features of the legal regulation of land relations.

Information Search:

1. In the legal information systems «ConsultantPlus» or «Garant», find and review the general list of sources regulating the use and protection of lands in the Russian Federation.

2. In the legal information systems «ConsultantPlus» or «Garant», find and compile a list of laws of the subjects of the Russian Federation regulating land relations (using any subject of the Russian Federation as an example).

3. On court websites, identify the most common types of land offenses.

4. Using the public cadastral map, determine the legal regime of land plots with specified cadastral numbers.

5. Using the official websites of administrations of urban and rural settlements or urban districts (at the student's choice), find and review the land use and development regulations of a specific settlement or urban district.

Case Study Execution:

Case 1. A long-term lease agreement for a land plot was concluded between the administration of a municipal entity (lessor) and a company (lessee). Subsequently, during the delineation of state property, ownership of this land plot was registered with the Russian Federation. As a result, an agreement was made between the parties of the contract and the Territorial Department of Rosimushchestvo (hereinafter referred to as "the Department") to transfer the rights and obligations of the lessor under the aforementioned lease agreement to the Russian Federation.

The lease agreement also included a provision stating that, upon termination of the contract, the lessee is obligated to pay rent for the use of the land plot until the moment of state registration of the termination of the contract.

Subsequently, in accordance with a municipal contract, the real estate located on the land plot was transferred from the company's ownership to municipal ownership.

In this regard, the company approached the Department with a proposal to terminate the previously concluded land plot lease agreement. The Department agreed to terminate the contract but only after full repayment of the rental debt up to the moment of state registration of the termination of the contract.

The company filed a lawsuit demanding the termination of the land plot lease agreement.

Questions:

1. What is the fate of the land plot lease agreement when the real estate located on it is alienated?
2. Does the replacement of the land plot lessee occur when the real estate object located on this plot is alienated, transferring to the acquirer of this object?
3. Is a party that has exited the lease legal relationship entitled to demand the termination of the land plot lease agreement?
4. From what moment does the former lessee's obligation to pay rent cease?

Case 2. In 2020, a joint-stock company (JSC) acquired a building through a purchase-sale agreement. The land plot on which the building stands had been granted to the seller of the building under the right of perpetual (unlimited) use. The JSC, believing that according to paragraph 1 of Article 35 of the Land Code of the Russian Federation, the right of perpetual (unlimited) use of the corresponding land plot had transferred to them, applied to the territorial division of Rosreestr with a request for state registration of the right of perpetual (unlimited) use. Rosreestr refused the company's application for state registration of the right of perpetual (unlimited) use.

Questions:

1. If the owner of a building or structure did not re-register the right of perpetual (unlimited) use of the land plot occupied by their building or structure before its sale, what right transfers to the purchaser of the building or structure?
2. Was Rosreestr's refusal to register the right of perpetual (unlimited) use of the land plot lawful?
3. What types of rights can the company register for this land plot and in what order?

Case 3. An individual entrepreneur, X, filed a lawsuit with the regional Arbitration Court against the Department of Architecture and Urban Planning, seeking recognition of ownership of real estate property: an administrative building with a trade exhibition hall, with a total area of 1060.7 square meters, two FZoots, located at: region, city, street, house.

According to the case materials, on September 2, 2013, the Committee for the Management of Municipal Property (lessor) and individual entrepreneur X (lessee) entered into a lease agreement for land plot № 14028 for construction purposes. Under this agreement, the lessor leased to the lessee a land plot from populated areas with an area of 1200 square meters located at: region, city, street, for the purpose of constructing an administrative building with trade exhibition halls; a standalone commercial building; and a standalone commercial-purpose building. The lease term was from August 30, 2013, to August 29, 2020. The lease agreement was duly registered.

On November 15, 2013, the Department of Architecture issued a land development plan for the above-mentioned land plot.

In accordance with the construction permit issued on June 6, 2014, X was granted the right to carry out construction of the administrative building with a trade exhibition hall on the specified land plot by June 6, 2020.

Based on the said permit, the plaintiff completed the construction of the administrative building with a trade exhibition hall.

Entrepreneur X applied to the Department of Architecture on June 8, 2020, for permission to commission the constructed real estate object.

The Department of Architecture refused to issue a permit for the commissioning of the real estate object based on part 6 of Article 55 of the Urban Planning Code of the Russian Federation, citing a violation of the permissible location of the object.

Question:

What decision will the regional Arbitration Court make?

Case 4. An open joint-stock company (OJSC) filed a lawsuit with the arbitration court to have a governor's resolution on the expropriation of a land plot for state needs declared invalid.

The first-instance court granted the company's claim, as the expropriation of the plot contradicted applicable legislation.

During the trial, it was established that the OJSC is the owner of the land plot. The governor of the federal subject issued a resolution to expropriate the plot. Disagreeing with this decision, the company appealed to the court. In its ruling, the court relied on Article 49 of the Land Code of the Russian Federation (LC RF), which allows land expropriation only in exceptional cases when no other options exist for placing objects of state or municipal significance. In urban settlements, land plots may be expropriated for construction in accordance with the general plan and land-use regulations (Article 83 of the LC RF).

From these legislative provisions, it follows that the decision to expropriate a land plot must be justified. Since the governor's contested resolution did not specify the purposes of expropriation, the court requested information about the objects planned to be placed on the disputed land. This requirement was not fulfilled. Therefore, the court granted the OJSC's claims.

Question:

Evaluate the legality of the court's decision.

Case 5. An individual entrepreneur filed a lawsuit with the arbitration court to have the mayor's order on the expropriation of a land plot for municipal needs declared invalid. The courts of the first instance and the cassation instance granted the entrepreneur's claims, as the administration failed to prove that the reasons for expropriation were exceptional and consistent with the list provided in Article 49 of the Land Code of the Russian Federation (LC RF).

According to the case materials, the mayor issued a resolution instructing the municipal property relations department to expropriate the land plot by purchasing it from the entrepreneur for municipal needs—specifically, for the construction of a children’s playground. Disagreeing with this decision, the entrepreneur filed a lawsuit.

During the trial, it was established that the disputed land plot belongs to the entrepreneur as their property. Defending the legality of its position, the mayor’s office stated that locating the playground elsewhere was impossible, so the expropriation decision complied with Article 49 of the LC RF.

The court correctly ruled this position illegal, as the cases of expropriation for municipal needs under Article 49 of the LC RF are exceptional, and constructing a children’s playground does not fall within the list of objects for which expropriation is permitted.

Based on the above, the entrepreneur’s claim to declare the mayor’s resolution on the expropriation of the land plot for municipal needs invalid was rightfully granted.

Question:

Evaluate the legality of the court decisions.

Case 6. A limited liability company (LLC) filed a lawsuit with the arbitration court to have the head of a municipal entity’s resolution "On Expropriation and Approval of Land Plot Boundaries" declared invalid. According to the company, the resolution violated its rights, and the procedure for expropriating the land did not comply with current legislation. The first-instance court granted the claims, but the appellate instance dismissed the case, and the cassation instance upheld the appellate decision.

The case materials revealed that the head of the municipal entity had issued a resolution approving the boundaries of the land plot for the construction of five-story residential buildings, with subsequent transfer of the land to the LLC (the applicant) for lease.

Later, it was established that within the boundaries of the specified land, there were public-use areas designated for road construction, as well as a plot where a nine-story residential building was planned to be constructed by the municipality according to the general plan. These circumstances served as the basis for adopting a resolution to amend the resolution approving the land plot boundaries. The newly adopted resolution excluded the public-use areas and the plot intended for the nine-story building from the lands that were to be transferred to the LLC. Believing its rights to be violated, the LLC filed a lawsuit to have the resolution on the expropriation of the land declared invalid.

In support of its claims, the LLC argued that the municipality violated Article 49 of the Land Code by failing to comply with the list of grounds for expropriation specified in that article. The applicant also claimed that the authority to make expropriation decisions lies with the state authority of the federal subject (Article 279 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation).

The first-instance court declared the municipal resolution invalid, as, in its opinion, local self-government bodies lack the authority to revoke previously adopted resolutions, which can only be amended or revoked through judicial proceedings. This conclusion is not based on the Federal Law "On General Principles of Local Self-Government Organization in the Russian Federation," which, under Article 48, allows municipal legal acts to be revoked or suspended by local self-government bodies and officials who issued them. Therefore, the appellate court correctly noted the illegality of this conclusion.

During the trial, the appellate court established that the LLC did not acquire rights to the land plot, as the contested resolution did not transfer the land to the company, nor was a lease agreement concluded.

Question:

Evaluate the legality of the positions taken by the first-instance arbitration court and the appellate court.

Case 7. The Department of Property and Land Relations of the regional administration and the state budgetary institution "Road Management Administration of the Regional Administration" filed a lawsuit against Sh. for the compulsory purchase of a land plot.

The court established that, by a resolution of the regional governor dated February 15, 2020, a decision was made to expropriate land plots for state needs to construct a bridge crossing. Included in the list of plots to be expropriated was the land plot owned by Sh. Notification of the decision and its registration, along with a draft purchase agreement for the land plot, were sent to the former owner of the land plot, B.

By a decision of the city court, the claims of the Department of Property and Land Relations of the regional administration and the state budgetary institution "Road Management Administration of the Regional Administration" against Sh. for the compulsory purchase of the land plot were dismissed.

Question:

Evaluate the legality of the court's decision.

V. LOGISTICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Provision of the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the academic discipline (module) is posted on the Digital scientific, educational and social Network of the University (hereinafter - CNOSS), in the system of which the "Electronic personal cabinets of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" function. Access to the materials is possible by entering an individual password. CNOSS is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that ensures information interaction between all participants in the educational process of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL), including providing them with publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services based on applied information systems of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL).

Throughout the entire period of study, each student is provided with individual unrestricted access to electronic library systems (e-libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL). In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unrestricted access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and legal reference systems connected at the O.E. University. Kutafina (MSAL) on the basis of licensing agreements, and having adapted versions of websites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (e-library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access for 100 percent of students from anywhere with access to the Internet information and telecommunications network, both on the territory of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

The Library's electronic resource collection includes the following legal reference systems, databases, and electronic library systems:

By what percentage can the amount of rent deviate from the market when concluding a lease agreement?
9. When selling the debtor's land plots at auction, the organizer of the auction allocated VAT in their value and paid it to the budget. In the debtor's opinion, the unlawful withholding and payment of VAT to the budget resulted in the failure to satisfy the recoverer's claims in full and the debtor's failure to receive the remaining money. Resolve the dispute.
10. The taxpayer applied to the Federal Tax Service with a request for a refund of the state fee paid when applying to the court. The tax authorities indicated to the taxpayer that they would give an answer after verification and, for these purposes, requested materials from the court in a civil case to resolve issues about the legality of collecting state duty. The taxpayer did not agree with the stated approach of the tax authority and appealed to the court. Resolve the dispute.
11. Does the taxpayer's income include the material benefit provided by income tax, received in the form of savings on interest for the use of internally displaced persons borrowed funds allocated by the migration service in the form of a long-term interest-free loan from the federal budget for construction and housing?
12. The taxpayer organization has a legal department, which consists of 10 lawyers. The taxpayer organization concluded a civil law contract with a lawyer and attributed these expenses to expenses. The tax inspectors refused to attribute these expenses to expenses, because (in their opinion) the contract with the lawyer duplicates the functions of the employees. Resolve the dispute. What difference will it make when a lawyer wins or loses a case?
13. The citizen carried out criminal drug trafficking activities and received income in the amount of 1 million rubles. Determine whether it is necessary and permissible to tax the income earned by the criminal?
14. A citizen stole a computer from an organization, for which he was sentenced to a year of probation. The computer was not found. Should a stolen computer be recognized as a criminal's income and its value taxed? Is it acceptable to equalize (for tax purposes) the destruction and transfer of ownership of goods? Is it necessary to restore the previously deductible value-added tax in case of disposal of property as a result of theft?
15. A foreign citizen came to Russia for 3 months to give lectures and conduct a master class under an agreement with a commercial university. As a result of this activity, he was paid 60,000 rubles. In this case, should a foreign citizen pay income tax on individuals?
16. The income from the trading activities of individual entrepreneur Petrov A.R. for the reporting period amounted to 80,000 rubles. He cannot document his expenses. When submitting his tax return, he wrote an application for a professional deduction in the amount of 20% of the amount of income received. Determine the amount of the professional tax deduction. Calculate the tax.

17. During the tax period, the Organization produced 700 passenger cars with an engine capacity of 121 horsepower, of which one car was donated to the city ambulance station, 200 cars were exported and 299 cars were sold at a market value of 336,000 rubles. Determine the tax base and the amount of the excise tax.

18. Since February 2018, the organization has been trading Volga passenger cars on the basis of an appropriate license. The organization is located in Orenburg. It is necessary to determine whether this organization is a transport tax payer.

19. The Kosmos Sports Society (located in Syktyvkar) acquired two sports sailing vessels in January 2018, the engine power of one is 145 horsepower, the engine power of the other is 168 horsepower. Will these vehicles be taxed?

V. LOGISTICS

5.1. Providing the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational and Social Network of the University (hereinafter referred to as the CSOSS), in the system of which the "Electronic personal accounts of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" operate. Access to the materials is possible through the introduction of an individual password. The CSOSS is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that provides information interaction for all participants in the educational process of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), including the provision of publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services operating on the basis of applied information systems of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL).

During the entire period of study, each student is provided with individual unlimited access to electronic library systems (electronic libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL). In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and legal reference systems connected at the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) on the basis of license agreements, and having adapted versions of sites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (electronic library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access to 100 percent of students from any point where there is access to the information and telecommunication network "Internet", both on the territory of the Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

The Library's collection of electronic resources includes the following legal reference systems, databases and electronic library systems:

I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

1.1 Aims and Objectives of the Discipline (Module)

The aim of the discipline (module) «Предпринимательское право (Business law)» is to equip students with an understanding of the essence of fundamental legal constructs, the doctrinal foundations of entrepreneurial activity, and the skills to interpret legal norms and apply them to practical scenarios. Additionally, the discipline introduces students to contemporary theoretical issues in entrepreneurial law and challenges in legal enforcement.

To achieve this aim, the following objectives are pursued, each contributing incrementally to the overarching goal:

- To develop foundational knowledge of business law as a complex branch of law;
- To cultivate the ability to engage in interactive learning formats (seminars, workshops, etc.);
- To train students in searching, interpreting, and applying normative legal acts and legal documents;
- To foster proficiency in studying academic literature, articulating ideas, and participating in scholarly discussions;
- To build skills in selecting, analyzing, and debating monographs and other academic research;
- To teach methods for identifying and interpreting judicial practice;
- To develop competence in producing written academic and legal works.

1.2 Position of the Discipline (Module) in the Educational Program

The discipline (module) «Предпринимательское право (Business law)» is part of the mandatory core (Block B1.O) of the Higher Education Professional Program.

Mastery of this discipline enables students to expand and deepen knowledge acquired in prior stages of study while acquiring skills aligned with the program's objectives. The competencies developed through this discipline are essential for successful professional practice. Students will learn to independently identify and utilize substantive-logical connections with related disciplines, such as: «Гражданское право (модуль) (Civil Law (module))», «Финансовое право (Financial Law)», «Налоговое право (модуль) (Tax Law (module))», «Арбитражный процесс (Arbitration procedure)», «Банковское право (Banking law)», «Право интеллектуальной собственности (Intellectual property law)», «Корпоративное право (Corporate law)».

1.3 Competencies and Achievement Indicators (Planned Learning Outcomes)

Upon completing the «Предпринимательское право (Business law)» discipline (module), students shall demonstrate the following competencies in accordance with the Federal State Educational Standard of Higher Education (FSES HE):

Universal Competencies (UC):

- UC-2 – Ability to identify tasks aligned with defined goals and select optimal solutions based on legal norms, available resources, and constraints.
- UC-3 – Capacity for social interaction and effective teamwork.
- UC-10 – Ability to make informed economic decisions across diverse contexts.

General Professional Competencies (GPC):

- GPC-2 – Ability to apply substantive and procedural legal norms in professional practice.
- GPC-3 – Capacity to contribute to legal expert activities within assigned tasks.
- GPC-4 – Proficiency in the professional interpretation of legal norms.
- GPC-5 – Ability to construct logical, well-argued oral and written discourse using precise and consistent legal terminology.

Professional Competencies (PC):

- PC-4 – Ability to provide legal assistance to individuals and organizations, deliver qualified legal opinions and consultations, and offer specialized legal services in specific areas of practice.

2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.
3. Prepare a written summary of all the issues to be discussed according to the seminar session plan.
4. Give examples of using the principle of national treatment and exceptions to it. Give examples of the most-favored-nation regime.
5. Indicate the specifics of international responsibility for violations of the WTO law.

6. Distinguish between the goals and objectives of the IMF, IBRD, IDA, IFC, and MIGA. It is necessary to determine the powers of each organization to answer whether their functions are duplicated.

7. Give examples of the definition of "foreign investment" from international agreements, as well as from the ICSID practice.

8. Analyze one of the agreements of the Russian Federation on the avoidance of double taxation.

Additionally:

1. Give a brief description of international agreements on the limitation of "offshore" business.
2. Analyze the provisions of specific bilateral international trade agreements in terms of their dispute resolution provisions (optional).
3. Choose one of the integration associations and give a qualification of its institutional and legal form on the basis of the theoretical material on this issue.

4. Analyze the features of the appropriate institutional and legal form of integration in the Eurasian Economic Union, guided by the norms of the GATT.

Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 11.

Seminar 13. Topic 12. International maritime law

Plan:

1. International maritime law: concept, principles, institutions.
2. Sources of international maritime law. The 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea: development, adoption, structure, significance, and new institutes of the branch.
3. Internal sea waters, "historical" waters: concept, composition, legal regime, examples. The legal regime of ports. Legislation of the Russian Federation.
4. Territorial sea: concept, width, legal regime, right of innocent passage. Legislation of the Russian Federation.
5. Contiguous zone.
6. Exclusive economic zone: concept, width, legal regime, sovereign rights and jurisdiction of coastal States. Legislation of the Russian Federation.
7. Continental shelf: concept, width, legal regime, sovereign rights of coastal States. Legislation of the Russian Federation.
8. High seas: concept, freedoms of the high seas, rights and obligations of the flag State, "hot pursuit".
9. Legal regime of the International Seabed Area. The procedure of development of the resources in the Area. International seabed Authority.
10. International legal fight against piracy.

Assignments for the seminar:

1. Study the main and additional literature on the topic of the seminar session.
2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.
3. Prepare a written summary of all the issues to be discussed according to the seminar session plan.
4. Draw up a scheme on maritime spaces established by the UNCLOS and indicate the legal regime in each case. Where is the State border at sea?
5. What maritime areas are part of the State territory?
6. Identify the differences between the legal regime of inland sea waters and the territorial sea.
7. One of the issues discussed at the Third United Nations Conference on the Law of the Sea (1973-1982) was the issue of the maximum width of the territorial sea. As is known, in the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea, adopted as a result of the conference, this limit was fixed at a distance of not more than 12 nautical miles from the baselines. Please specify as a result of what compromise this agreement was reached, given that by the time the Convention was adopted many States had "secured" territorial seas significantly exceeding the specified limit. What new institutes of international maritime law were established as a result of the UNCLOS adoption?

8. What are the differences between maritime piracy and armed robbery at sea?
 9. Draw up a diagram illustrating the boundaries of the continental shelf.
 10. Based on the website of the Commission on the Limits of the Continental Shelf, analyze one of the applications for the extended continental shelf. What are the problems of the Russian submission for the extended continental shelf in the Arctic Ocean and what are its prospects?
 11. Based on the website of the International Seabed Authority, provide examples of contracts for exploration and/or development of the Area's resources.
- Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 12.

Seminar 14. Topic 13. Territory in international law

Plan:

1. Territory in international law: concept, meaning, types.
2. State territories, territories under the international regime (high seas, international seabed area, outer space and celestial bodies, international airspace, Antarctica), territories under the mixed regime (continental shelf, contiguous zone, exclusive economic zone).
3. State territory: concept, elements, regime. Problems of delimitation of state territories. Territorial delimitation in the Barents, Bering and Caspian Seas. The issue of the Kuril Islands, Russia's position.
4. International rivers: concept and legal regime. Convention regarding the regime of navigation on the Danube of 1948
4. The Arctic: concept, its legal regime. The Arctic continental shelf. The legislation of Russia and other Arctic states on Arctic spaces. The Northern Sea Route.
6. International legal regime of Antarctica: concept, principles. The Antarctic Treaty of 1959 and its system. Development of Antarctic mineral resources. Protection of living resources. Consultative meetings.

Assignments for the seminar:

1. Study the main and additional literature on the topic of the seminar session.
2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.
3. Prepare a written summary of all the issues to be discussed according to the seminar session plan.
4. Determine how state borders are determined on land, along lakes, rivers, reservoirs. Where is the border of the state (sovereign) airspace? What are the problems with delimitation of the subsurface?
5. What is the problem of demarcation in the Caspian Sea? What suggestions are there in this regard?
6. Give examples of unresolved territorial issues in the world.
7. What is the meaning of the "sector theory" in the Arctic? What countries adhere to it? What is its future, in your opinion?
8. What are the problems of the Antarctic international legal regime?

9. How does the Arctic differ from Antarctica from the point of view of international law?

10. How does delimitation differ from demarcation? Give examples of both.

Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 13.

Seminar 15. Topic 14. International space law

Plan:

1. International space law: concept, formation, development, subject matter, subjects. The role of Russia.
2. Special principles of international space law.
2. Sources of international economic law.
4. The legal regime of outer space and celestial bodies. The problem of the high-altitude border of state sovereignty.
5. Legal regime of artificial space objects.
6. Legal status of astronauts.
7. Commercial and legal aspects of the use of outer space.
8. International legal responsibility for space activities.
9. Russia and international space law.

Assignments for the seminar:

1. Study the main and additional literature on the topic of the seminar session.
2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.
3. Prepare a written summary of all the issues to be discussed according to the seminar session plan.
4. What are the peculiarities of international responsibility for space activities?
5. Specify the current problems of international space law.
6. What legal problems do the unfolding commercialization of space activities and the involvement of non-State actors entail?

7. The situation to be analyzed in class (prepare in writing):

On the Internet, you can now easily find a lot of offers to buy land on the Moon and other celestial bodies, as well as assign a name to a star. Analyze these proposals (separately for the purchase of land on the Moon and separately for naming stars), indicate what exactly is proposed, what legal framework is applied to these proposals, and conduct their legal examination from the point of view of international law. To analyze the proposals for naming the stars, you can use the materials of the website of the International Astronomical Union (www.iau.org).

Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 14.

Seminar 16. Topic 15. International air law

Plan:

1. International air law: concept, principles, institutes. Recognition of the State's full and exclusive sovereignty over its airspace.

2. Sources of international air law. Chicago Convention on International Civil Aviation of 1944

3. International flights and airspace regime. Rules of flight in the airspace of States and in international airspace.

4. The role of international organizations in regulating the activities of international civil aviation. ICAO: creation, structure, bodies, rules and standards, activities, participation of the Russian Federation.

5. International legal regulation of the air carrier liability.

6. The regime of the airspace of the Russian Federation. The Air Code of the Russian Federation. Aviation rules of flights in the airspace of the Russian Federation of 2002.

Assignments for the seminar:

1. Study the main and additional literature on the topic of the seminar session.
2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.
3. Prepare a written summary of all the issues to be discussed according to the seminar session plan.

4. Characterize the content of the principle of freedom of flight in international airspace, indicate possible restrictions.

5. Give examples of the implementation of ICAO rules and standards in the legislation of the Russian Federation.

6. Based on the materials of the website of the International Court of Justice, prepare a brief overview of the cases connected with aerial incidents - <http://www.icj-cij.org/docket/index.php?p1=3&p2=2>

Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 15.

Seminar 17. Topic 16. International criminal law

Plan:

1. International criminal law: concept, sources, principles.
2. International crimes and crimes of an international character: a comparative overview.

3. International crimes: concept and types. Genocide, war crimes, crimes against humanity.

4. International criminal justice: international military Tribunals, the Tribunals for Yugoslavia and Rwanda, the International Criminal Court.

5. Crimes of an international nature and the cooperation of States in their suppression and punishment of criminals.

6. International terrorism: the concept, types and forms of cooperation between States in their fight against terrorism.

7. Interpol: charter, goals, objectives, activities. NCB of Interpol in Russia.

8. Legal assistance in criminal matters. Extradition of criminals: the concept, conditions, grounds for refusal of extradition.

Assignments for the seminar:

1. Study the main and additional literature on the topic of the seminar session.
2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.

3. Prepare a written summary of all the issues to be discussed according to the seminar session plan.

4. Compile a comparative table of international crimes and crimes of an international nature.

5. Prepare in writing a description of the elements of one of the international crimes.

6. Provide examples for each of the international crimes, preferably with reference to the relevant sentences.

7. Compare the subject matter, personal, territorial and temporary jurisdictions of the international criminal Tribunals (you can make a table).

8. What are the differences between the Interpol red and green circulars?

9. Characterize the concepts of "extraditional crimes", "double criminality", "rule of concreteness".

10. Prepare a brief overview of one of the cases pending before the International Criminal Court.

Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 16.

Seminar 18. Topic 17. International humanitarian law

Plan:

1. Concepts of international humanitarian law, subject matter, sources and principles.

2. The system of international humanitarian law: "the law of Geneva" and "the law of the Hague".

3. Types of armed conflicts, their characteristics. Legal consequences of the outbreak of the war.

2. Participants in armed conflicts: types and legal status.

5. Methods and means of warfare: international legal regulation.

6. International legal protection of the civilian population. Special protection for women and children.

7. International legal protection of civilian objects. Special protection of cultural values.

8. Activities of the International Committee of the Red Cross for the protection of victims of armed conflicts.

9. The end of the war and its legal consequences.

Assignments for the seminar:

1. Study the main and additional literature on the topic of the seminar session.

2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.

3. Prepare a summary on the basic concepts of international humanitarian law (armed conflict, military occupation, military necessity, military facility, civilian facility, etc.).

4. Prepare a list of prohibited means of warfare (weapons) with references to relevant international legal acts.

5. Prepare a comparative table of differences in the legal regulation of international armed conflicts and non-international armed conflicts (the latter separately under Art. 3 of the Geneva Conventions and Additional Protocol No. 2).

6. Indicate the main differences in the legal status of combatants and non-combatants.

7. Classify actions that qualify as "war crimes" in accordance with the Rome Statute of the International Criminal Court, "tying" the division to the structure of international humanitarian law as a branch.

8. Get familiar with the practice of the International Criminal Court. What cases related to violations of international humanitarian law were considered by the International Criminal Court?

9. Give a written description of the ICRC's activities in an armed conflict and in peacetime (you can create a table).

Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 17.

Seminar 19. Topic 18. International environmental law

Plan:

1. The concept and principles of international environmental law.
2. The role of international organizations in solving environmental protection problems.
3. International legal protection of the World Ocean.
4. International legal protection of biodiversity.
5. International legal protection of atmospheric air, protection of the ozone layer and fight against climate change.
6. International legal regulation of prevention and compensation of transboundary environmental damage.

Assignments for the seminar:

1. Study the main and additional literature on the topic of the seminar session.
2. Study legal acts and judicial practice on the topic of the seminar session.
3. Prepare a written summary of all the issues to be discussed according to the seminar session plan.
4. Prepare a definition of environmental objects based on international treaties.
5. What branches of international law does international environmental law interact most closely with and how does this interaction manifest itself?
6. Analyze the relationship between the principle of sovereignty over natural resources and the principle of no harm beyond national jurisdiction. Prepare a written answer specifying the norms of international treaties and resolutions of the UN General Assembly.
7. Analyze the interaction of the principles of "the polluter pays", the principle of precautionary approach, the principle of responsibility for environmental pollution.
8. What are the environmental aspects of the concept of common heritage of mankind?

9. What are shared resources?

10. Conduct a comparative analysis of the principles set out in the Stockholm Declaration on the Human Environment of 1972 and the principles of the Declaration on Environment and Development of 1992.

Additionally: prepare the assignment specified in para. 3.3. of this syllabus for topic 19.

2.4. Independent work

2.4.1. Types of independent work

In the process of mastering the discipline of International Law, students perform the following types of independent work:

- taking notes;
- referencing academic literature;
- preparing abstracts for monographs and scientific articles;
- solving legal problems;
- testing;
- preparing themselves for participation in moot courts proceedings;
- preparing themselves for a scientific discussion on a given topic;
- analysis of decisions of international courts and arbitrations;
- performing control work;
- writing essays and term papers;
- answering to the questions on the relevant topic;
- performing individual tasks (conducting comparative analysis, compiling tables, diagrams, etc.);
- implementing creative assignments.

When doing independent work, it is necessary to familiarize yourself with the main literature, primarily educational, to study the normative sources, the list of which is presented in the relevant sections of the syllabus. It is important to note that, along with international treaties, international custom is also the main source of international law. Acts of international organizations are of particular importance for regulating international relations; decisions of international courts and teachings of the most qualified publicists in the field of international law, which also need to be studied, are subsidiary means that help to determine international legal norms. It is necessary to get acquainted with academic works of both domestic and foreign scholars. It should be noted that many sources, as well as international judicial practice, are presented in English, which will require appropriate knowledge and skills. Latin formulas that can be found in international treaties and literature should be memorized.

Texts of international treaties are compiled in collections of international treaties, in legal databases; texts of many conventions can be found on the official websites of international organizations, for example, on the official website of the United Nations. A full-fledged study of the course "International Law" is impossible without referring to the practice of international judicial and treaty bodies, the decisions of which can be found on the websites of the relevant international institutions (see paragraph 7.3. of the present syllabus).

2.4.2. Peculiarities of independent work on individual course topics

Topic 1. The concept, subject matter, subjects, system and sources of international law

When studying this topic, it is necessary to understand the essence and nature of international law, to clearly know its peculiarities and elements of the system. Public international law has a complex regulatory structure, including universal, regional, and local norms. Students need to identify such norms based on the analysis of the UN Charter and other international universal, regional and bilateral treaties. Students should gain an understanding of international law as an independent legal system, determine its place in the legal superstructure of society (public international law, private international law, domestic law; transnational law).

Topic 2. Interaction of international and domestic law

It is known that there are two legal systems in the world: the system of international law and the system of domestic law. Both of these systems are closely interconnected and interact, enriching each other. When studying this topic, the student should refer to the works of leading Soviet and Russian experts in this field: I.P. Blishchenko, V.N. Durdenevsky, F.I. Kozhevnikov, E.A. Korovin, I.I. Lukashuk, S.A. Malinin, G.I. Tunkin, N.A. Ushakov, E.T. Usenko, S.V. Chernichenko, V.M. Shurshalov and others.

The most important component of the topic is the differences in theoretical approaches to the relationship between international and domestic law. Among them, dualistic and monistic concepts can be distinguished, which can be further divided into theories of the primacy of domestic law and the primacy of international law, theories of "solidarism", "moderate monism". Article 15 of the Constitution of the Russian Federation, which in case of discrepancies between the norms of an international treaty and a Russian federal law, declares the priority of the treaty norms, should not be interpreted as the declaration of primacy of international law in general.

Regarding the relationship between international and domestic law, it is useful to analyze the relevant provisions of the constitutions and other normative acts of foreign countries: the USA, Great Britain, Spain, Germany, France, etc.

To better understand the impact of international law on domestic law and vice versa, it is useful to refer to relevant examples of the forms of their harmonization (through transformation, reception, incorporation, and reference to an international treaty).

To understand the essence of the interaction between international and domestic law, it is also necessary to refer to examples of the implementation of acts of international intergovernmental organizations (for example, the UN, its specialized agencies, WTO, etc.). When studying the subject matter, it is also advisable to analyze the issue of the application of international law and, above all, international treaties by national law enforcement authorities in the Russian Federation and other countries.

Topic 3. Basic principles of international law

This topic requires an analysis of the system of principles of international law and the mechanism of their operation. The student must understand the importance of principles for regulating international relations and their place in the system of international law.

In order to learn the material on a particular principle of international law, the student must understand the time of its origin, the sources, the social relations it protects, the range of subjects, their rights and obligations, the types of acts violating the principle, and the mechanisms that ensure the implementation of a particular principle of international law. It is necessary to understand that all principles are interrelated and equal in legal force.

Topic 4. The law of international treaties

The key principle of this branch is the maxim "pacta sunt servanda". One should be well aware of the features of an international treaty as a source of international law and possible parties to it. When studying the topic, it is necessary to pay attention to the stages of concluding an international treaty, its form and structure, the effect and interpretation of the treaty, the conditions of validity and grounds for its invalidity, prolongation, as well as the conditions of termination, suspension and their legal consequences, the need for registration of international treaties.

The procedure for concluding and implementing international treaties involving the Russian Federation is determined primarily by the Constitution of Russia and the Federal Law "On international treaties of the Russian Federation" of 1995 whose provisions should be familiar to the student. Attention should be paid to the powers of the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation regarding the verification of compliance with the Constitution of the Russian Federation of international treaties, the procedure for ratification, cases of mandatory ratification, and the procedure for publishing international treaties of the Russian Federation.

Topic 5. The law of international organizations

When studying this topic, it is important to clearly distinguish the legal status of intergovernmental and non-governmental organizations. The main focus is on the study of the international legal personality of international intergovernmental organizations (IGOs). A significant number of such organizations necessitate their classification, which makes it easier to clarify issues about the international legal basis of their activities, their competence, membership, scope, rights and obligations, privileges and immunities, and responsibilities. In the course of their activities, IGOs adopt various acts that form the external and internal law of the organization, which must be taken into account.

The most detailed analysis of this topic should be carried out in respect of the United Nations (UN), therefore, the issues that it will cover should be well-structured: the content of the UN Charter, the system of the United Nations, including a detailed description of the main bodies (composition, formation procedure, competence, decision-making procedure, their legal force, the activities of subsidiary bodies). The problems of increasing the effectiveness of the United Nations presuppose awareness of the reform process in the organization, knowledge of the position of the Russian Federation and its experience of the cooperation with the United Nations.

Topic 6. International legal means of resolving international disputes

The principle of peaceful settlement of disputes is an imperative, basic principle of international law. The student is obliged to use specific examples to show the process of formation and development of this principle. He should also understand the content of the concepts of an "international dispute" and a "situation", as well as types of international disputes that can arise. To understand the concept of these terms, it is necessary to carefully study the Hague Convention on the Peaceful Settlement of International Disputes of 1907, Articles 33 to 54 of the UN Charter, as well as the relevant literature.

Good offices and mediation involve rendering assistance to the parties to a dispute by a third party in order to resolve it. It is necessary to distinguish between good offices and mediation, as well as between fact-finding and reconciliation.

The differences between arbitration and judicial proceedings from other dispute resolution means are that the decisions of these bodies are binding on the disputing parties. However, the binding nature of the decision should not be confused with the mandatory character of their jurisdiction. The jurisdiction of international judicial bodies is optional, that is, it depends on the prior consent of the parties to the dispute expressed in one way or another and in one form or another with the consideration of their case by the court.

Topic 7. Responsibility in international law

First of all, it is necessary to understand the concept of responsibility in international law, given that this term is used in a variety of meanings. It is necessary to distinguish between positive and negative responsibility, the responsibility of States and international organizations and the international criminal responsibility of individuals. This topic examines the issues of international responsibility of States and international organizations for internationally wrongful acts, as well as international liability for harmful consequences of actions not prohibited by international law.

A special feature of this topic is that the main sources of the institute of international responsibility are Articles on State Responsibility elaborated by the International Law Commission in 2001, Articles on Diplomatic Protection of 2006, and Articles on the Responsibility of International Organizations of 2011. It is necessary to clearly understand the legal force and significance of these documents, and consider them as an authoritative study of existing generally recognized international customary norms.

Special attention should be paid to the concept of attribution of conduct to the State, and it should be noted that the International Law Commission (ILC) did not single out such mandatory elements of an internationally wrongful act as guilt and damage. The ILC has significantly streamlined terminology. The ILC does not divide responsibility into material and political, and among the forms of reparation it indicates only restitution, compensation and satisfaction. Countermeasures are viewed as a method of compulsory implementation of responsibility, and the term "reprisals" is considered obsolete. Reparation is understood by the ILC in a broad sense in the general meaning "compensation for harm", while the narrow understanding of the term as a monetary payment is replaced by the term "compensation". When studying retorsions, it should be borne in mind that they are possible not only in response to an offense, but also to an unfriendly act that does not constitute an offense, in addition, retorsions themselves would not constitute an internationally wrongful act, since they are a form of implementation of conduct not prohibited by international law.

Topic 8. International human rights law

The legal basis of this branch is the principle of respect for human rights and freedoms. The student must characterize the content of this principle.

It is necessary to know the main provisions and significance of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948, the International Covenants on Human Rights of 1966, and their Optional Protocols. In addition, the student should know the contents of other important international documents in the field of human rights protection listed in the list of educational literature sources. In addition to universal international conventions and treaties, the study of materials on this topic involves consideration of regional agreements, a significant part of which have been adopted within the framework of the Council of Europe and the Commonwealth of Independent States (CIS).

The role of international organizations in the protection of human rights deserves special attention. It is necessary to know the operation of universal mechanisms (the UN system) and regional mechanisms for ensuring and protecting human rights (European Court of Human Rights, etc.).

Topic 9. Law of external relations

The student must distinguish the classes of heads of diplomatic missions from the ranks of diplomats, and know how ambassadors are appointed and recalled in foreign countries. It is necessary to pay attention to the difference in the functions of diplomatic missions and consular institutions, and compare the scope of their privileges and immunities.

You should know the concept and functions of special missions, as well as representations of States to international organizations and representations of international organizations in a particular State.

The student should be familiar with the regulatory acts of the Russian Federation in the field of foreign policy, the structure and activities of state bodies of foreign relations functioning in Russia and abroad.

Topic 10. International security law

When studying this topic, it is necessary to understand what threats to international security are the most serious ones, and what international legal means and measures exist to reduce and overcome them.

Serious attention should be paid to the issue of disarmament, strengthening the nuclear non-proliferation regime, and cooperation between Russia and the United States on strategic offensive arms reduction.

Attention should be paid to the initiative of the Russian Federation on the need to develop and adopt a Treaty on European Security.

The national security of the Russian Federation should be interpreted in the light of the provisions set out in the Strategy of National Security of the Russian Federation, approved by the President of Russia on July 2, 2021. The main parameters of the national security of the Russian Federation are related to the correct assessment of trends in modern international relations, the need to enhance the authority and role of the Russian Federation in the modern world, the assessment of possible threats to the national security of the Russian Federation, as well as ensuring the national security of the country, including by foreign policy means.

Topic 11. International economic law

The student should proceed from the fact that international economic law is a system of legal principles and norms governing cooperation between subjects of international law in the field of interaction between national economies of various States, including trade, the use of transport, monetary, financial and credit relations, scientific, technical and industrial cooperation in the development of new technologies, natural resources, the creation of equal economic relations between all States, taking into account the interests of developing countries.

The sources of international economic law are international treaties, which can be divided into agreements on technical assistance, on economic, industrial, scientific and technical cooperation, trade agreements that differ in the object of regulation: consolidating the principles of cooperation (on trade and navigation), on commodity turnover and payments, etc. There are also international legal customs widely used in investment relations, trade relations and navigation (for example, on the use of seaports, cargo transportation by sea, on determining the status of a State in "diagonal" relations, taking into account its immunity, etc.).

Intergovernmental credit agreements, agreements on international settlements (by payment, clearing, combined) serve to ensure the implementation of trade agreements. Decisions and resolutions of international organizations and new acts of non-binding character adopted by them – declarations, programs, communiques, etc. - play an important role in the formation of sources of law in this branch of international law. They often serve as a platform for future creation of treaty norms of international economic law. Unilateral acts of States (statements and declarations) should also not be ignored, which in some cases can serve as evidence of the existence or clarification of the content of customary legal norms or interpretation of the provisions of international treaties.

The main special principles of international economic law include the principles of freedom to choose the form of organization of foreign economic relations, the prohibition of unlawful economic coercion, the sovereignty of States over natural resources and economic activities, economic non-discrimination, national treatment, the most favored nation, reciprocity and mutual benefit.

It is important to understand the situation that developed during the global economic crisis of 2008 – 2011, to present the measures taken by States to bring the international economy and finances of the world out of the crisis as quickly as possible, taking into account the relevant initiatives of Russia formulated by it within the framework of international organizations (UN, IMF, IBRD) and the G20 summits.

When studying the topic, special attention should be paid to the most important international institutions operating in the field of trade, economic, monetary and financial cooperation.: UNCTAD, UNIDO, UNDP, IMF, IBRD, IFC, IDA, WTO, OECD. The student should familiarize himself with the characteristics and main activities of regional integration associations (EU, Andean Commonwealth of Nations, MERCOSUR, Eurasian Economic Union).

Topic 12. International maritime law

International maritime law is a branch of public international law that regulates the activities of its subjects regarding the use of the spaces and resources of the oceans. The basis of such regulation is the definition of the legal regime of specific maritime spaces. Maritime spaces should be clearly distinguished depending on their legal regime. The internal sea waters and the territorial sea are integral parts of the State territory, they are subject to the sovereignty and jurisdiction of the coastal State. In contrast, the contiguous zone, the exclusive economic zone and the continental shelf are not part of the State territory, but international law grants the coastal State special sovereign rights and limited, strictly targeted jurisdiction in these areas. High seas and the international seabed floor beyond the limits of national jurisdiction (the Area) are territories that are not subject to the sovereignty or jurisdiction of any State, but they have deep internal differences: the old concept of terra nullius is implemented in the legal regime of the high seas, while the new concept of the common heritage of mankind is consolidated in the Area.

Topic 13. Topic: Territory and international law

When studying the topic, main attention should be paid to the classification of territories depending on their legal regime. There are state territories (land surface, internal sea waters and territorial sea, their subsoil and the airspace above them up to the limit of about 100-110 kilometers), territories with international regimes (high seas, international seabed area, outer space and celestial bodies, international airspace, Antarctica), as well as territories with a mixed regime that combines features of both types (contiguous and exclusive economic zones, continental shelf). International rivers, straits, and canals are often referred to as the mixed regime territories.

The legal status of the Arctic region is divided into two categories. The mainland and island formations are subordinated to the sovereignty of one of the circumpolar States – Russia, Norway, Denmark, Canada or the USA. This is determined by established traditions. It follows from the fact of initial acquisition and long-term use, registration or acquisition by means of a treaty, and it has been enshrined in the domestic acts of some of these countries over time.

As for the waters of the Arctic Ocean, it is divided into the same maritime spaces as the rest of the World Ocean – internal sea waters, territorial sea, contiguous and exclusive economic zones, as well as high seas. This also applies to the underwater spaces of the Arctic Ocean – the continental shelf and the international seabed Area.

Unlike the Arctic, Antarctica has a single legal regime - an international legal one. The international legal status of Antarctica is defined by the Antarctic Treaty of 1959. The treaty recognizes the right of all countries to unhindered access to all peaceful activities in this region. The establishment of military bases and fortifications, the conduct of military maneuvers, as well as testing of any type of weapons are prohibited. As a demilitarized and neutralized territory, Antarctica cannot be used to deploy military contingents there or serve as a theater of military operations, although the use of military personnel or military equipment for scientific research and other peaceful activities is not prohibited, provided that it is properly notified.

The most important aspect of the Antarctic legal regime is the encouragement of international cooperation in scientific research and the exchange of data obtained. Antarctica is considered a nuclear weapon-free zone, which means that nuclear tests and the burial of nuclear materials cannot be carried out here.

To implement the provisions of the Antarctic Treaty, a special international mechanism was established in the form of a Consultative Meeting of the States Parties, the purpose of which is to develop recommendations to their governments on the peaceful use of this territory and to facilitate inspection activities.

Topic 14. International space law

International space law is a relatively new branch of international law. Its features are that, firstly, it arose in a legal field cemented by the basic principles of international law, and secondly, this branch did not follow the practice like other branches, but was ahead of it.

International space law regulates relations connected with space that is the common heritage of mankind. It also defines the specifics of the branch, in particular, the range of special principles that prohibit the national appropriation of space, require its use and exploration taking into account the requirements of the basic principles of international law and for the benefit of all mankind, without discrimination against States that have not yet started space activities.

The range of subjects of the branch generally coincides with the range of subjects of international law. However, international space organizations have some peculiarities formed by the increased risk of space activities – most of their participants should be States parties to the 1967 Treaty on Principles Governing the Activities of States in the Exploration and Use of Outer Space, including the Moon and Other Celestial Bodies.

The institute of responsibility is characterized by significant features. The procedure for implementing responsibility varies depending on where the damage was caused by a space object.

When studying this topic, it is necessary to pay attention to the activities of international organizations, primarily the United Nations.

Attention should also be paid to the problems associated with new uses of outer space, the increasing number of States and non-State actors engaged in space activities, as well as initiatives related to the revision of the 1967 Treaty. The prevention of an arms race in outer space remains an important issue.

It is necessary to pay attention to the prospects of the Russian Federation's activities in space and the types of international cooperation in the peaceful uses of outer space.

Topic 15. International air law

The study of this topic requires paying attention to the relationship between the content of the principles of international air law and the legal regime of airspace, with the exception of ensuring the safety of international civil aviation.

In the process of international flights, relations arise in connection with crossing the State border, the presence of a vessel in the airspace of a foreign State, the need to coordinate rules for the unification of documents and responsibility of the air carrier, commercial activities of civil aviation, flight safety. It requires careful attention to the provisions of multilateral and bilateral treaties as well as national legislation.

Technical and operational conditions, requirements, standards and rules of commercial aeronautics are established by international interstate organizations, primarily the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO). Students should know its legal basis, the structure and main documents that were adopted.

Topic 16. International criminal law

It is necessary to proceed from the fact that international cooperation in the field of combating crime is actively developing. Crimes of an international nature must be distinguished from international crimes for which perpetrators are held accountable by international criminal tribunals and the International Criminal Court.

To characterize crimes of an international nature and measures of cooperation between States to combat them, it is necessary to analyze the content of international conventions on specific types of crimes: terrorism, illicit drug trafficking, piracy, etc. The student should know the content of the conventions, the subject and object of the crime, the rights and obligations of States in combating each type of crime, and the mechanisms for ensuring compliance with the conventions.

When studying this topic, a special place is given to the institute of legal aid, therefore it is necessary to pay attention to the types of legal aid, especially the procedure for extradition; to consider the procedure for providing legal assistance using the example of multilateral and bilateral treaties.

The fight against crime is carried out within the framework of international organizations that possess a general or a special competence. It is necessary to familiarize yourself with the main activities of the United Nations and the International Criminal Police Organization (Interpol).

It is necessary to analyze the compliance of Russia's criminal legislation with its international obligations to combat crime.

Topic 17. International humanitarian law

The best way to understand the nature of modern international humanitarian law is to know its history, so it is necessary to form an idea of the development of international legal regulation of relations during armed conflicts, to know the results of the Hague Conferences of 1899 and 1907. International humanitarian law is closely linked with various branches of international law, so it is necessary to clearly distinguish the object of its regulation from other branches.

During the preparation process, it is necessary to pay special attention to the difference between jus ad bellum and jus in bello; it is good to know the system of treaties on international humanitarian law that regulate both the protection of victims of armed conflicts and the rights and obligations of belligerents. Therefore, it is necessary to pay attention to the concept of "military necessity". Attention should be paid to the role of customary law, which is extremely important for international humanitarian law, using the collections listed in the list of additional literature on the topic. To understand the nature of international humanitarian law, it is important to know the Martens clause. The successful mastering of this topic depends on how well the content of the special principles of international humanitarian law is understood. To do this, it is best to get acquainted with the academic works of J. Pictet, H. Gesser, E. David. It must be remembered that the norms of international humanitarian law apply in situations of occupation, therefore it is necessary to know the main characteristics of the regime of military occupation. The study of international humanitarian law requires careful consideration of the status of such categories as combatants, mercenaries, volunteers, and spies. One of the main objectives of international humanitarian law is to protect victims of an armed conflict, so you should be well aware of the provisions on the protection of civilians. Special attention should be paid to issues of international criminal responsibility for serious violations of international humanitarian law after the student familiarizes himself with the activities of international criminal tribunals and the International Criminal Court, as well as to the implementation of international humanitarian law into the legislation of the Russian Federation. The International Committee of the Red Cross plays a special role in the development of international humanitarian law. It is necessary to know the legal basis of its activities, structure, principles and mandate.

Topic 18. International environmental law

When studying this topic, it is necessary to understand the content of the special principles of international environmental law, to know the content of the concept of sustainable development, the specifics of protecting the oceans, transboundary watercourses, biodiversity, atmosphere, near-Earth outer space, and to know measures to protect the natural environment from radioactive contamination. The greatest attention should be paid to the study of the main conventions that are devoted to the protection of individual sites, as well as natural resources. It should be noted that many treaties regulate relations for the protection and conservation of specific natural objects, for example, regional seas or Antarctica.

Based on the study of conventions, it is necessary to know what the international obligations of States are and what protection measures they should take jointly and independently. Declarations and resolutions of international organizations are of particular importance for regulating international relations in the field of environmental protection, and the student should also be focused on them.

Many international organizations deal with environmental issues, so it is necessary to study their activities, especially the organization of the UN system, as well as analyze the contribution of non-governmental organizations to solving environmental problems.

The issues of liability in international environmental law are most often considered in the context of causing transboundary damage. An attempt to resolve these issues was undertaken by the UN International Law Commission that adopted the Draft principles on the allocation of losses in the case of transboundary harm caused as a result of hazardous activities of 2006.

3.3. Assignments for independent work (examples of individual written homework, model assignments, situations and cases for the analysis at seminars)

Topic 1. The concept, subject matter, subjects, system and sources of international law

The situation to be analyzed in class (prepare the answers in writing):

Since 1933, when diplomatic relations between the United States and the USSR were established, the residence of the American ambassadors in Moscow has been the Spaso House mansion. It is located one mile west of the Kremlin at Spasopeskovskaya Square, 10. It is not far from the Garden Ring and Arbat, one of the oldest districts of Moscow. On July 1, 1985, a lease agreement was signed with the US Embassy, the annual rental rate was then set at 25 rubles ($42 at the 1985 exchange rate) per 1 square meter. For a mansion with an extensive plot of land located in the center of Moscow, the American side had to pay Russia 72,500 rubles a year annually. After the ruble's depreciation in the early 90s, such rents were simply ridiculous.

Question: what law should regulate the relationship regarding the lease of the specified mansion? Explain your point of view.

Topic 2. Interaction of international and domestic law

Analysis of the court decision. Read the decision of the Arbitration Court of St. Petersburg and the Leningrad Region of February 09, 2015 in case no. A56-48129/2014 - http://kad.arbitr.ru/PdfDocument/c3b94d7e-3fa7-44a8-a6df-dba0e15b0c79/A56-48129-2014_20150209_Reshenie.pdf

Try to single out and write down the sequence of arguments that the Court cited to substantiate its conclusion that the case could be considered by the national court of the Russian Federation.

Evaluate the Court's arguments in terms of the correlation between national and international law.

Topic 3. Basic principles of international law

The case to discuss in class (prepare the answers in writing): On February 17, 2008, the Provisional Institutions of Self-Government of Kosovo unilaterally declared the independence of Kosovo. Some states with a total number of more than 70 (for example, the United States, Great Britain) have declared their recognition of Kosovo as an independent state. Other states (for example, Russia, China, Spain) declared that the recognition of Kosovo's independence is a violation of international law.

On May 29, 1992, the authorities of South Ossetia declared the independence of this part of Georgia. Abkhazia made a similar statement after the 1992-93 war with Georgia. On August 26, 2008, after the armed conflict in South Ossetia, Russia recognized the independence of Abkhazia and South Ossetia by two presidential decrees. Later Nicaragua, Venezuela, and Nauru did the same.

Based on the study of the materials of the main, additional and reference literature, information resources (paragraph 7.3. of the program), the mass media, as well as taking into account the UN Security Council Resolution 1244 (1999) and the Advisory Opinion of the International Court of Justice of the United Nations of July 22, 2010 (see paragraph 5.2.), prepare your answers to the following questions:

How can the described situations be characterized from the standpoint of the principle of territorial integrity of States and the principle of equal rights and self-determination of peoples and nations? What arguments do the countries that recognize Kosovo's independence have? What is the position of the Russian Federation on the Kosovo issue? What are the differences between the actual pre-recognition situations in Kosovo, as well as in Abkhazia and South Ossetia? What arguments are given in support of the legitimacy of recognition of Abkhazia and South Ossetia? What arguments are given against their recognition?

Topic 4. The law of international treaties

1. The situation for review: On July 1, 2002, the Statute of the International Criminal Court entered into force. It was signed by about 150 States and ratified by more than 60 States. Russia and the United States signed the Statute, but did not ratify it.

On May 6, 2002, U.S. Deputy Secretary of State J. Bolton informed the UN Secretary General Kofi Annan that the United States did not want to become a party to the Statute of the Court. In this regard, the United States had no legal obligations arising from the signed ICC Statute. On the same day, another US Deputy Secretary of State, M. Grossman, outlined 4 reasons why the United States refused to participate in the work of the Court, namely: a) the creation and functioning of the Court belittles the role of the Security Council in maintaining peace and security; b) the Court creates a system of punishments that will not be controlled by States; c) the jurisdiction of the Court applies to citizens of States that did not ratify the Statute of the Court; d) among other things, the establishment of the Court is based on a "flawed foundation". Grossman further emphasized that the United States respected the will of those States that had ratified the Statute of the Court. However, they in turn should respect the US decision not to ratify the Statute, and that the Court's jurisdiction would not extend to American citizens.

It should be noted that this position of official Washington was not shared by a number of public organizations in the United States. For example, in a joint report by the Committee of Lawyers on Nuclear Policy and the Institute for Energy and Environmental Research, numerous treaties that the United States refused to sign or openly violated were listed in detail: the ban on nuclear testing, the non-proliferation of weapons of mass destruction, the ban on engineering mines, and agreements on climate change on the planet, etc. Conclusion: Over the past two decades, Washington has stubbornly refused treaties that would be binding on the United States of America, despite the fact that the American people, for the most part, are enthusiastic about the idea of the rule of law in world affairs and are trying to emulate it on the scale of their society.

1. What assessment can be given to the above position of the US Department of State in terms of the applicable provisions of the Vienna Convention on the Law of Treaties of 1969?

2. How does the criticism of the aforementioned American public organizations of the position of official Washington in relation to the ratification of the Statute of the International Criminal Court relate to the principle of state sovereignty?

3. What are international legal obligations of States that have signed but not yet ratified an international treaty?

2. Case to be analysed. Under the agreement of December 1, 1964 between Germany and the Netherlands and under the agreement of June 9, 1965 between Germany and Denmark, the parties defined the boundaries of the continental shelf only near the coast. Due to the fact that it was not possible to reach a consensus on the delimitation of the rest of the shelf, the parties agreed to refer the dispute to the International Court of Justice. The Governments of Denmark and the Netherlands took the following position: in this case, it was necessary to use the equidistance principle, since it had become a common norm of international law, enshrined in paragraph 2 of Art.6 of the 1958 Convention on the continental shelf and in the legislative practice of States; although the Federal Republic of Germany had not ratified this Convention, it was nevertheless bound by its provisions due to the official statement of the German Government agreeing to it without any reservations regarding Art. 6. The position of the Government of the Federal Republic of Germany was that the mentioned provision on the continental shelf could not be applied to the Federal Republic of Germany, since it had not ratified this Convention, and the method of delimiting the continental shelf based on the principle of equidistance in the absence of an agreement between the States concerned could not be considered as an established customary rule of international law.

Questions: Can the provisions of a multilateral treaty be applicable to a State that has not ratified it?

2. Under what conditions are the provisions of such a treaty containing obligations and provisions on certain rights binding on States that do not participate in a particular treaty?

3. Whose position in the given situation is reasonable?

Topic 5. The law of international organizations

Assignment to be done in writing: On May 14, 1993, on the basis of the WHA resolution 46.40, the World Health Organization appealed to the International Court of Justice with a request to give an advisory opinion on whether, in terms of the impact on health and the environment, the use of nuclear weapons by a State in a war or other armed conflict would constitute a violation of the State's obligations under international law, including the WHO Constitution. On July 8, 1996, the International Court of Justice recognized that it did not have jurisdiction to answer this question from the World Health Organization (<http://www.icj-cij.org/docket/files/93/7407.pdf>). On December 15, 1994, the General Assembly, by adopting resolution 49/47 K, asked the International Court of Justice to give an opinion on the question: "Does international law allow under any circumstances the threat or use of nuclear weapons?" On July 8, 1996, the International Court of Justice issued an advisory opinion on the matter. <http://www.icj-cij.org/docket/files/95/7495.pdf>, rus. - <http://www.icj-cij.org/docket/files/95/7495.pdf>http://www.icj-cij.org/homepage/ru/advisory/advisory_1996-07-08.pdfhttp://www.icj-cij.org/homepage/ru/advisory/advisory_1996-07-08.pdf). Using the UN official documentation system and the website of the International Court of Justice, after reviewing the above-mentioned acts of the International Court of Justice, formulate the reasons why the International Court of Justice ignored the WHO request and at the same time gave an advisory opinion at the request of the UN general Assembly. What conclusions can be drawn from the theoretical provisions on the special legal personality of international organizations in the light of these documents?

Topic 6. Peaceful settlement of international disputes

A problem. On March 01, 2014, on suspicion of drug trafficking, a military ship of State A seized a merchant ship flying the flag of State B without the prior permission of the latter with 30 crew members who are citizens of State C. The crew members were deprived of their liberty and held under arrest for 2 weeks on a State A warship. During this time they were subjected to cruel and inhuman treatment. All three States are members of the United Nations (since 1945), parties to the 1982 United Nations Convention on the Law of the Sea (since 1997), and the 1950 Convention for the Protection of Rights and Fundamental Freedoms (since 1999). Upon ratification of the 1982 Convention on the Law of the Sea, in accordance with its article 287, State A chose as a means of the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea, established in accordance with Annex VI to the said Convention, State B – the International Court of Justice, State C – arbitration, established in accordance with Annex VII to the 1982 Convention. In 2006, State A made a declaration in accordance with paragraph 2 of Article 36 of the Statute of the International Court of Justice on the recognition of the mandatory jurisdiction of the International Court of Justice.

Questions:

- 1) What international judicial authorities and on what occasion is it possible to apply to?
- 2) What entity can apply?
- 3) Under what conditions is it possible for a subject(s) to apply to this international judicial body?

Topic 7. Responsibility in international law

1. The situation to be discussed at the seminar (prepare the answers in writing): On August 12, 2008, Georgia filed a lawsuit with the International Court of Justice. In it it claimed that the Russian Federation, acting through its organs, its officials, other persons and organizations exercising elements of state power, as well as through South Ossetian and Abkhaz separatist forces under its control, had carried out, encouraged and supported racial discrimination through attacks on Georgians, as well as other ethnic groups, and their mass expulsion in the South Ossetian and Abkhaz regions of the Republic of Georgia³. The statement of claim identified three "phases of intervention." In the first "phase of the intervention," which, according to the Georgian side, took place in South Ossetia from 1990 to 1992, and in Abkhazia from 1991 to 1994, "the Russian Federation provided substantial support to South Ossetian and Abkhaz separatists in carrying out attacks on the Georgian population of South Ossetia and Abkhazia and their almost complete expulsion." This support included "the supply of weapons and food, and the recruitment of mercenaries to support separatist forces in both regions." During the second, relatively peaceful, "phase of the intervention," Russia's support for South Ossetian and Abkhaz formations was expressed, according to the Georgian side, in the fact that the Russian Federation "granted its citizenship to almost all residents of South Ossetia and Abkhazia who are not Georgians," and that the leadership of the South Ossetian security forces was staffed by the former employees of the Russian law enforcement agencies, as well as the fact that during 2008 Russia withdrew from the regime of collective sanctions against Abkhazia, imposed in 1996 by the decision of the CIS Council of Heads of State, decided to "establish official relations" with Abkhazia and South Ossetia, and then recognized their independence. The third "intervention phase" began in August 2008 after the Russian armed forces entered the territory of South Ossetia, as a result of which the Russian Federation, according to Georgia, established its control over the territories of Abkhazia and South Ossetia.

1. Evaluate these claims from the point of view of the doctrine of "effective control" established in the practice of the International Court of Justice (the 1986 Decision in the case of Nicaragua v. the United States, the 2005 decision in the case of the Democratic Republic of the Congo v. Uganda, the 2007 decision in the case of Bosnia and Herzegovina v. Serbia and Montenegro).

2. Point out to other standards of attribution to the State of the conduct of persons actually acting under its leadership and control, found in the practice of other international judicial institutions (the decision of the Appeals Chamber of the International Tribunal for the Former Yugoslavia in the Tadic case of 1999, the

Assignment. Fill in the table.

The left column lists the universal UN conventions on human rights. For each convention, you need to fill in the following information.

1. In the second column "Russian Federation" it is necessary to note the participation or non-participation of Russia in the convention. If Russia participates, we need to specify the date when the convention entered into force for the USSR/Russian Federation.

2. The next group of graphs is the control mechanism. You need to specify the following.

2.1. Is it envisaged to create a Committee, and if so, by what Article (Part, Chapter)?

2.2. Further – on the powers of the Committees (yes/no, indicating the Article/Articles):

- Does it have the right to receive periodic reports from States on the implementation of the Convention?

- Does it have the right to consider interstate complaints?

- Does it have the right to consider individual complaints?

- Is there an investigation procedure?

- Can the Committee make general comments? (interpretation of the Convention).

Indicating the existence of the relevant power, it is necessary to indicate whether it is mandatory (i.e., it applies to all States parties by virtue of the very fact of participation in the convention - letter M), or optional (i.e., it requires a separate declaration of recognition of such jurisdiction by a State party or is generally included in a separate optional (additional) protocol – letter O).

For each power (except for General comments), it is necessary to indicate whether it applies to the Russian Federation, and if so, from what date.

3. The third part is the settlement of disputes under the Convention between the participating States. Is such a procedure provided for (for example, the International Court of Justice), indicate it, the Article of the Convention where it is provided for, and whether this applies to the Russian Federation.

The first two conventions are filled in as an example.

When preparing, it is necessary to use the resources listed below, as well as the texts of the conventions themselves.

Topic 9. Law of external relations

A problem. During the demonstration in State X, the protesters, in the absence of any opposition from law enforcement agencies, seized the building of the embassy of State Y, committed numerous acts of violence, robbery and vandalism against the staff and property of this diplomatic mission. The health of the embassy staff was harmed, the building was severely damaged, and other property was damaged or destroyed. The protesters tore down and burned the flag of State Y, forced the ambassador and other members of the diplomatic staff to kneel and loudly apologize for the insults allegedly inflicted by State Y on the people of State X in the past. Everything that was happening was filmed on mobile phones and posted on social networks. A few hours later, law enforcement agencies called for reinforcements, cleared the embassy territory of the protesters, detaining some of them.

Questions: 1) For what acts does the receiving State bear international responsibility? 2) What obligations are imposed on the receiving State in connection with these internationally wrongful acts? 3) What measures should be taken by State Y, what claims should be presented?

Topic 10. International security law

The situation to be analyzed in class (prepare the answers in writing):

On September 1, 1983, a Soviet missile shot down the American Boeing 747 passenger plane en route from Anchorage (Alaska, USA) to Seoul (Republic of Korea). The airliner flew for a long time in the forbidden zone of the USSR, without responding to all requests and attempts to contact the crew of the aircraft. All passengers and crew members of this liner (about 300 people) died. Did the Soviet Union act lawfully from the point of view of international law?

Topic 11. International economic law

The scenario of the role game: “Agua del Toro (Société Anonyme) against the Republic of Bonivia (Agua del Toro v. Republic of Bonivia)”.

The International Center for Settlement of Investment Disputes (ICSID) received a claim filed against Bonivia by a Bonivian company, the original owners of which, through an intermediary owned by Upperlandia, were two companies: an American and a Spanish one. The dispute concerns the concession agreement that contained a condition on the referral of disputes in case of their occurrence to the Bonivian court. The dispute was based on attempts by Bonivia in the 1990s to privatize water management services in the district and the city of Cochabamba, the third most important city in Bonivia. In September 1999 Bonivia granted the Bonivian company Agua del Toro, S.A., in a 40-year concession, the exclusive right to carry out water supply and water management services for the purpose of providing water to the city on the basis of the agreement. A bilateral Investment Agreement (BIA) was concluded between Upperlandia and Bonivia. The main shareholders of Agua del Toro were foreign investors. The largest shareholder, who owned 55% of Agua del Toro's shares, was a company incorporated in the Cayman Islands, owned by the American Bechtel Company. After concluding the privatization agreement there was immediate resistance from the public who feared an increase in water tariffs. In the months that followed, the fears were confirmed, and the outpouring of discontent spread to other parts of the country. By April 1999, the protests of the population of Bonivia threatened to escalate into a civil war. Bonivia was forced to terminate the concession agreement. In November 2001 Agua del Toro filed a lawsuit with the ICSID alleging a violation by Bonivia of the bilateral investment agreement (BIA), as well as the agreement that granted Agua del Toro the concession.

Bonivia objected to the competence of the international arbitration court, referring to the concession agreement and pointing to its condition on the referral of disputes to the Bonivian courts. In particular, Bonivia's objections were based on Article 41.2 of the investment agreement, which states that "Agua del Toro recognizes the jurisdiction and competence of the Bonivian legislative authorities and judicial institutions." In addition, Bonivia challenged the jurisdiction of the arbitration, referring to the bilateral investment agreement between Bonivia and Upperlandia that allowed "citizens of one party to submit claims to arbitration against the other party," since Agua del Toro did not have the "nationality" of Upperlandia. Article 1 (b) (iii) of the BIA provides that the term "national" includes, in relation to a party, legal entities "controlled directly or indirectly" by national persons of that party, but established in accordance with the legislation of the other party. Thus, even if Agua del Toro was established under the legislation of Bonivia, it should be considered a national legal entity of Upperland, provided that it was controlled directly or indirectly by citizens or national legal entities of Upperland. The key issue in the dispute over the competence of the arbitration court was the concept of "control" over a legal entity.

Topic 12. International maritime law

The situation to be analyzed in class (prepare the answers in writing):

1. On October 2005, the Norwegian Coast Guard detained the Russian trawler "Electron" near Svalbard for violating fishing regulations. The ship's captain refused to proceed to the port of Tromsø and, with two Norwegian inspectors on board, headed for Russian territorial sea. The pursuit of the trawler lasted for five days and ended at the border of the territorial sea of the Russian Federation, where the vessel was met by Russian border guards. Subsequently, the "Electron" arrived in Murmansk, the Norwegians returned to their homeland, and the Russian prosecutor's office opened a criminal case against Captain Yarantsev on charges of poaching and unlawful imprisonment of two people. On April 26, 2007, the Pervomaisky Court of Murmansk acquitted the captain of the Electron trawler on charges of unlawful imprisonment. On the second charge - illegal fishing - he was sentenced to a fine of one hundred thousand rubles.

Questions: How can the actions of the Norwegian Coast Guard be assessed from the point of view of international law (detaining the vessel, prosecuting the vessel, including outside the jurisdiction of Norway)? How can the actions of the captain of the ship "Electron" be assessed from the point of view of international law? Is it possible under Russian criminal law to hold a person accountable for violating Norwegian fishing regulations in a Norwegian fishing area?

2. On May 5, 2010, the Russian tanker (under the Liberian flag) "Moscow University" was hijacked by pirates 350 miles off the coast of Somalia. On May 6, 2010, the tanker was liberated by special forces from the large anti-submarine warship "Marshal Shaposhnikov". During the liberation of the vessel, 1 pirate was killed and 10 were captured. The captured pirates were put into their own boat after the means of communication and navigation from it were removed, and sent to the shore. An hour later, "communication with the pirates was lost."

Questions: What rights does international law grant and what obligations does it impose on the State whose warship captured the pirates? What is the principle of universal jurisdiction? What are the difficulties with its implementation in the fight against piracy? What are the proposals within the framework of the United Nations on the creation of international judicial bodies for the trial of pirates?

Topic 13. Topic: Territory and international law

The situation to be analyzed in class (prepare the answers in writing):

On February 7, 2011, on the so-called Northern Territories Day, Japanese Prime Minister Naoto Kan called the November 2010 trip of Russian President Dmitry Medvedev to the Southern Kuril Islands "unacceptable rudeness." Prime Minister Naoto Kan stated, "I consider the visit of Russian President Dmitry Medvedev to Kunashir an act of unacceptable rudeness. I personally protested strongly to the Russian President at our meeting in Yokohama. At the same time, I reiterated the importance of discussing this issue at the highest level and called for continued negotiations. At the same time, I called for the development of consultations on economic cooperation, urging the Russian leader to continue the dialogue in a comprehensive manner." The Russian Foreign Ministry consistently rejects all the claims of the Japanese authorities, noting that the trips of the Russian President and officials to various regions of the country are an internal matter of the Russian Federation.

Questions: what is the Kuril Islands problem? The legal status of what islands creates an international situation between Russia and Japan? What international documents regulated the status of the Kuril Islands in the 19th and 20th centuries? What are Japan's claims to the Kuril Islands based on? What is Russia's position on the jurisdiction over the Kuril Islands and their future fate? What is it based on?

Topic 14. International space law

Carry out the analysis of the situation that arose as a result of the fall of the Soviet military satellite "Kosmos-954" on the territory of Canada in 1978. Canada's Claim and Settlement Agreement - Settlement of Claim between Canada and the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics for Damage Caused by "Cosmos 954" (Released on April 2, 1981) - http://www.jaxa.jp/library/space_law/chapter_3/3-2-2-1_e.html

Topic 15. International air law

Problem. April 12, 1967 The United Kingdom established a no-fly zone for foreign aircraft in the airspace above the Strait of Gibraltar. In this regard, a dispute arose about which in September 1967 the UK informed the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO). In a note from the Spanish representative addressed to the Secretary General of the ICAO, it was noted that, in accordance with Article 9 of the Chicago Convention of 1944, States have the right to establish no-fly zones in their airspace only if this is dictated by military necessity to ensure their safety.

Questions. 1. Is it legitimate from the point of view of modern international law for Great Britain to establish a no-fly zone over the Strait of Gibraltar?

2. What international legal principle defines the regime for the use of airspace over international straits?

3. What types of special air zones are allowed to be established by modern international law in international airspace?

Topic 16. International criminal law

A problem. The person accused of committing fraud on a large scale, in respect of whom a preventive measure was chosen in the form of a subscription not to leave and proper behavior, repeatedly failed to appear at the investigator's summons. He did not appear at his last place of residence for 2 months. According to the information of the border guard service, the accused crossed the Russian-Georgian border 2 weeks ago.

Question: Describe the possible procedures by means of which the accused can be searched, detained and brought to the Russian Federation for criminal prosecution.

Topic 17. International humanitarian law

1. Choose any armed conflict and prepare written answers to the following questions:

- When did the conflict start, and from what moment do international humanitarian law norms apply?
- Who are its main participants?
- What were the actions of the UN Security Council in connection with the conflict?

2. Based on the analysis of conventions and decisions of international judicial institutions, prepare written answers to the following questions:

- in what cases is the territory considered occupied?
- When and on what grounds does the occupation situation end?

3. Provide written answers to the following questions:

- How do the concepts of "serious violations of international humanitarian law" and "war crimes" relate?
- Does the concept of "serious violations" apply to non-international armed conflicts?
- How are crimes against humanity and the crime of genocide related to international humanitarian law?

Topic 18. International environmental law

1. What disputes related to the protection of environmental interests have been the subject of consideration by the International Court of Justice, the International Tribunal for the Law of the Sea, the dispute resolution system of the World Trade Organization? Try to create an assignment based on a specific case.

2. Are human environmental rights subject to international legal protection? Are there international mechanisms for the protection of environmental human rights? Does the European Court of Human Rights (ECtHR) protect environmental rights? Prepare a detailed (1-2 pages) review of one of the judgments of the ECtHR that in your opinion, affect environmental human rights.

V. LOGISTICAL SUPPORT OF THE ACADEMIC DISCIPLINE

5.1. Providing the educational process with other library and information resources and means of providing the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the academic discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational and Social Network of the University (hereinafter referred to as the DSES), in the system of which the "Electronic personal accounts of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" operate. Access to materials is possible by entering an individual password. The DSES is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that ensures information interaction of all participants in the educational process of Kutafin University (MSAL), including providing them with publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, social information through services operating on the basis of applied information systems of Kutafin University (MSAL).

Each student is provided with individual unlimited access to the electronic library systems (electronic libraries) and the electronic information and educational environment of Kutafin University (MSAL) throughout the entire period of study. In addition to the electronic libraries of Kutafin University (MSAL), he is provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and reference and legal systems connected to Kutafin University (MSAL) on the basis of license agreements, and having adapted versions of sites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (electronic library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide the possibility of simultaneous access for 100 percent of students from any point where there is access to the information and telecommunications network "Internet", both on the territory of Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it. In case of absence of the publication in the electronic library system (electronic library), the library fund of Kutafin University (MSAL) is equipped with printed publications of at least 50 copies of each of the publications of the required literature listed in the working programs of disciplines (modules), practices, and at least 25 copies of additional literature per 100 students.

Practical lesson 1. Private International Law: concept, legal nature (2 hours)

1. Characteristics of the term "Private International Law". The object of regulation in Private International Law. The relationship between Private International Law and international (public) law. Distinction between objects of Private International Law and other private law branches of national law (civil, labor, family).

2. Conflict of laws of different states: concept, sphere of occurrence, reasons.

3. Method of Private International Law. Methods of regulation in Private International Law and their legal forms. Domestic doctrine on the method of legal regulation in Private International Law.

4. Normative composition of Private International Law. Doctrinal approaches to determining the normative composition of Private International Law.

5. The system of Private International Law as a branch of law and a branch of jurisprudence. The place of Private International Law in the legal system.

Assignments to prepare for the lesson

1. What do you see as the advantages and disadvantages of the collision and substantive methods of regulating private law relations complicated by a foreign element?

2. Do you think there will be grounds for applying Article 1186 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation to an agreement between two Russian legal entities located in Russia if one of them is an organization with foreign investments?

3. Provide a written, table-based comparative analysis of the system of international (public) law and the branch of Private International Law based on the maximum possible number of criteria.

4. Depict schematically (in writing, perhaps in Euler's circles) the existing doctrinal concepts on the place of Private International Law in the legal system. Indicate the names of scholars who are supporters of the concepts. Form your own opinion on the issue under consideration and be prepared to defend it with arguments.

Practical lesson 2. Sources of Private International Law. Unification and Harmonization in Private International Law. (2 hours).

1. The concept of the source of law. The relationship between the source and form of law.
2. Sources of Private International Law in the legislation of the Russian Federation: types, features, significance.
3. Legislation of foreign countries on Private International Law.
4. International treaty as a source of Private International Law. The concept of transformation in Private International Law.
5. The role of custom and usage, judicial and arbitration practice, doctrine in Private International Law.
6. Unification and harmonization in Private International Law.
 - a) the concept and mechanism of unification in Private International Law;
 - b) types of unification;

- c) international organizations for the unification of Private International Law and the results of unification;
- d) the concept, methods and forms of harmonization;
- e) the relationship between unification and harmonization in Private International Law;
- g) other methods of bringing law closer together: reception, adaptation, etc.

Tasks to prepare for the lesson:

1. In preparation for the lesson, answer the question whether an international treaty is a source of Private International Law. Provide arguments in favor of your position, based on the monistic and dualistic theories of understanding an international treaty, doctrine and judicial practice. Present the answer in the form of a table, where in the first column include arguments "FOR", in the second column - arguments "AGAINST".

2. The group is divided into 4 subgroups. Each subgroup prepares a presentation on the topic "Features of the sources of Private International Law" in the following countries:

- Group 1: in the post-Soviet countries;
- Group 2: in countries of the Romano-Germanic legal family, with the exception of Russia;
- Group 3: in countries of the Anglo-Saxon legal family;
- Group 4: in countries of the religious legal family.

Each group's presentation should take no more than 5 minutes. Each group compares all selected national legal systems (3-5 states) according to the following criteria: a) the presence of a separate codified act containing conflict rules; b) the method of determining the personal law of an individual; c) the method of determining the personal law of a legal entity; d) the attitude to reverse referral; d) the attitude to public order; e) the rules for qualifying legal concepts. Compare the selected countries in parallel according to each criterion. Present the result in the form of a table. Use a presentation for the presentation.

3. The features of which of the legal mechanisms of unification, harmonization and other methods of bringing the law closer together can be traced in the following legal sources:

- UN Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods, 1980;
- Bustamante Code of 1928;

Practical lesson 3. Conflict of laws rules (2 hours)

1. Conflict of laws rule: concept, structure, types and classifications.

2. Basic conflict principles, their relationship with attachment formulas.

3. Modern trends in the development of conflict rules. The phenomenon of multiple conflict ties (splitting and cumulation), new types of conflict ties (rigid, flexible) in modern Private International Law.

Assignments to prepare for the lesson

1. Select examples from domestic or foreign law for each type and classification of conflict of laws rules.
2. Consider Article 1195 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation and Article 1213 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation (separately). For each of them, answer the following questions: how many conflict rules are contained in the text of the article; determine their volume(s) and connections; determine the types of connections and the nature of their relationship.
3. When preparing for the lesson, pay attention to the law of the closest connection (Proper law) as one of the formulas of attachment: evaluate its significance (based on the norms of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation, Part III, Section VI) as a general subsidiary principle when choosing the applicable law. What complicates the application of this formula of attachment in Russian practice? Who and how establishes the "closest connection"?

Practical lesson No. 4 General principles of law enforcement in Private International Law. Features of the application of conflict rules. Problems associated with the application of foreign law (4 hours)

Lesson 4.1. Issues arising at the stage of determining the applicable law (2 hours)

1. Stages of conflict resolution and law enforcement in Private International Law: general characteristics; issues to be considered at each stage.

2. Return reference and reference to the law of a third state ("conflict of conflicts"). Basic approaches to solving the problem of return reference and reference to the law of a third state.

3. Conflict of qualifications ("hidden collisions"). Methods of solving the problem of conflict of qualifications in the Russian Federation and foreign countries.

4. "Limping" relations in Private International Law: concept, reasons for occurrence. Approaches to solving the problem of "limping" relations.

5. Preliminary conflict of laws issue. Problems of determining the applicable law.

6. Circumvention of the law in Private International Law: concept, legal consequences. Ways to solve the problem of circumvention of the law in the Russian Federation and foreign countries.

Tasks for preparation:

1) Draw up a detailed diagram reflecting the sequence of stages of conflict resolution and application of foreign lawrights to a relationship complicated by a foreign element. In the diagram, indicate the problems of Private International Law that may be encountered at each stage.

2) Analyze how a Russian court should act when it is necessary to qualify the legal concepts of "separation of spouses", "place of residence", "expression" "intentions to marry", "distribution agreement", "property rights", "trust", "lease agreement" when determining the law applicable to a relationship complicated by a foreign element.

3) A Cyprus company filed a claim with the Moscow Arbitration Court against a Russian citizen to invalidate a transaction to transfer 100% of the company's shares to the said citizen. In support of its position on the dispute, the plaintiff refers to an affidavit, according to which the company's director states before the District Court of Cyprus that he never issued a power of attorney, on the basis of which the shares were subsequently transferred to the citizen, and also provides samples of his signature.

How should a Russian court qualify the concept of "affidavit"? Can the said document be considered along with other evidence in the case?

Lesson 4.2. Issues related to establishing the content of foreign law and its application (2 hours)

1. Grounds for application of foreign law. Differences in approaches to foreign law in national legal systems. Foreign law as a factual circumstance and as a legal system.
2. Extraterritorial effect of legal norms.
3. The procedure for establishing the content of foreign law. Interpretation of foreign law. Bodies and organizations assisting in establishing the content of foreign law. The procedure for appointing an expert. Assistance of the parties to the dispute in establishing the content of foreign law.
4. Problems associated with the application of foreign law. Application of the law of a country with multiple legal systems. Interlocal, interpersonal and intertemporal collisions.
5. Limitations in the application of foreign law. Norms of direct application. The relationship between the concepts of "mandatory norms" and "super-mandatory norms". The public order clause. Reciprocity.
6. Consequences of the situation of impossibility to determine the law to be applied.

Tasks for preparation:

- 1) Analyze at least three to five decisions of courts of general jurisdiction and (or) arbitration courts of the Russian Federation, in which the Russian court applied foreign law. On what basis were the norms of foreign law applied in the cases considered?
- 2) Make a sample list of bodies and organizations competent to assist in establishing the content of foreign law. Describe the procedure for applying to the specified bodies and organizations by the parties to the dispute, as well as the procedure for the court to appoint an expert examination to establish the content of foreign law.
- 3) The arbitration court considered a case on a claim of a Russian company against a company from the United Kingdom. In this dispute, English law was applicable. Representatives of the company from the United Kingdom did not appear at the court hearings, and therefore the court imposed the obligation to establish the content of English law on the Russian party. Despite numerous inquiries to various organizations, the Russian company was unable to find specialists in the field of English law, and therefore the Russian party conducted an independent analysis of the norms of English law. In their written explanations on the case, the representatives of the Russian company cited an article by an English scholar, which described a judicial precedent applied in the United Kingdom to resolve similar issues. In addition, the parties attached to their written explanations a translation of the text of this precedent into Russian. However, the court considered such an establishment of the content of the norms of foreign law to be improper and applied Russian law to the dispute on the basis of paragraph 3 of Article 1191 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation due to the fact that the party failed to establish the content of the norms of foreign law within the specified period.

Assess the court's position. Whose responsibility is it to establish the content of foreign law?

4) A Russian citizen and a Yemeni citizen filed an application to the civil registry office to get married. The civil registry office refused to accept the application, citing the fact that Yemeni law permits polygamous marriages, which is contrary to the public order of the Russian Federation.

Is the refusal valid? What is a public policy clause?

Practical lesson 5. Individuals and legal entities in Private International Law (2 hours)

1. Legal status of individuals:

1.1. Categories of individuals in private international law.

1.2. Personal law of an individual: the difference in approaches in common law and continental law.

1.3. Scope of application of personal law.

1.4. Features of determining the personal law of an individual in countries with multiple legal systems.

1.5. Legal status of foreigners in the Russian Federation.

1.6. National and special regimes of the legal status of foreigners.

2. Legal status of legal entities:

2.1. Personal law of a legal entity and methods of its determination. The relationship between the personal law of a legal entity and its nationality.

2.2. The scope of the personal law of a legal entity.

2.3. Legal status of foreign legal entities. Legal status of Russian legal entities abroad. Types of provided regimes of legal status of legal entities.

2.4. Features of the implementation of entrepreneurial activities of foreign organizations: licensed and permitted types of activities, limits of state jurisdiction over legal entities on the Internet.

2.5. Peculiarities of the legal status of structures without the formation of a legal entity in the Russian Federation: difficulties in determining legal status.

2.6. Offshore companies. Deoffshorization measures: practice of the Russian Federation and international organizations.

2.7. Transnational companies: features of the legal status, influence on the development of national legislation.

Tasks for preparation

Task 1. Conduct a comparative analysis of the conflict of laws rules of the legislation of the Russian Federation, Switzerland, Germany, Hungary, Bulgaria, Belgium, Austria, and other countries that regulate the legal status of individuals. Try to identify new links and analyze the reasons for their appearance.

Task 2. Joint-Stock Company "Zarya" (city of Syzran) needed modern special software, "tied" to the conditions and features of the company's activities. To develop the software and implement it, two authoritative Italian specialists were invited, who at that time were traveling along the Volga, were in Samara and did not object to the proposal made to them.

The JSC administration concluded a fixed-term employment contract with each of them for one and a half years each. The necessary work was completed within one year. Based on the fact that the employment contracts were concluded at the time for one and a half years, the JSC administration sent German specialists for similar activities to a subsidiary in Sukhumi for six months.

Consider the situation on its merits. Have there been any violations of the law?

What is the procedure for attracting foreign specialists to work in Russia?

Task 3. Make a list of types of activities or occupations that are prohibited (restricted) for foreign individuals and legal entities to engage in in accordance with the current legislation of the Russian Federation (specify the grounds).

Task 4. A foreign organization, through its own website hosted on a domain in the .com domain zone, offers services of an automated platform for exchanging cryptocurrencies between themselves and cryptocurrencies for fiat and back to Russian users, including the foreign organization carries out marketing activities in the Russian segment of the Internet with the aim of attracting new users from the Russian Federation to its platform and maintaining interest among current users.

Assess the legality of such activities from the point of view of Russian legislation at the current moment.

Will your assessment change if a foreign organization is registered in a CIS country (for example, Kyrgyzstan, AIFC in Kazakhstan, HTP in Belarus) and has a license to operate a crypto exchange (a local analogue)?

Practical lesson 6. The state as a subject of Private International Law (2 hours)

1. The legal status of the state in cross-border private law relations.
2. State immunity. Doctrines of immunity: absolute, functional, limited.
3. Legal content of immunity: judicial immunity, immunity from pre-judgment measures of constraint, immunity from post-judgment measures of constraint, immunity of State property, immunity from the application of foreign law.

4. Legal nature of transactions between the state and private individuals.

5. National legal regulation of State immunity.

6. International legal regulation of State immunity.

7. Legal status of trade representative offices of the Russian Federation abroad.

Tasks for preparation:

Task 1. The embassy of a foreign state filed a claim with the State Arbitration Court of the Russian Federation against a Russian company. The claims arose from a contract. The Russian company (the contractor) filed a counterclaim against the embassy of the foreign state (the customer). The embassy cited immunity from legal proceedings in the host country.

Should the court refuse to accept the counterclaim?

Task 2. Study the decision of the Arbitration Court of St. Petersburg and the Leningrad Region dated February 9, 2015 in case No. A56-48129/2014 (<http://www.spb.arbitr.ru>) and answer the following questions.

What sources of law regulate the participation of the Consulate General of Poland in St. Petersburg in this dispute? How do these documents resolve the issue of participation?

Do you see any differences in the regulation of the immunity of a foreign state under the Civil Procedure Code of the Russian Federation and the Arbitration Procedure Code of the Russian Federation?

On what basis and for what purpose does the Arbitration Court's decision cite Article 4 of the European Convention on State Immunity of 1972? Does the participation of states whose jurisdictions are affected by the dispute have any bearing on the application of the Convention's provisions? Are Russia and Poland parties to the Convention?

Does the UN Draft Articles on Jurisdictional Immunities of States and Their Property have legal force for the parties to a dispute: what do you think; how does the arbitrator decide this question?

On what doctrine of foreign state immunity is the decision based?

What private international law institutions (doctrine) did you identify when studying the decision?

Practical lesson 7. Property relations in Private International Law. Foreign investments (2 hours)

1. Conflict of laws in regulation of cross-border property relations. Property statute.
2. Conflict of law rules applied to certain types of cross-border property relations.
3. Basic principles of foreign investment regulation. Definition and types of foreign investment. Legal status of foreign investors. Foreign investment in the Russian Federation. International legal regulation of foreign investment.

Tasks for preparation:

1. In Germany, a car was stolen from a German owner by criminals, brought to Russia and sold to a Russian buyer. These facts became known to Russian law enforcement agencies. The German owner, having learned that his car was in the hands of a Russian buyer, decided to take measures to reclaim it and filed a corresponding claim with a Russian court.

Determine the applicable law.

2. A South Korean company filed a claim with the Arbitration Court of the Sakhalin Region against a Russian limited liability company and the seaport administration to recognize the right of ownership of the vessel Pobratim, which belonged to the Russian company. The plaintiff acquired the vessel at an auction held in the Republic of Korea by a decision of a local court, but was unable to register it in its name due to the refusal of the Russian port administration to exclude the vessel from the State Ship Register of Russia.

At the time of the appeal to the Russian court, the ship had already been detained in the port of Busan (Republic of Korea) by the Korean authorities in connection with the property claims of the Korean company against the Russian company.

Which state's law should the Russian court apply??

3. A Chinese citizen sought advice from a Russian law firm. He wanted to know whether the Russian state was obliged to provide him with adequate protection and ensure the safety of his investments in the Russian economy.

Provide advice to a Chinese citizen with references to the norms of international treaties and Russian legislation.

Practical lesson 8. Contractual Obligations in Private International Law. Cross-Border Commercial Transactions (4 hours)

8.1 Concept of international transactions. Cross-border commercial transactions (2 hours)

1. The concept of an international transaction and the concept of a cross-border commercial transaction: general and specific.

2. Form of international transactions. Validity and form of cross-border commercial transactions.

3. Types of Cross-Border Commercial Transactions

- a) international sale and purchase agreement;
- b) international financial leasing agreement;
- c) international factoring agreement;
- d) international distribution agreement, agency agreement.

4. A system for regulating cross-border commercial transactions.

4.1 Specifics of the substantive legal method of regulating cross-border commercial transactions. The provisions of paragraph 4 of Article 15 of the Constitution of the Russian Federation, paragraph 2 of Article 7 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation, paragraph 3 of Article 1186 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation on the role of international treaties of the Russian Federation.

4.2 Conflict of laws regulation of international transactions:

- the principle of autonomy of will (lex voluntatis): content, forms of expression, limits;
- the law of the closest connection (proper law of the contract),
- the law of characteristic performance (lex causae);
- the law of the seller's country (lex venditoris).

Tasks for preparation:

Task 1. Paragraph 2 of Article 7 of the 1980 UN Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods provides the following: “Questions relating to the subject matter of this Convention that are not expressly resolved therein shall be resolved in accordance with the general principles on which it is based and, in the absence of such principles, in accordance with the law applicable by virtue of the rules of private international law.”

Develop an algorithm for determining the applicable law on issues not regulated by the Convention. What factors should be taken into account when determining the applicable law?

Task 2. Formulate approaches to defining a “cross-border” transaction, illustrating with examples from judicial practice, and present in the form of a table.

Task 3. Make a table of the studied types of cross-border commercial transactions, comparing them according to key legal criteria: concept, subjects, subject matter, sources of regulation, conflict of laws regulation, etc.

8.2. Non-governmental forms of regulation of cross-border commercial transactions. Obligatory status of the transaction (2 hours)

1. The essence and significance of trade customs, business practices and judicial practice.

2. An informal codification of trade customs. International (governmental and non-governmental) organizations, associations of entrepreneurs in different countries engaged in unofficial codification: International Chamber of Commerce (Paris), UNIDROIT, UNCITRAL.

3. The concept of lex mercatoria. INCOTERMS - 2020. UNIDROIT Principles 2004 (2016 edition)

4. Statute of obligations. Content of the concept of "applicable law".

Tasks for preparation:

Task 1. The parties entered into a sales contract in which they made a reference to INCOTERMS, without, however, specifying a specific version or a specific basic condition.

Is it possible to refer to INCOTERMS to establish the rights and obligations of the parties? Does INCOTERMS apply to domestic relations?

Task 2. When concluding a contract, a Russian organization, through fraudulent actions, knowingly and intentionally misled an American company regarding the subject of the contract, in connection with which the American company filed a claim in a Russian court for the recovery of so-called "punitive damages" in the amount of 100 times the amount of damages, the recovery of which is permitted by the American law applicable to the contract (the law of the state of Texas) in the presence of facts of deception and fraud on the part of the counterparty.

Should the Russian court satisfy this requirement?

Practical lesson 9. Monetary obligations in Private International Law (2 hours)

1. Concept and types of international monetary obligations.

2. Currency and financial conditions of international commercial contracts: price, contract currency and payment currency, payment terms (term, place and form), currency clauses, condition on the form of settlements.

3. International monetary settlements: concept, content, forms.

4. Peculiarities of regulation of international settlement relations. Uniform Customs and Practice for Documentary Credits 2006 (UCP 600). Uniform Rules for Collections 1995 (URC 522).

5. Electronic presentation of documents under letters of credit and collection.
Supplement to the UCP for the electronic presentation of documents (eUCP 2. 0).
Supplement to the URC for the electronic presentation of documents (eURC 1. 1).

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

1) Formulate currency clauses for inclusion in an international commercial contract:

- a direct reservation;
- an indirect clause;
- multi-currency clause, etc.

Task 1. A Russian company (seller) and a Chinese company (buyer) entered into a contract for the supply of cotton. According to the agreement between the parties, payment was to be made under an irrevocable letter of credit and, in order to receive payment, the seller was to submit to the executing bank a bill of lading, an invoice, a copy of the contract and a certificate confirming the quality of the cotton. After the letter of credit was opened, on behalf of the Chinese company, the issuing bank transmitted information about the opened letter of credit to the Russian company through the advising bank. However, the notification contained information about the opening of a revocable letter of credit and also required the submission of several certificates of cotton quality. The Russian company refused to supply the goods. The Chinese company filed a claim in arbitration.

Questions:

1. Did the Russian company do the right thing?
2. What is the procedure for opening a letter of credit and its execution?
3. Will the situation change if the Russian company fulfills its obligations under the main agreement and submits to the executing bank the documents previously agreed upon in the agreement?

Task 2. A contract for the sale and purchase of silk was concluded between a Kazakh company (seller) and a German company (buyer). The contract price was seventeen million euros. Payment was to be made in tenge at the exchange rate of the Central Bank of Kazakhstan at the time of performance of the obligation. Payment was not made on time. The seller filed a lawsuit. In objecting to the demands for payment of a penalty for late payment, the German company referred to the presence of force majeure, indicating that at the time of performance there was not enough Kazakh currency in its account to make the payment.

Questions:

1. Determine the applicable law and resolve the dispute.
2. Is the position of the German company justified? Would the situation change if the German company fulfilled the obligation on time, but in euros?

Task 3. According to the international sales contract concluded between a Russian organization (seller) and a German organization (buyer), payments under the contract were made in the form of a confirmed letter of credit. The letter of credit was confirmed by an English bank. After the goods were shipped, the buyer presented all the necessary documents, but the money was not transferred within the specified period (due to insufficient funds in the issuing bank account). The buyer filed a claim with a Russian court against the English bank.

Questions:

1. Analyze the buyer's actions. Who should be held responsible in this situation?
2. What are the specifics of determining liability when opening a confirmed letter of credit in the situation of cross-border private law relations?

Regulatory legal acts and judicial practice:

1. Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods, 1980

Practical lesson 10. Law of cross-border transportation of goods and passengers (2 hours)

1. Concept and types of international transportation. Main characteristics, features of legal regulation.

2. International agreements and national law as sources of legal regulation. Application of conflict principles: the law of autonomy of will (lex voluntatis), the law of the carrier's country (proper law of the contract), the law of the place where the contract was concluded (lex loci contractus), flag law (lex flagi), the law of the country of the court (lex fori).

3. Subjects of international transportation. Peculiarities of the legal status of an international carrier. Liability of an international carrier. Grounds and conditions of liability.

4. Form of the contract of international carriage. Bill of lading and its types, charter agreement, waybill, ticket, receipt.

5. Peculiarities of legal regulation of certain types of transportation. International sea, air, rail, road and mixed (combined) transportation of goods and passengers.

Tasks for preparation

Task 1. What kind of transportation will be considered international in accordance with the Convention on the Contract for the International Carriage of Goods by Road? What are the grounds and conditions of the carrier's liability in accordance with the CMR?

Task 2. Two contracts were concluded between a Russian airline and a Russian organization (shipper) for the carriage of helicopter equipment (gearbox) and printing equipment (printers) worth USD 900,000 and USD 66,000 respectively from Russia to Turkey. The carriage contracts were executed by two air waybills, but the goods were shipped on one flight. A clause limiting the carrier's liability to USD 330,000 was made with respect to the helicopter equipment, and to USD 20 per kg with respect to the printing equipment. As a result of the unsuccessful landing in Turkey, all goods were damaged and completely unusable.

Please resolve the issue of the carrier's liability, given that the carriage was carried out on the basis of the Warsaw Convention of 1929 as amended by the Hague Protocol of 1955. Would the court's decision change if the Montreal Convention on International Carriage by Air of 1999 had been applied to the carriage?

Task 3. Draft a contract for the international carriage of cargo by air from Russia to China that complies with the requirements of the Montreal Convention of 1999. What are the differences in the carrier's liability under the provisions of the Montreal Convention of 1999 and the rules of the Warsaw System?

Practical lesson 11. Non-contractual obligations in private international law (2 hours)

1. Cross-border non-contractual obligations: definition, types.
2. Conflict of laws regulation of tort obligations in Russia and in foreign countries. Tort statute. New approaches to the choice of law for non-contractual obligations.
3. Conflict of laws regulation of other non-contractual obligations: unjust enrichment, unfair competition and unfair negotiations.
4. Special cases of tort liability in international treaties.

Tasks for preparation:

1. A Russian tourist group arrived in Turkey. At the hotel where the group was staying, a young child of one of the tourists broke a floor vase, which was an art object, during an active game. The child's parent refused to compensate for the damage, citing that the child had acted unintentionally and that the incident should be classified as an accident. The hotel administration filed a claim for damages against the child's parents in a Russian court.

Determine the applicable law.

2. A traffic accident involving a Russian and a Kazakh tourist occurred Greece. Both drivers were driving cars rented from specialized companies. During the investigation, the Greek police considered the Russian tourist to be the culprit of the accident. The Kazakh tourist filed a claim against the Russian tourist for compensation for damages incurred as a result of damage to the rented car and payment of the corresponding amount to the company that rented the car. At the trial, which was held in Russia, the parties agreed to apply Russian law to their dispute.

Determine the applicable law.

3. Two nationals from Uzbekistan were carrying out construction works in Moscow. As a result of his careless actions, one of the Uzbek builders caused harm to another. The victim filed a claim to a Russian court.

Determine the applicable law applying the Convention on Legal Assistance and Legal Relations in Civil, Family and Criminal Matters (2002). Would the situation change if the tortfeasor and the victim were German citizens?

Practical lesson 12. Marital, family and inheritance relations in Private International Law (2 hours)

1. Features of legal regulation of marital, family and inheritance relations complicated by a foreign element.

1.2. Conflict of laws regulation of marriage and divorce. Legal relations between spouses.

1.3. Conflict of laws regulation of relations between spouses, between parents and children.

2. Basic conflict of laws principles applicable to cross-border inheritance relations. Inheritance statute.

2.1 Conflict of laws regulation of inheritance by law

2.2 Conflict of laws regulation of inheritance by will

2.3 Escheat property.

Tasks for preparation:

Task 1. In 2019, a Russian citizen filed a lawsuit against a Latvian citizen in the Khamovnichesky Court of Moscow for divorce.

Having examined the circumstances of this case, the magistrate issued a ruling granting the parties a period of 3 months for reconciliation.

The defendant's representative, who did not agree with the provision of a three-month period for reconciliation, insisted on the provision of a six-month period, referring to the Civil Law of the Republic of Latvia of 1937 (Part I - Family Law, Article 74).

Can a Russian court apply Latvian law to determine the period for reconciliation? In what situations should a Russian court apply foreign family law?

Task 2. A British citizen A., residing in Russia, proposed to his wife, a Russian citizen S., also residing in Russia, to enter into a marriage contract. Not trusting the unstable political and economic situation, he refused to draw up and sign any documents in Russia and insisted on concluding a marriage contract in the UK in accordance with the legislation in force there.

S., who has no idea about the UK marriage and family law and does not know English legal terminology, objected to concluding a marriage contract in the territory of this state, but agreed to conclude a marriage contract in Russia, in Russian and in accordance with Russian law. She also motivated her decision by the fact that in the UK they do not have any property and have not lived there since the wedding, while in Russia they have a car, an apartment, a house, constantly work in the territory of the Russian Federation and receive all income in rubles and place it in ruble accounts in Russian banks.

Provide detailed, reasoned advice to S. regarding her options for concluding a marriage contract and the legal consequences of concluding it in Russia and the UK.

Task 3. Answer the questions with justification.

1. What is the order of inheritance for a child from the first marriage of an Englishman with a Russian citizen when an inheritance case is considered in a Russian court? In an English court?

2. Which country should be considered the last place of residence of the testator in the following cases:

- a Russian citizen has an apartment in Russia, where his wife lives, and works on a rotational basis in Norway (120 days of work; 40 days of rest);

- a Russian citizen lives in Russia for most of the year, and in Thailand during the cold months (up to 5 months); he works online, under an employment contract with an American company;

- a Russian citizen is undergoing a two-year internship in Germany, after which he plans to move to the United States;

- a Chinese citizen moves to Ireland for the purpose of giving birth to a child and subsequently obtaining Irish citizenship;

- a Russian citizen has been staying with her fiancé in Portugal for two months.

Practical lesson 13. Intellectual property in Private International Law (4 hours)

Lesson 13. 1. International Copyright (2 hours)

1. A general characteristic of international copyright treaties. The main differences between the Berne and the Universal Convention.

2. Grounds for granting convention protection to the rights of authors. Criteria of Eligibility for Protection.

3. The principle of national treatment.

4. Copyright protection and formalities.

5. Terms of copyright protection.

6. Features of protection of published and unpublished works, collections and other composite works, derivative works, cinematic works.

7. Personal non-property rights of authors

8. Exclusive rights of authors. For each right to state cases where the protection of that right is allowed to be restricted. Differences in translation rights in the Bern and Universal Conventions. Translation on the basis of exclusive licenses.

9. Permissible exemptions of certain works from protection and cases of free use of works.

10. Developing countries and the protection of works of science, literary and artistic works.

11. Peculiarities of copyright protection in the USA. Changes in the US copyright law as a result of joining the Berne Convention.

Tasks for preparation

Task No 1. A citizen of Turkmenistan published his collection of essays through a local printing house. A year later, this collection was published by a Russian citizen in the territory of the Russian Federation without the author's permission. The Russian citizen received income in the form of a percentage of sales of the collection in Russia.

What object of copyright appears in the task? What international agreements regulate the protection of copyright on this object? Was there a violation of copyright and which ones exactly? The law of which state will apply to the protection of the exclusive and non-property rights of the Turkmen author in relation to his collection of works on the territory of the Russian Federation?

Task No. 2. 1. Study the Berne Convention for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works of 09.09.1886 (as amended on 28.09.1979), the Universal Copyright Convention of 06.09.1952, the World Intellectual Property Organization Treaties on Copyright of 20.12.1996. Make a comparative table based on possible criteria.

2. Compare the concepts of "publication" and "release". Specify the differences in the protection regimes for published/released and unpublished/not released works. How are the beginning and end of their protection periods calculated?

3. What is meant by public domain? List the types of intellectual property that make it up.

Task No. 3. In the end of December 2005, the Vatican Law came into force, under which all rights to publish any sayings of the pontiffs pass to the official publishing house of the Vatican. The law has retroactive effect and applies not only to all future sayings by Pope Benedict XVI, but also to the sayings of his predecessors over the past 50 years.

How are the issue of citation being resolved by international documents?

Task No. 4. Historians (M. Bagent and R. Ley) accused the writer Dan Brown, author of the book "The Da Vinci Code", of plagiarism. They claimed that in his book D. Brown used the ideas put forward by them 24 years ago in the scientific work "Holy Blood and the Holy Grail", in particular, they pointed out that

D. Brown "borrowed" their thesis that Jesus Christ and Mary Magdalene had a child through which the genus of the Son of God continues to this day.

1. What is plagiarism? How is this issue regulated, and what are the international instruments?

2. Is it possible to classify the situation as plagiarism? What are the consequences for the parties to the dispute if plagiarism is established?

Lesson 13. 2. International legal protection of industrial property (2 hours)

1. Rules of the Paris Convention 1883, dedicated to the protection of different industrial property rights: compulsory licenses; rules on the free use of patented objects; "indirect protection", etc.

2. Practice of applying the provisions of the Paris Convention 1883 in Russia.

3. Rules of the Agreement on Trade-Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights (TRIPS) 1994 on the protection of inventions, industrial designs, trademarks and geographical indications: protected objects; conditions for obtaining a patent, scope of rights of the owner of the patent, term of protection, use of the patented object without the permission of the owner of the patent.

4. Legislation of the Russian Federation and the provisions of the TRIPS Agreement on the protection of industrial property rights.

5. Patent Cooperation Treaty 1970. Characteristics. Procedures. International application. Phases and stages of consideration.

6. Geneva Act of the Hague Agreement Concerning the International Registration of Industrial Designs 1999 year. Filing an international application. International registration of an industrial design.

7. General provisions of regional patent systems (European and Eurasian patent systems).

8. Madrid Agreement Concerning the International Registration of Marks 1891 and Protocol Relating to the Madrid Agreement Concerning the International Registration of Marks 1989.

Tasks for preparation:

Task 1. Entertainment One UK Ltd., a UK company and the owner of the popular animated series Peppa Pig and related intellectual property, filed a lawsuit with the Kirov Region Arbitration Court (Case No. A28-11930/2021) demanding that IP Kozhevnikov pay 40,000 rubles in compensation for violating exclusive rights to two trademarks and two works (drawings - images of Peppa Pig and Daddy Pig), as well as legal costs. IP Kozhevnikov sold goods marked with a trademark and containing images owned by the plaintiff, without the consent of the plaintiff-copyright holder. The court, referring to the Decree of the President of the Russian Federation of 28.02. 2022 No. 79 "On the application of special economic measures in connection with the unfriendly actions of the United States of America and foreign states and international organizations that have joined them" and Article 10 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation on abuse of rights, taking into account that the copyright holder is a company from an unfriendly state (Great Britain), refused to satisfy the claims.

Analyze the operation of the national regime for providing legal protection for intellectual property, in particular industrial property. Assess the court's argument that an appeal to protect the exclusive rights of a company from an unfriendly state is an abuse of rights. What circumstances should the court take into account in such cases?

Task 2. The PAG company purchased 60 packages of special SONY paper for an ultrasound machine for a Russian hospital. In fact, it purchased the goods in Poland and imported them to the Russian Federation. However, it was original, non-counterfeit paper manufactured by SONY but sold in Poland. The goods did not have time to clear customs due to a claim filed by Sony Corporation to protect exclusive rights to a trademark (case No. A21-7328/2014). The PAG company subsequently even appealed to the Constitutional Court (Resolution of the Constitutional Court of the Russian Federation dated 13. 02. 2018 N 8-P "On the case of verifying the constitutionality of the provisions of paragraph 4 of Article 1252, Article 1487 and paragraphs 1, 2 and 4 of Article 1515 of the Civil Code of the Russian Federation in connection with the complaint of the limited liability company PAG")

Analyze the effect of the territorial principle of protection of rights to the SONY trademark using the example of the case No. A21-7328/2014 on the protection of exclusive rights. Have the rights to the Sony trademark been exhausted when purchasing goods in Poland for the needs of a Russian medical institution? Is there a violation of competition law?

Task 3. In 2023, the Government of the Russian Federation issued an order (No. 3937-r dated 27.12. 2023), according to which the companies Geropharm and Promomed Rus are allowed to use the inventions of the Danish company Novo Nordisk A/S (protected by Russian patents) to produce drugs with the international non-proprietary name Semaglutide for the treatment of diabetes. The Government of the Russian Federation made this decision taking into account the statement of the foreign copyright holder to stop deliveries of the drug to Russia due to extreme necessity related to the protection of the life and health of citizens.

Analyze the legal basis for such decisions. Does the decision relate to the compulsory license mechanism? How are the specified relations regulated by the provisions of the TRIPS Agreement?

Task 4. One of the projects of the Belgian Wim Delvoye created in 2000 is a fantastic "Cloaca" mechanism that embodies the idea of artificial life. The machine is able to absorb, digest food and eliminate the result of these processes from its "body". "Cloaca" was brought to the exhibition in Moscow in September 2008 year...

Is the mechanism invented by Wim Delvoye: a) an object of international legal protection of intellectual property; b) the object of protection of international intellectual property law? Justify your conclusions and support with references to specific articles of international treaties.

Practical lesson 14. International civil procedure (4 hours)

14.1: The concept of International civil litigation. International jurisdiction (2 hours)

1. The concept of international civil litigation. The relationship between international civil litigation and private international law.

2. Sources of the international civil litigation.

3. The concept of international jurisdiction. The main systems of establishing jurisdiction.

4. Exclusive judicial jurisdiction. Anti-suit injunctions in accordance with art. 248.1 of the APC RF.

5. Choice of court agreement. Rules of validity and enforceability of choice of court agreements.

6. The procedural status of foreign individuals and legal entities, a foreign state, and international organizations. Civil procedural legal capacity and legal capacity of foreign citizens and stateless persons. Restrictions. Court bail.

Tasks for preparation:

1. The Heilongjiang company of the People's Republic of China, which carries out work on the decoration of a building in the city of Ussuriysk, filed a lawsuit against JSC "Worker". In the response, the defendant argued that the Arbitrazh Court does not have jurisdiction, since the plaintiff does not have a representative office in the Russian Federation. The Arbitrazh Court refused to accept the claim due to the lack of jurisdiction, as the parties had not concluded a written agreement on the transfer of the dispute involving a foreign person to the Arbitrazh Court.

Evaluate the correctness of the court's decision.

2. The Russian company filed a claim with the Moscow Arbitrazh Court against the Polish company on the basis of a prorogation agreement incorporated into the contract between the parties. The Polish company challenged the jurisdiction of the Arbitrazh Court on the grounds that the prorogation agreement was incorporated into an invalid contract. The Arbitrazh court, having assessed the prorogation agreement contained in the contract, accepted the proceedings and ruled on the invalidity of the contract. The Polish side appealed the court's decision on the grounds that the case was taken in violation of the rules of jurisdiction, due to the invalidity of the prorogation agreement incorporated into the invalid contract.

Evaluate the correctness of the court's decision.

14.2: International legal aid (2 hours)

1. International legal aid. The main manners of execution of letters of request.
2. Grounds for refusal to execute letters of request in international treaties and legislation of the Russian Federation.
3. Consular legalization and apostillation.
4. The legal basis and litigation for the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments in Russia.
5. Grounds for refusal to execute a foreign court decision. Judicial practice on the recognition and enforcement of foreign judgments in the Russian Federation.
6. The legal basis for the recognition and enforcement of judgments abroad.

Tasks for preparation:

1. The company located on the territory of Kazakhstan was notified of the court proceedings in the Moscow Arbitration Court by sending a registered letter. The Arbitrazh Court of the Russian Federation recognized the notification of the foreign defendant by registered mail as appropriate, since the notification was served according to the rules provided for by the procedural legislation of Kazakhstan.

Is the service should be considered as duly service?

2. The Economic Court of Kazakhstan has transmitted a letter of request in the form of seizure of the property of the Russian Federation company to the Arbitrazh Court of Moscow. The basis of the court order was the CIS Agreement on the Litigation for Resolving Disputes Related to Business Activities in 1992.

Will the court order be executed?

Practical lesson 15. International commercial arbitration (4 hours)

15.1 International Commercial Arbitration: Basics of Activity (2 hours)

1. International commercial arbitration: concept, legal nature, types.
2. Theories of the legal nature of international commercial arbitration: contractual, procedural, mixed.
3. Requirements for the implementation of activities of permanent arbitration institutions (PAI).
4. The world's main arbitration centres: general characteristics (International Commercial Arbitration Court at the Russian Chamber of Commerce and Industry, China International Economic and Trade Arbitration Commission (CIETAC), Hong Kong International Arbitration Centre (HKIAC), Dubai International Arbitration Centre (DIAC), International Arbitration Court at the International Chamber of Commerce in Paris, London Court of International Arbitration, American Arbitration Association, Arbitration Institute of the Stockholm Chamber of Commerce, International Arbitration Court of the Federal Economic Chamber of Vienna).
5. Arbitration agreement: concept, legal nature, types. Autonomous nature of the arbitration agreement. Alternative arbitration clauses. Applicable law to the arbitration agreement.

Tasks for preparation:

1. A French company entered into a cross-border contract for the supply of computer equipment with a Russian company. The French company sent an arbitration clause to the International Commercial Arbitration Court at the Chamber of Commerce and Industry of the Russian Federation in Moscow by e-mail, with which the Russian party agreed during telephone conversations. Taking into account the absence of an arbitration clause in the contract, the French party filed a claim with the Moscow Arbitration Court, whose jurisdiction was contested by the Russian party, insisting on the validity of the arbitration clause. The French party agreed to the arbitration agreement, and the arbitration court referred the parties to arbitration. Subsequently, the arbitrators ruled against the Russian company, which, refusing to voluntarily comply with the commercial arbitration award, insisted in the arbitration court on the impossibility of recognizing and enforcing the award due to the invalidity of the arbitration agreement.

Simulate a court decision.

2. Prepare a comparative table of the terms and conditions of the regulations of any three world arbitration centers of your choice.

Topic 15.2. Cancellation and recognition and enforcement of a foreign arbitral award (2 hours)

1. Grounds for the annulment of an arbitration award in accordance with the European Convention on International Commercial Arbitration of 1961 and Russian legislation.

2. Approaches to the selection of applicable law in the main arbitration centers.

3. Recognition and enforcement of foreign arbitral awards. Grounds for refusal to recognize and enforce foreign arbitral awards.

4. Prohibition on initiation and continuation of proceedings in foreign arbitration courts in accordance with Article 248.1 of the Arbitration Procedure Code of the Russian Federation. Practice of application.

5. Alternative dispute resolution (negotiations, mediation, reconciliation, med-arb, etc.).

6. Mediation procedure under Russian law.

Tasks for preparation

1. In considering the application to set aside the arbitration award on the grounds that the arbitration agreement was invalid, the court did not find that the agreement was invalid or unenforceable, but on its own motion examined the circumstances of the notice to the parties and found that the party had not been properly notified of the appointment of the arbitrator and of the arbitration proceedings. As a result, the arbitration award was set aside.

Are the court's actions legal?

2. Prepare a comparative table of the main alternative dispute resolution methods.

2.4. Independent work

Independent work is carried out in the form of studying primary and secondary literature, regulatory materials on the academic discipline.

In order to more deeply and qualitatively master the academic discipline, to form and consolidate the necessary competencies, students can conduct independent research work on current theoretical and practical issues of Private International Law, since individual topics of the course, due to the limited number of academic hours, did not receive detailed coverage in practical classes, but are of interest to domestic legal science and practice.

Students, upon agreement with the teacher, have the right to choose one or more topics for independent study for writing an essay or report. When studying any additional topic, first of all, they must familiarize themselves with the existing educational, monographic literature and regulatory materials on it. The list of necessary sources is contained in the lists of literature and regulatory materials of this program (section 6 "Educational and methodological support") and can be clarified upon the recommendation of the teacher.

Selected topics can be discussed at seminars in an interactive format: in the form of debates, colloquiums, business games.

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF MASTERING THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

In order to record the results of mastering the modules of the discipline "Private International Law", at the last lesson of the module the teacher conducts a control check of the level of knowledge of the students. The check, at the teacher's discretion, can be carried out in one of the following forms: testing, solving problems, writing an essay or a paper. Sample test questions, essay topics, papers are presented below. At the request of the student, the topic of the written work can be agreed upon individually (in advance).

Based on the results of the check, the teacher enters a grade into the electronic journal.

UC-3 Is able to carry out social interaction and realize his role in the team.

General professional competencies:

GPC-3 Is able to participate in expert legal activities within the framework of the assigned task;

GPC-8 Is able to purposefully and effectively obtain legally relevant information from various sources, including legal databases, and solve professional tasks using information technology and taking into account information security requirements.

GPC-9 Is able to understand the principles of modern information technologies and use them to solve professional tasks.

Professional competencies:

PC-3 Capable of carrying out law enforcement activities, including functions and powers to ensure security, law and order, and to protect human and civil rights and freedoms;

PC-4 Is able to provide legal assistance to citizens and organizations and other types of legal services, provide qualified professional opinions and consultations in specific areas of legal activity.

As a result of mastering the discipline (module) "Criminalistics", the student must:

a) know the object, subject, methods of criminalistics; classification of crime traces, basic technical and forensic tools and methods of their collection and research; tactics of investigative actions; forms and methods of organization of disclosure, investigation and prevention of crimes; methods of disclosure and investigation specific types and groups of crimes;

b) be able to interpret various legal facts, law enforcement and law enforcement practices; identify, prevent, disclose and investigate crimes and other offenses; apply technical and forensic tools and methods; correctly raise issues to be resolved during preliminary research and forensic examinations; analyze and correctly evaluate the content of expert (specialist) conclusions; to classify forensic versions; to differentiate tactics and operations in relation to various investigative situations; to explain the essence and significance of the criminalistic methodology for investigating crimes of a particular type (group); to prevent offenses, identify and eliminate the causes and conditions conducive to their commission;

c) possess skills in the use of technical and forensic tools and methods for detecting, recording and removing traces and physical evidence; skills in the use of tactical techniques in the conduct of individual investigative actions; methods for distinguishing between different types of crimes depending on the method of their commission and the investigative situations developing at the initial stage of the investigation; skills in identifying circumstances contributing to the commission of crimes; the basics of planning and implementing activities for the investigation of crimes, prevention and prevention of offenses.

II. STRUCTURE AND CONTENT OF THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

The volume of the discipline (module) is 4 credit units (144 academic hour). The form of intermediate certification is a test or exam.

2.1. Thematic plans

2.1.1. Thematic plan for full-time education

Note. In order to record the results of mastering the discipline module, the teacher in the last lesson of the module conducts a control check of the students' level of knowledge by testing, selectively using the questions specified in section II of the Assessment Materials for the ongoing monitoring of academic performance and intermediate certification of students in the discipline (module).

2.2. Lecture-type classes

Lecture 1. Criminalistics: history of development, subject and system

Content:

1. History of criminalistics development.

2. Subject, tasks and system of criminalistics.
3. The place of criminalistics in the system of scientific knowledge.

Preparation task:

Repeat the methods of scientific cognition, concepts and classifications of sciences.

Lecture 2. The concept and essence of forensic identification and diagnostics

Content:

1. The concept and classification of traces in criminalistics.
2. Basic concepts of criminalistic (forensic) identification.
3. Basic concepts of criminalistic (forensic) diagnostics.

Preparation task:

Repetition of the logical concept of identity and general scientific methods of cognition.

Lecture 3. General provisions of forensic technology

Content:

1. The concept and tasks of forensic technology as a branch of the science of criminalistics.
2. Branches of forensic technology.
3. The legal basis for the use of technical and forensic tools in the investigation of crimes.

Preparation task:

Repeat the articles of the Code of Criminal Procedure of the Russian Federation providing for the use of technical means in court proceedings.

Lecture 4. Forensic examination of documents

Content:

1. The document as an object of forensic research.
2. Classification of documents.
3. Rules for handling documents-physical evidence.

Preparation task:

The repetition of the concept of a document in various branches of jurisprudence.

Lecture 5. Criminalistic tactics: basic concepts and system

Content:

1. The essence and main categories of criminalistic tactics.
2. The system of criminalistic tactics as a branch of the science of criminalistics.
3. The concept and classification of forensic versions.
4. General characteristics of investigation planning and organization.

Preparation task:

Repetition of the provisions on human and civil rights and freedoms (Chapter 2 of the Constitution of the Russian Federation), the principles of criminal procedure (Chapter 2 of the Code of Criminal Procedure) and the general rules of investigation (Chapter 21 of the Code of Criminal Procedure).

Lecture 6. Tactics of investigative inspection

Content:

1. The concept and types of investigative inspection.
2. Basic rules of the investigative examination.
3. Tactics and ethics of investigative examination.

Preparation task:

Repetition of articles of the Criminal Procedure Code of the Russian Federation regulating the conduct of certain investigative actions.

Lecture 7. Countering the investigation and ways to overcome it

Content:

1. The concept, subjects, and methods of countering the investigation of crimes.
2. Overcoming opposition to the investigation.
3. The use of special knowledge in overcoming counteraction to the investigation of crimes.

Preparation tasks:

1. To repeat the general provisions of criminalistic tactics: concept, subject, classification of tactics, combinations and operations.
2. To repeat the general provisions of criminalistic methodology: the concept, subject, system, classification of criminalistic situations.

Lecture 8. General provisions of the criminalistic methodology for investigating certain types of crimes

Content:

1. Criminalistic methods of investigation of certain types of crimes as a branch of the science of criminalistics.
2. The concept and meaning of the criminalistic characteristics of a crime.

3. Elements of the criminalistic characteristics of the crime.

Preparation task:

Repetition of the main provisions of previously studied sections of criminalistics.

2.3. Seminar-type classes

Practical lesson 1. Object, subject and methods of criminalistics.

1. The object and subject of criminalistics.
2. Methods of criminalistics: concept and system.
3. The main stages of the formation of criminalistics as an independent branch of knowledge.
4. The development of criminalistics in foreign countries.

Preparation tasks:

1. Essay: Stages of the development of the science of criminalistics.
2. Draw up a diagram reflecting the place of criminalistics in the system of sciences.

Practical lesson 2. Types and stages of identification and diagnostic studies.

1. Scientific foundations of forensic identification.
2. Objects, subjects of forensic identification.
3. Types of identification studies.
4. The identification process and the stages of identification research.
5. Tasks, stages and types of diagnostic studies.

Preparation tasks:

1. Schematically display the classification of identification objects.
2. Identify identification and diagnostic tasks from the list proposed by the teacher.

Practical lesson 3. Classification of technical and forensic tools. Forensic photography, audio and video recording.

1. Types of technical and forensic tools.
2. Technical and criminalistic means used in the course of investigative actions.
3. Technical and forensic tools used in the production of preliminary and expert studies.
4. The use of technical and forensic tools to solve other forensic problems.

Preparation assignment:

Essay: Application of automated biometric systems for crime prevention.

Laboratory workshop 1. Forensic photography, audio and video recording.

1. To take a recording photograph of a simulated accident site on the teacher's instructions.
2. Arrange the results in the form of a photo table.

Note: during the laboratory workshop (laboratory work), forensic equipment is used: a set of an investigative worker (in a suitcase), a unified forensic suitcase “Criminalist” for the inspection of a crime-scene, a smartphone with a camera, a foto camera, and a computer.

Practical lesson 4. The criminalistic doctrine of human appearance.

1. The scientific basis of identifying a person by physical appearance.
2. Ways to obtain representations of a person's appearance.
3. Sources of information about a person's appearance.

Preparation tasks:

1. Describe your appearance (face) using the method of making a verbal portrait.
2. Formulate the issues to be resolved during the portrait examination.

Practical lesson 5. Tracology.

1. Scientific foundations and objectives of tracology.
2. Human footprints.
3. Traces of tools, tools, mechanisms.
4. Vehicle tracks.

Preparation assignment:

Essay: The importance of tracology in crime investigation.

Laboratory workshop 2. Tracology.

1. Leave a trace of any finger on the subject proposed by the teacher. Identify it and copy it onto a film.
2. To compile a fragment of the protocol of the inspection of the scene in terms of the detection and removal of the fingerprint, as well as the packaging of this object.

3. Schematically, on an arbitrary scale, sketch or photograph one of the clearest shoe marks left on any surface (for example, paper), indicating the markings of its main elements and dimensions. Make up a fragment of the inspection protocol with measurements of all trace parameters, enter them into the diagram, and use the arrows to indicate specific signs.

Note: during the laboratory workshop (laboratory work), forensic equipment is used: a fingerprint scanner with software; a handprint kit, a magnifying glass; a "Footprint track"; printing products (posters).

Practical lesson 6. Forensic weapons science.

1. The concept and classification of weapons.
2. General provisions of forensic weapons science.
3. Forensic ballistics.
4. Forensic examination of cold steel and throwing weapons.
5. Forensic examination of explosive weapons and traces of their use.

Preparation assignment:

Essay: Determining the distance of a shot.

Practical lesson 7. Forensic investigation of substances, materials and products. Forensic examination of odour traces.

1. Substances, materials and products as objects of forensic investigation.
2. The forensic significance of micro-objects
3. General characteristics of odour traces.
4. Rules for dealing with odor traces.

Preparation assignment:

Essay: Expert study of odour traces in the investigation of crimes.

Practical lesson 8. Technical and forensic examination of documents. Forensic handwriting.

1. The concept, tasks and types of technical and forensic examination of documents.
2. Forgery of documents and methods of its detection.
3. Properties and signs of handwriting.
4. Objects of handwriting research.

Preparation tasks:

1. Inspect and describe the identity document.
2. According to the lecture notes, identify common features and alphabetize the specific features of your handwriting.

Practical lesson 9. Forensic examination of written speech.

1. Speech as a source of significant for criminalistics information about a person.
2. Tasks of criminalistic authorship.
3. Types and tasks of linguistic research of texts.

Preparation assignment:

Abstract: Identification and diagnostic tasks in the study of written speech.

Practical lesson 10. Forensic phonoscopy.

1. The concept and tasks of forensic phonoscopy.
2. The system of signs of oral speech.
3. Expert study of phonograms of oral speech.

Preparation task:

According to the conditional plot of the crime (extortion), prepare a resolution on the appointment of a phonoscopic examination (in order to identify the identity of the extortionist) in relation to the situation when the victim receives a threatening voice message.

Practical lesson 11. Forensic registration.

1. The procedure for carrying out forensic registration.
2. Operational reference, search and forensic records.
3. Forensic accounting.

Preparation task:

According to the conditional plot of the crime, determine the types of records to be used.

Practical lesson 12. General provisions of investigative tactics.

1. The concept of criminally significant information.
2. The nature and types of investigative actions.
3. Features of obtaining significant for criminalistics information in the process of interpersonal communication.
4. Detection, fixation and seizure of computer information.

Assignment for preparation:

Summary: Features of communication in the production of investigative actions.

Practical lesson 13. Tactics of certain types of investigative inspection.

1. Tactics of examining the scene of an accident: preparation, methods of conducting, recording progress and results.
2. Features of examination of the corpse at the place of discovery.
3. Tactical methods of conducting an inspection.

Preparation assignment:

Abstract: The importance of examining the scene of an incident for investigating crimes.

Laboratory workshop 3. Tactics of certain types of investigative examination.

1. To analyze the protocol of the inspection of the accident site. To identify information on the basis of which to make judgments: about the subjects of the crime (their number, physical data, professional skills); the mechanism of the crime; circumstances contributing to the commission of the crime.
2. Draw up a report on the inspection of the scene or a fragment of it based on the photographs proposed by the teacher.

Note: the following forensic equipment is used: an investigative worker's kit (in a suitcase), a unified forensic suitcase "Criminalist", a mannequin of a man and/or a teenager; printing products (posters).

Practical lesson 14. Search and seizure tactics.

1. The essence and general provisions of search tactics.
2. The stages of the search.
3. Tactics of conducting certain types of searches.
4. Tactics of excavation production.

Preparation tasks:

1. Summary: Personal search and examination: concepts, production tactics, distinctive features.
2. According to the conditional plot of the crime (bribery), draw up a resolution on the conduct of a search at the place of residence of the accused and a search report (subject to the discovery of the subject of the bribe during the search).

Practical lesson 15. The tactics of the investigative experiment.

1. The concept, types, participants of the investigative experiment.
2. Preparation for the investigative experiment and the rules of its conduct.
3. Recording the progress and results of the investigative experiment, their assessment.

Preparation assignment:

Summary: Tactics of an investigative experiment (it is necessary to choose one of the types).

Practical lesson 16. Interrogation and confrontation tactics.

1. Interrogation: concept and types.
2. The specifics of the interrogation of victims and witnesses.
3. Special features of interrogation of suspects and accused.
4. Tactical techniques for exposing lies in the testimony of the interrogated.
5. Tasks and rules of confrontation.

Preparation tasks:

1. To make a list of questions to be clarified during interrogation (suspect, accused, witness, victim, as chosen) according to the conditional plot of the crime.
2. Draw up a protocol of the confrontation (between the suspect, the accused, the witness, the victim, as chosen).

Practical lesson 17. Tactics of presentation for identification. On-site verification tactics.

1. The nature and types of presentation for identification.
2. Presentation tactics for identification of living persons.
3. The tactics of presenting corpses for identification.
4. Features of on-site verification of testimony as an investigative action.

Preparation tasks:

1. Summary: Comparative characteristics of the tactics of conducting an investigative experiment and verifying evidence on the spot.
2. Summary: The evidentiary value of identity identification in the investigation of crimes.

Practical lesson 18. The investigator's interaction with the bodies carrying out operational search activities and forensic units.

1. The grounds, principles and forms of interaction of the investigator with the bodies carrying out operational investigative activities.

2. The nature and forms of the investigator's interaction with the forensic units.

Preparation tasks:

1. Summary: The role of the investigator's interaction with operational investigative officers in the investigation of crimes.

2. List the participants and their functions of the investigative task force for visiting the scene of the incident according to the conditional plot of the crime (murder).

3. Schematically depict the system of state forensic expert institutions in Russia.

Practical lesson 19. The structure of private methods of crime investigation.

1. Elements of private methods of crime investigation.

2. Circumstances to be established and proved in a criminal case.

3. Typical investigative situations and planning of the initial stage of the investigation.

4. Tactics of conducting investigative actions, operational search and other measures at the initial and subsequent stages of the investigation.

Preparation tasks:

1. Abstract: Sources of forensic methodology.

2. Specify measures for the prevention of crimes of one kind or another (at the student's choice).

Practical lesson 20. Fundamentals of the methodology of investigation of crimes against the person.

1. Criminalistic characteristics of murders and the main directions of their investigation.

2. Features of the investigation of murders related to the disappearance of a person.

3. Fundamentals of rape investigation methodology.

4. Investigation of sexual violence against minors.

Preparation tasks:

1. Indicate the initial and subsequent investigative actions for one of the categories of murders (at the choice of the teacher).

2. Put forward typical versions of the initial stage of the investigation of rape (according to the conditional plot of the crime) and draw up an investigation plan.

Laboratory workshop 4. Fundamentals of the methodology for investigating crimes against the person.

According to the plot proposed by the teacher in the case of the discovery of an unidentified corpse, complete the following tasks:

Task 1. Put forward and justify the general and particular versions of the case.

Task 2. Specify which investigative actions and operational search measures should be carried out at the initial stage of the investigation of the case.

Task 3. Specify which examinations can be assigned to the case, in order to solve which tasks.

Practical lesson 21. Fundamentals of the methodology for investigating crimes against property.

1. General characteristics of crimes related to the seizure of other people's property.

2. Features of theft investigation.

3. Features of the investigation of robberies and robberies.

4. Features of fraud investigation.

5. Features of the extortion investigation.

Preparation tasks:

1. Draw up a plan for the investigation of a criminal case initiated on the fact of pickpocketing (according to the conditional plot of the crime).

2. List the initial investigative actions and operational search measures in the extortion case (in relation to various investigative situations of the initial stage of the investigation).

Laboratory practice 5. Fundamentals of the methodology for investigating crimes against property.

According to the plot proposed by the teacher in the case of apartment theft, complete the following tasks:

Task 1. Put forward and justify the general and particular versions of the case.

Task 2. Specify which investigative actions and operational search measures should be carried out at the initial stage of the investigation of the case.

Task 3. Specify which examinations can be assigned to the case, in order to solve which tasks.

2.4. Self-study

When studying the discipline (module) "Criminalistics", the following types of independent work of students are used: abstracts, model assignments, tests, analysis of the proposed situation, drafting of procedural documents. The specified minimum can be expanded by using tasks that have been additionally developed in accordance with the established procedure.

Self-study is an integral part of the Criminalistics course. It contributes not only to a more complete development of theoretical knowledge, but also to the acquisition of practical skills and professional competencies necessary for mastering a future profession.

In the course of studying the discipline (module) "Criminalistics", two types of self-study work are distinguished for full-time and part-time forms of study: classroom and extracurricular. Classroom self-study on the discipline is performed as part of practical exercises under the direct supervision of the teacher and according to his assignments, for example, performing laboratory work. Also, the types of self-study of full-time and part-time students in the contact form of classroom classes together with a teacher include: ongoing consultations; receiving and reviewing homework (during practice hours).

Extracurricular self-study of full-time and part-time students is carried out on the instructions of the teacher, but without his direct participation.

The main forms of students self-study without the participation of teachers are: the formation and assimilation of the contents of lecture notes on the basis of educational and specialized literature recommended by the teacher, including information educational resources (electronic textbooks, electronic libraries, etc.); writing abstracts, essays; preparation for practical classes (preparation of messages, assignments); selection of material that can be used to write essays, compile a glossary, or create a crossword puzzle on a specific topic.; preparation for classes conducted using active forms of learning (round tables, debates, business games); analysis of business situations (mini-cases).

Topics of the essays:

1. The use of automated biometric systems for the prevention of crimes.
2. The importance of tracology in the investigation of crimes.
3. Determining the distance of the shot.
4. Expert examination of odour traces in the investigation of crimes.
5. Identification and diagnostic tasks in the study of written speech.
6. Features of communication during investigative actions.
7. The importance of examining the scene of an incident for the investigation of crimes.
8. Personal search and examination: concepts, production tactics, distinctive features.
9. Tactics of the investigative experiment (it is necessary to choose one of the types).
10. Comparative characteristics of the tactics of conducting an investigative experiment and verifying testimony on the spot.
11. The evidentiary value of identification in the investigation of crimes.
12. The role of the investigator's interaction with operational search officers in the investigation of crimes.
13. Sources of forensic methodology.

Model tasks:

1. Composing a composite portrait. (Practical manuals and a computer program are used).
2. Detection, fixation and removal of finger marks. (The technical and forensic tools available at the department are used).
3. Detection, inspection, fixation and removal of traces of a shot. (The technical and forensic tools available at the department are used).
4. Knowledge of the tactics of investigative actions (an electronic task to compare the specifics of on-site evidence verification and an investigative experiment).
5. On the use of special knowledge in the investigation of crimes (an electronic task to determine the form and conditions for the use of special knowledge in the conduct of investigative actions and the selection of an expert institution).

Analysis of the proposed situation:

1. Definition of the list of examinations to be appointed, formulation of questions to the expert on the conditional plot of the crime (electronic assignment).
2. Drawing up a plan of initial investigative actions and operational search measures for a conditional plot of a crime against a person or property.
3. Putting forward versions based on the results of the inspection of the scene.
4. Drawing up an interrogation plan based on the conditional plot of the crime.
5. Preparing for a discussion on the role of tactics in crime investigation.
6. Preparation for the simulation game "Scene inspection".
7. Analysis of the investigator's actions on the proposed tasks, including countering the investigation.

Drafting of procedural documents:

1. Production of a photo table of a conditional scene.
2. Drawing up resolutions and protocols of investigative actions (inspection of the scene, presentation for identification, etc.) according to the conditional plot of the crime.

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF MASTERING THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

The quality of mastering the discipline (module) "Criminalistics" is checked by the following types of assessment tools.

Questions for a quick written or oral surveyOral survey (blitz survey):Section 1. General theory of criminalistics

1. The main task of criminalistics.

2. Special tasks of criminalistics.
3. Elements of the criminalistics system.
4. Methods of criminalistics.
5. The essence of identification.
6. Stages of identification.

Section 2. Forensic technology

1. Means of recording traces of a crime.
2. Search facilities during the inspection of the accident site.
3. Types of panoramic photographs at the scene.
4. Classification of footprints by degree of visibility.
5. Classification of traces depending on the mechanism of formation.
6. Shoot distances in criminalistics.
7. Types of partial forgery of the document.

"Case stages" (situational tasks)

Section 1. General theory of criminalistics

Task 1.

In the case of the robbery, the victim testified that he remembered the appearance of one of the attackers and could recognize him at a meeting. According to the victim, a description of a verbal portrait and a sketch of the criminal was drawn up, according to which citizen Kapustin was detained by the investigation staff, presented to the victim for identification and identified as one of the criminals

Question:

What identifying objects were used in this case to identify a person?

Task 2.

During an inspection of the scene of the murder of Mr. M., a spent shell casing was found. Petrushin, who had previously threatened to kill M., was suspected of committing the murder. During a search of Petrushin's apartment, a PM pistol No. 2106 was found. To clarify the issue of whether the cartridge case found at the scene from the pistol seized from Petrushin was fired, the investigator ordered a ballistic examination. A cartridge case and a pistol were presented to the expert. During the study, the expert fired shots from this pistol and received 5 experimental spent cartridges for comparison.

Question:

Determine which of the above objects are identifying, which are identifiable?

Task 3.

While investigating a murder committed with a firearm, the investigator seized a spent bullet and a spent cartridge case from a 9 mm pistol cartridge from the scene. The weapon was not immediately found.

Question:

Is it possible to carry out identification studies on these objects, and which ones?

Section 2. Forensic technology

Task 1.

An unidentified man's body was found in a wooded area near the railway. The corpse is lying on its back, with its feet facing the railway. The left arm is bent at the elbow joint and is on the chest, and the right arm lies along the body. The legs are stretched forward, there are no shoes, the distance between the toes is 30 cm. There is a gunshot wound in the back of the head, near which there is a pool of blood. A spent shell casing and a shoe footprint with a total length of 290 mm were found 70 cm from the right hand.

Questions:

1. Which objects should be photographed and how?

2. Which points of photographing a corpse are most appropriate?
3. From what points is it not recommended to photograph a corpse and why?

Task 2.

During the inspection of the scene, the investigator found traces of human hands and feet in the room in the form of layers formed by a brown substance similar to blood, and drew the attention of a forensic expert invited to participate in the inspection of the scene as a specialist. After examining the indicated traces, the specialist stated that they were not suitable for identification, since they did not reflect individual signs, they are dynamic in nature, representing smears and spots. In this regard, the investigator did not record and remove the traces.

Questions:

Did the investigator do the right thing? Could these traces have been used to establish the circumstances of the event under investigation?

Task 3.

To carry out a fingerprint examination, the investigator sent a data card of suspect "N" and a film with a single fingerprint copied onto it, found at the crime scene (weapon).

Question:

What questions should an investigator ask an expert?

Section 3. Forensic tactics

Task 1.

As a result of a gross violation of traffic rules, two passenger cars collided at the intersection of Sadovaya and Vishnevaya streets. The witness of the traffic accident, A., immediately reported the incident to the duty officer of the Department of the Ministry of Internal Affairs of Russia in the Kuntsevo district of Moscow.

Questions:

1. What are the actions of the Department of the Ministry of Internal Affairs on duty when receiving a report of a crime?
2. Who should be part of the investigative task force to inspect the scene?
3. Which objects are to be examined and recorded in the protocol during the inspection of the accident site?

Task 2.

On June 23, 200_, the duty station of the Kirovsky police department of Bryansk received a statement from a 20-year-old citizen S. about rape. According to the victim, the crime occurred at night in the park, when she was returning home after meeting with a friend. The victim noticed that the criminal had two teeth made of yellow metal on his upper jaw. In addition, S. claimed that she had seriously injured the offender's face when she resisted.

As a result of operational measures, a suspect in this crime was identified. It turned out to be a man previously convicted of rape.

Questions:

1. In respect of whom (the victim or the suspect) should an examination be conducted?

2. Which specialists and for what purposes can be invited?
3. What technical means and for what purposes can be used during the examination?

Task 3.

During the investigation of the crime, the investigator decided to identify the suspect K. Because K. He did not show up for identification, the investigator identified the suspect from a photo image.

As a result of the identification, the victim Ch. He stated that he did not identify anyone among the photographs presented to him. After K. was taken to the police department, the investigator conducted a second identification, in which the victim, Ch. identified the suspect.

Questions:

1. In what cases is identification made based on photographic images?
2. Is it possible to identify a suspect in person if he was previously identified by the same identifying person from a photo image?

Section 4. Criminalistic methods of investigation of certain types of crimes

Task 1.

September 27, 2003, between 9 a.m. and 11:30 a.m. A theft was committed from the house of S., who lives at 51 Sadovaya Street. After Citizen S. left for work, the perpetrator broke into the locking devices on the entrance door of the corridor and the entrance door to the rooms, and then entered the house and stole her ADATA laptop and a mink fur coat.

When examining the scene, a scrap metal was found on the floor in the corridor 0.5 m to the right of the entrance door to one of the rooms, on the surface of which there are traces of friction and layers of brown paint. Casts of pressure marks from burglary tools found on the right trim and jamb of the door frame, painted brown, were removed from the scene. In addition, the locking device, which has a curved bolt and scratches on it, was seized.

Questions:

1. Identify the range of tasks that require priority solutions in this situation.
2. Draw up a plan of initial investigative actions and operational search measures.
3. Decide on the appointment of the necessary forensic examinations and on the sequence of their conduct.
4. Make a decision on the appointment of one of the forensic examinations and formulate questions to the expert.

Task 2.

An analysis of the operational situation in the area showed that over the past three months, four robberies and three robberies have been committed under similar circumstances. Judging by the circumstances, all of them were committed in deserted places or in poorly lit house entrances, and the victims of these crimes were either elderly women or young girls. At the same time, all the victims stated that the attackers were three young men. At the same time, according to the testimony of some victims, it was found that the signs of the robbers' appearance in all cases coincide.

Soon, citizens K. and O., who were accomplices in the criminal case of the robbery of T., were detained. Upon presentation for identification, the victims identified K. and O. During further investigation, both individuals were exposed and confessed to committing four more robberies and three robberies. During the interrogation, they also stated that they had committed all the crimes together with citizen L. After that, the suspect L. changed his testimony and confessed to participating in the commission of crimes in all seven episodes.

Questions:

1. Make a plan for further investigation based on this situation.
2. Identify the tactics that should be applied during the re-interrogation of persons involved as defendants.
3. Make an interrogation plan for one of the accused.

Task 3.

On January 21, 2003, the Frunze Police Department received a statement from citizen A., who stated that at approximately 6.30 p.m. She was walking from the Children's Park along Michurina St. to school No. 2. An unknown young man was walking towards her. Suddenly, he snatched the bag from her hands and disappeared into the territory of the Children's Park. In the statement, citizen A. said that the bag contained a Nokia 1100 cell phone in a black lacquered case worth 14,300 rubles, a purse with money in the amount of 2,500 rubles, a notebook, a cosmetic kit and a bunch of four keys to the house and office. The victim was startled and did not have time to see the attacker's face, but described only his height, build and clothes.

Questions:

1. What are the actions of the investigator and operatives to identify the attacker "in hot pursuit"?
2. What forensic examinations are necessary to establish the fact that the suspect was at the scene of the crime?

Topics of research papers and essays

1. Stages of the development of the science of criminalistics.

Model tasks

1. Draw up a diagram reflecting the place of criminalistics in the system of sciences.
2. Schematically display the classification of identification objects.
3. Identify identification and diagnostic tasks from the list proposed by the teacher.
4. Make a recording photograph of the conditional scene, make a photo table.
5. Describe your appearance (face) using the method of making a verbal portrait.
6. Formulate the issues to be resolved during the portrait examination.
7. Leave a stained finger mark on the paper, identify and list the general signs of the papillary pattern and 5-7 particular signs.
8. Draw schematically a track of footprints and indicate its elements.
9. Formulate the questions (at least 3) submitted for the permission of the expert tracer during the investigation of vehicle tracks.
10. According to the conditional plot of the crime (murder using firearms), draw a vertical and horizontal projection of the scene plan (indicating the location of the shooter).
11. Photograph the knife according to the rules of detailed photography, make a photo table and indicate on it the name of the parts (parts) of the knife.
12. Formulate the questions submitted for an expert depending on the type of object under study (at least 1 question for each type).
13. According to the lecture notes, identify common features and alphabetize the specific features of your handwriting.
14. According to the conditional plot of the crime (extortion), prepare a resolution on the appointment of a phonoscope examination (in order to identify the identity of the extortionist) in relation to the situation when the victim receives a threatening voice message.
15. According to the conditional plot of the crime, determine the types of records to be used.
16. According to the conditional plot of the crime, put forward versions about the subjects and motives of the crime.
17. Draw up an inspection report of a conditional accident site.
18. According to the conditional plot of the crime (bribery), draw up a resolution on the conduct of a search at the place of residence of the accused and a search report (subject to the discovery of the subject of the bribe during the search).

19. Draw up a plan for the production of an investigative experiment based on a conditional crime story.

20. Make a list of questions to be clarified during the interrogation (suspect, accused, witness, victim, as chosen) according to the conditional plot of the crime.

21. Draw up a protocol of the confrontation (between the suspect, the accused, the witness, the victim, as chosen).

22. Draw up a protocol for checking the testimony on the spot according to the conditional plot of the crime.

23. Draw up a plan of further actions in relation to the situation when there was a false identification.

24. List the participants and their functions of the investigative task force for visiting the scene of the incident according to the conditional plot of the crime (murder).

25. Schematically depict the system of state forensic expert institutions in Russia.

26. Indicate the initial and subsequent investigative actions for one of the categories of murders (at the choice of the teacher).

27. Put forward typical versions of the initial stage of the investigation of rape (according to the conditional plot of the crime) and draw up an investigation plan.

28. Draw up a plan for the investigation of a criminal case initiated on the fact of apartment theft (according to the conditional plot of the crime).

29. List the initial investigative actions and operational search measures in the extortion case (in relation to various investigative situations of the initial stage of the investigation).

30. Make a composite portrait. (Practical manuals and a computer program are used).

31. Detect, fix and remove finger marks. (The technical and forensic tools available at the department are used).

32. Detect, inspect, fix and remove traces of a shoot. (The technical and forensic tools available at the department are used).

33. Knowledge of the tactics of investigative actions (an electronic task to compare the specifics of on-site evidence verification and an investigative experiment).

34. On the use of special knowledge in the investigation of crimes (an electronic task to determine the form and conditions for the use of special knowledge in the conduct of investigative actions and the selection of an expert institution).

V. LOGISTICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Providing the educational process with other library and information resources and means of supporting the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the academic discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational and Social Network of the University (hereinafter referred to as the DSES), in the system of which "Electronic personal accounts of students and research and teaching staff" are functioning. Access to materials is possible by entering an individual password. The Center for Personal Information and Communications is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that ensures information interaction of all participants in the educational process of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL), including providing them with publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, social information through services operating on the basis of applied information systems of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL). Each student is provided with individual unlimited access to electronic library systems (electronic libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL) throughout the entire period of study. In addition to the electronic libraries of O.E. Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and reference and legal systems connected to the O.E. Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) on the basis of license agreements, and having adapted versions of sites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (electronic library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide the possibility of simultaneous access for 100 percent of students from any point where there is access to the information and telecommunications network "Internet", both on the territory of the O.E. Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) and outside it. In the absence of a publication in the electronic library system (electronic library), the library collection of the O.E. Kutafina (MSAL) is equipped with printed publications of at least 50 copies of each of the publications of compulsory literature listed in the work programs of disciplines (modules), practices, and at least 25 copies of additional literature per 100 students.

5.2. Rooms for independent work of students

The premises for independent work of students are located at the following address: Moscow, Sadovaya-Kudrinskaya St., 9, building 1. They are equipped with computer equipment with the ability to connect to the Internet and provide access to the electronic information and educational environment of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) and include:

1. Electronic reading room for 135 seats: 42 two-seater student desks, 10 three-seater student desks, 3 chairs for individual work, 135 chairs,

76 student computers 50 MAC AB (the computer equipment is connected to the Internet and provides access to the electronic information and educational environment), projector with motorized lift Epson EB-1880 – 1 pc., Projecta screen with electronic drive – 1 pc.

2. The electronic reading room is located on the first floor, intended for disabled people and people with limited health capabilities, the workplaces in the reading room are equipped with modern ergonomic monoblocks with high-quality screens, as well as audio headsets.

A set of tools:

workplace with increased space – 2 pcs., overhead headphones – 1 set, hand-held magnifying glass for reading 90mmx13.5mm – 1 pc., Fresnel lens in a vinyl frame 300*190 – 1 pc.

Reading rooms with 93 seats: 24 double student desks,

2 triple student desks, 7 individual work chairs,

93 chairs,

11 student computers 50 MAC AB.

3. Scientific literature circulation desk with 4 seats: 4 single student desks,

4 student computers 50 MAC AB,

4 chairs.

The library collection of O.E. Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) is equipped with printed and (or) electronic editions of the main educational and scientific literature in the disciplines of general scientific and professional cycles. Students have access to library resources (main educational and scientific literature) in electronic form.

The collection of additional literature, in addition to educational literature, includes official, reference and bibliographic and specialized periodicals. Students have access to library resources (additional literature) in electronic form. The collection of electronic resources of the library includes the following reference and legal systems, databases and electronic library systems

5.3. Library and information resource and means of supporting the educational process:

THE MODEL (FEATURES) of students' independent work in individual sections and topics of the discipline (module) of full-time and part-time education

The features of students' independent work are as follows:

- study of recommended basic and additional literature with the compilation of reviews of periodical literature, catalogs of online resources on individual issues;
- study of regulatory legal acts and judicial practice;
- preparation of reports and abstracts on topics recommended in the independent work model for individual sections;
- preparation for practical exercises in accordance with the thematic plan and recommended tasks with the preparation of notes.

MODEL (FEATURES) independent work of students in separate sections and topics of the discipline (module) of correspondence education

The features of students' independent work are as follows:

- study of the recommended main and additional literature with the compilation of reviews of periodical literature, catalogs of Internet resources on individual issues;
- study of regulatory legal acts and judicial practice;
- preparation of reports and abstracts on topics recommended in the independent work model for individual sections;
- preparation for practical exercises in accordance with the thematic plan and recommended tasks with the preparation of notes.

Features of independent problem solving

- Before solving the tasks, it is necessary to study the educational and regulatory material on the relevant topic and correctly determine on the basis of which regulatory legal acts the task should be solved. Educational literature and regulatory legal acts are specified in the work program "Social Security Law".
- Solving problems should begin with the presentation of theoretical material: to reveal the concept of the type of social security referred to in the condition; to indicate the main regulatory legal acts regulating the provision of citizens with this type of social security; to reveal the legal facts that are associated with the emergence of this type of legal relationship. Only after that, you need to start analyzing the specific circumstances set out in the task condition. First of all, it is necessary to prove the existence or absence of the right to this type of social security, while the conclusions should be substantiated by references to the relevant provisions of the legal act with full indication of the data (the exact name of the act; the body that adopted it, the date of adoption). Since changes and additions are continuously being made to the acts regulating social security relations, it is necessary to make sure that they have not been made at the time of solving the problem. After substantiating the right to this type of social security, it is necessary to correctly determine the amount of payment due to a citizen. If a citizen is entitled to several types of payments at the same time, it is necessary to indicate whether they can be paid at the same time.

V. MATERIAL AND TECHNICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Providing the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational and Social Network of the University (hereinafter referred to as the DSESN), in the system of which the "Electronic personal accounts of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" operate. Access to the materials is possible through the introduction of an individual password. The DSESN is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that provides information interaction for all participants in the educational process of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), including the provision of publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services operating on the basis of applied information systems of Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL).

During the entire period of study, each student is provided with individual unlimited access to electronic library systems (electronic libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL). In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and legal reference systems connected at the Kutafin Moscow State Law University (MSAL) on the basis of license agreements, and having adapted versions of sites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (electronic library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access to 100 percent of students from any point where there is access to the information and telecommunication network "Internet", both on the territory of the Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

The Library's collection of electronic resources includes the following legal reference systems, databases and electronic library systems:

Kutafin University (MSAL) has a material and technical base that complies with the current fire safety rules and standards, and provides all types of disciplinary and interdisciplinary training, practical and research work of students provided for by the curriculum.

The implementation of the discipline (module) involves classrooms for lectures, practical (seminar) classes, group and individual consultations, current control and intermediate certification, as well as rooms for independent work and rooms for storage and preventive maintenance of educational equipment. For lecture-type classes, students are offered sets of demonstration equipment and teaching aids that provide thematic illustrations that are stored on electronic media.

5.3. Rooms for self-preparing work of students

Rooms for independent work of students:

1. The territory of the Library at the address: Moscow, Sadovaya-Kudrinskaya Street, 9, building 1, is equipped with computer equipment with the ability to connect to the Internet and provide access to the EIOS of the University and includes:

1) Electronic reading room for 110 seats:

- Double student table – 42 pcs.,
- triple student table – 7 pcs.,
- chair for individual work – 5 pcs.,
- chair – 79 pcs.,
- student computer – 76 pcs.,
- projector with motorized elevator Epson EB-1880 – 1 pc.,
- Projecta screen with electronic drive – 1 pc.

The electronic reading room is located on the first floor, designed for people with disabilities and persons with disabilities, workplaces in the reading room are equipped with modern ergonomic monoblocks with high-quality screens, as well as audio headsets.

A set of means:

- workplace with increased space – 2 pcs.,
- "on-ear" headphones – 1 set,
- Manual Magnifier for Reading 90mmx13.5mm – 1 pc.,
- Fresnel lens in a vinyl frame 300*190 – 1 pc.

2) Reading rooms for 65 seats:

- Double student table – 24 pcs.,
- triple student table – 5 pcs.,

- chair for individual work – 2 pcs.,
- chair – 54 pcs.,
- Student computer – 12 pcs.

3) Subscription of scientific literature for 4 seats:

- single student table – 4 pcs.,
- student computer – 4 pcs.,
- chair – 4 pcs.

2. The territory of the Library at the address: Moscow, Shitova Embankment, 72 bldg. 3. are equipped with computer equipment with the ability to connect to the Internet and provide access to the University's EIOS and include:

Reading room for 62 seats:

- Double student table – 31 pcs.,
- chair – 25 pcs.,
- Student computer – 16 pcs.

3. The territory of the Library at 13 Bakuninskaya Street, Moscow, includes:

Reading room for 30 seats:

- double student table – 12 pcs.,
- chair – 30 pcs.,
- laptop (with the ability to connect to the Internet and provide access to the University's EIOS) – 7 pcs.

The discipline (module) is provided with a room for storage and preventive maintenance of educational equipment.

PROGRAM OF THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

INFORMATION TECHNOLOGIES IN LEGAL ACTIVITY

B1.O.29

year of recruitment - 2025

Code and name of the training area:	40.03.01 Jurisprudence
Level of higher education:	bachelor`s level
Focus (profile) of the main educational program of higher education:	International Business Law
Form(s) of training:	full-time education
Qualification:	lawyer

Moscow 2025

The program was approved at the meeting of the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies on April 2, 2025, Protocol No.8.

Authors:

Palyanova N.V. – Candidate of Technical Sciences, Associate Professor of the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies at the O.E. Kutafin University (MGUA).

Shchitova A.A. – PhD in Law, Senior Lecturer at the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies at the O.E. Kutafin University (MGUA).

The reviewer:

Chebotareva A.A. – Doctor of Law, Associate Professor, Head of the Department of Administrative, Information and Environmental Law at the Russian University of Transport (MIIT).

Palyanova N.V. Information technologies in legal activity: a work program (in English) / N.V. Palyanova, A.A. Shchitova– Moscow: O.E. Kutafin University Publishing Center (MGUA), 2025.

The program is designed in accordance with the requirements of the Federal State Educational Standard of Higher Education

I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

1.1.Goals and objectives of mastering the discipline (module)

The purpose of mastering the discipline (module) "Information technologies in legal activity" is the formation and development of students' skills in the use of modern information technologies, training of specialists with the necessary professional level of information culture at the present time, who possess the skills of computer technology; the latest professional information technologies; specialized automated information systems.

The objectives of mastering the discipline (module) "Information technologies in legal activity" are: to form students' modern ideas about the goals, tasks and practical hardware and software implementation of the process of informatization of all areas of legal activity; to teach students the knowledge and skills that allow them to freely navigate and develop themselves in the modern information space; to instil in students the skills, required for performing professional and service tasks in the unified information space of Russia.

1.2.Place of the discipline (module) in the structure of MPEP HE

The discipline (module) "Information technologies in legal activity" belongs to the mandatory part of Block 1. Disciplines (modules), the main professional educational program of higher education.

Mastering the discipline provides an opportunity to expand and deepen the knowledge gained at the previous general education stage of information technology training, to acquire skills and abilities determined by the content of the program. The competencies that are formed in the course of mastering the discipline "Information Technologies in legal activity" are necessary for successful professional activity. Students acquire the ability to independently find and use the necessary content-logical connections with other disciplines, such as "Legal Technology", "Fundamentals of Management", "Legal Statistics".

1.3. Formed competencies and indicators of their achievement (planned results of mastering the discipline (module))

Based on the results of studying the discipline "Informatics and information technologies in professional activity", the student must have the following competencies:

general:

GC-1 ability to search, critically analyse and synthesize information, apply a systematic approach to solving tasks;

GC-2 ability to determine the range of tasks within the set goal and choose the best ways to solve them, based on current legal norms, available resources and restrictions;

general professional:

GPC-8 with the ability to purposefully and effectively obtain legally relevant information from various sources, including legal databases, solve professional tasks using information technologies and taking into account information security requirements;

GPC-9 ability to understand the principles of modern information technologies and use them to solve professional tasks; professional:

PC-5 is the ability to possess technical and cognitive skills of orientation in modern information technologies, meeting personal, educational and professional needs.

As a result of studying the discipline (module) "Information technologies in legal activity", the student must:

know:

requirements for processing legal documents;
methods and tools for creating electronic documents;
structure of the organization of spreadsheets.
methods and tools for creating and processing spreadsheets methods and means of searching, organizing and processing legal information in local and global computer networks;
types of electronic presentations;
methods and tools for creating electronic presentations;
methods and means of search systematization and processing of legal information in reference legal systems

be able to:

prepare an original text document.
prepare a text document based on a sample or template.
organize the processing of data presented in tabular form using multivariate mathematical operations and functions.
develop skills in organizing, structuring, and analysing tabular information, including graphical data processing.
apply modern information technologies for searching and processing legal information in local networks and the Internet;
apply modern information technologies to create electronic presentations; apply modern reference legal systems to search, organize and process social and legal information;

own:

skills in drawing up electronic documents in the relevant areas of professional activity.
skills of generalization, analysis, and perception of tabular information in the relevant areas of professional activity.
skills of collecting and processing information in computer networks that are important for the implementation of legal norms in the relevant areas of professional activity.
skills in presenting reports, results of scientific and practical research, and other informational materials.
skills in collecting, processing and systematizing social and legal information relevant to the implementation of legal norms in the relevant areas of professional activity;
skills in preparing legal documents using reference legal systems.

II. STRUCTURE AND CONTENT OF THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

The volume of the discipline (module) "Information technologies in legal activity" is 3 c.p. (108 academic hours). Form of intermediate certification - credit.

2.2.Lecture-type classes

Topic 1.Information and technological support of professional legal activity (fundamentals of Legal Tech)

Content:

1. Types of modern digital technologies used for processing legal information. Brief description of end-to-end digital technologies in the legal field.
2. Text processors in law: purpose and functions. Using menu commands and toolbars.
3. Basic concepts: legal document format, font design, paragraph formatting.
4. Rules for entering and editing legal text. Use special tools when entering and editing text.
5. Spelling and grammar control in legal texts, error correction.
6. Rules for creating headers and footers in legal documents. Page numbering.
7. Tools for creating structured paragraphs. Use tabs for formatting structured paragraphs.
8. Features of creating and formatting links and footnotes.
9. Creating an automatic table of contents and subject index capabilities.
10. Introduction to a text document of non-text elements: drawings, graphs, formulas.

11. Tabular form for organizing text. Opportunities for decency of information in the text editor table. Specifics of organization and computing.
 12. Creating documents based on samples and templates: development and use in legal documents.
 13. The concept of style: creating and using it in complex legal documents.
 14. Use of peer review capabilities in legal documents. Protection: Restricts how text documents can be modified and formatted.
 15. Print a document: Configure the printer and print modes.
 16. Possibilities of spreadsheet processors for processing legal information.
 17. Interface, functions, and structural units of spreadsheets: the concept of a workbook, sheet, or table cell.
 18. Using menu commands and toolbars.
 19. Operations on sheets, rows, columns, and cells.
 20. Data entry and editing: insert, delete, move, copy. Formatting table cells.
- Input automation tools.
21. Data format: text, numeric, or logical.
 22. Organization of deductions for processing legal information. Function Wizard. Types of operations in formulas. Using built-in functions in formulas. New spreadsheet functions related to artificial intelligence in the analysis of legal data.
 23. Absolute and relative references in formulas, features of their use in the distribution of formulas: copying and moving.
 24. Data protection in spreadsheets.
 25. Organize and select data in tables.
 26. Creating diagrams using electronic tables. Chart wizard. Specialized diagrams for processing legal information.
 27. View and print tables. Selects the print area.

Task to prepare for:

1. Collect information about technologies for solving legal problems that facilitate the work of lawyers or completely replace them.
2. Find out what requirements apply to the design of articles submitted for publication in leading legal journals.
3. Find information about the programs used to create statistical reports of legal organizations that are provided for the formation of state statistical information resources.

Topic 2. Technologies of working with legal information in professional information reference legal systems

Content:

1. Professional information and legal systems: purpose and main opportunities. Classification of reference legal systems.
2. Modern opportunities of commercial IT organizations for information and technological support of law enforcement activities.
3. Organization of legal information storage in various RLS, structure of information databases.

4. Technologies for searching for legal information in the RLS.
5. Types and means of searching for legal documents in the ATP.
6. Technologies for working with lists of documents: Working with lists of documents in various RLS.
7. Technologies for working with the texts of documents in the RLS.
8. Analytical capabilities of the ATP: travel guides, encyclopaedias, guides, reference information, analysis and monitoring of legislation.
9. Editorial offices of documents. Comparison of document revisions.
10. Submission of documents for control.
11. Links of documents in the RLS. The concept of direct and reverse links. Classification of links into the most important, useful, formal and smart ones.
12. Storage and printing of documents in various RLS.
13. Reference Legal System ConsultantPlus, information and legal support software Garant, professional help system IS “Kodeks”, etc. Search features and analytical capabilities.
14. Integration of legal reference systems with other software tools.

Task to prepare for:

1. Select information about technical means, legal techniques, analytical capabilities, and the specifics of legal and technological methods of information reference legal systems of the RLS ConsultantPlus, ILS Garant, IS “Kodeks”.
2. Find out what search and analytical tasks can be solved with the legal and analytical information stored in the ATP databases.
3. Select materials about the history of development of information reference legal systems in Russia and abroad.

2.3.Seminar-type classes

Text editor as a tool for preparing a legal document.

1. Features of the interface of a specific text editor.
 2. Rules for entering and editing text.
 3. Tools for formatting a text document. Structural units of the text. Document format, font design, paragraph formatting options, section, and headers and footers. Graphic selection of a paragraph: framing and filling.
 4. Spelling and grammar control.
 5. Introduction to graphic elements in a text document.
 6. Page numbering and headers and footers.
 7. Creating and formatting links and footnotes.
 8. Creating and formatting tables.
 9. Create legal documents based on a template. Template and style development tools.
 10. Automatic creation of the table of contents.
 11. Create legal documents based on samples. Sample documents with a blank part: creation tools and the procedure for filling them out.
 12. Creating a list of complex structures in a document.
 13. Create documents with a multi-column layout of text on a page.
- Performing practical tasks.

Tasks to prepare for:

1. Get acquainted with the content of tasks offered for practical classes.
2. Identify the main structural units in the texts.
3. Prepare the required text formatting details when creating a coursework template.
4. Study the provisions of GOST 7.1-2003 concerning the rules of registration of the list of references and references to sources.

A spreadsheet as a means of organizing tabular data in an accessible and convenient way.

2. Features and capabilities of the workspace interface of a particular spreadsheet: structural units and working with them.
 3. Create tables. Data entry and editing: insert, delete, move, copy.
 4. Input automation tools: auto-completion and auto-completion.
 5. Formatting data in a cell: alignment, font design, framing, and fill. Merge cells. Cell protection.
 6. Data types and formatting.
 7. Organization of payments. The order in which the formula is written. Types of mathematical operations and tabular functions. Tools for setting functions. Distribution of formulas.
 8. Absolute and relative links. Features of copying and moving formulas that have cell references in their structure.
 9. Creating, editing, and formatting charts. Tools for creating charts. The order of creating charts.
 10. Use spreadsheets to create and process lists. Structure of the list.
 11. Summarizing data: sorting, filtering, summarizing, consolidating.
 12. Familiarization with the capabilities of the built-in scientific data analysis package;
 13. Working with external data. Data protection.
- Performing practical tasks

Tasks to prepare for:

1. Get acquainted with the content of tasks offered for practical training.
2. Determine the calculated values based on the task. Analyse what types of references should be used to calculate these values.
3. Analyze what types of graphical display of information can be used for visual representation of calculation results.
4. Understand the specifics of using such tools for selecting data by criterion as autofilter and advanced filter.
5. Think through the process of forming a selection criterion in the form of a logical expression, its structure.
6. Determine what types of grouping of data in practical tasks can be used for summing up intermediate results.
7. To select data based on the criterion, it is necessary to recall such concepts of mathematical logic as a logical variable, logical operations, and the structure of a logical expression.

Topic 2. Technologies of working with legal information in professional information reference legal systems

Practical lesson.

1. Purpose and main features of reference legal systems.
2. Interface features of various RLS: RLS ConsultantPlus, ILS GARANT, IS “Kodeks”.
3. Types of search in the RLS.
4. The ability of the RLS to work with lists of documents.
5. The ability of the RLS to work with the text of a document.
6. Analytical capabilities of the RLS.
7. Statistical classifiers of legal information in the RLS.
8. Performing practical tasks.

Tasks to prepare for:

1. Recall the main types of systematization of normative legal acts. Find out what information search tools can provide each type of systematization work.
2. Remember what mandatory banking details must be present in a regulatory legal act in accordance with the rules of legal technique. Find tools that search for information based on these banking details in reference legal systems.
3. Compare thematic classifiers of different reference legal systems.
4. To form a query as a logical expression, it is necessary to recall such concepts of mathematical logic as a logical variable, logical operations, and the structure of a logical expression.
5. Get acquainted with the content of the task proposed for the practical lesson.

2.4. Independent work of students

Preparation for completing tasks by full-time students involves the following independent work:

- familiarization with the task for a practical lesson;
- selection of tools and drawing up procedures for solving a specific problem;
- formulation of questions for discussion at the beginning of the practical lesson.

Topic 1. Information and technological support of professional legal activity (fundamentals of Legal Tech)

Technologies for working with word processors.

When preparing for practical classes, you must first understand the purpose of text editors, their main capabilities, and present the stages of preparing text documents. Then proceed to explore the capabilities of a specific text editor.

It should be understood that the preparation of text documents using text editors includes the following main stages: text input and editing (deleting, moving, replacing text fragments), grammar and spelling control, formatting.

Special attention should be paid to the basic rules for entering (typing) text, in particular, moving to the next paragraph, creating non-breaking paragraphs.

The student should be clearly aware of the concept of a paragraph as the main structural unit of the text, the means of formatting structured paragraphs, and the use of tabs for formatting structured paragraphs.

Text editing involves performing certain manipulations with text fragments. Therefore, the student should choose the simplest methods for selecting various text fragments and tools, as well as the order in which they are used to insert, replace, delete, and move selected text fragments.

You should also determine what special tools should be used and how to use them when entering and editing text. Editorial text processing, as a rule, ends with spelling and grammar control, so you need to master the techniques of such control and correction of detected errors.

When preparing to master the design of text documents, first of all, you should understand the content of such concepts as paragraph, section, document format, footer, font design. Since the main structural unit of the text document design is a paragraph, you should pay attention to the parameters of the paragraph design (indentation, spacing, paragraph indentation, alignment).

Since many text documents, including legal documents, contain references and footnotes that can be placed differently in the document text, you should pay special attention to the tools for creating and formatting an automatic table of contents, and the location of footnotes in a text document.

You need to familiarize yourself with the formatting tools for a text document: using the menu and toolbar commands.

Since a text document may contain non-text (for example, graphic) fragments, it is recommended to pay attention to the means of introducing such fragments into the text document and processing them. Special attention should be paid to the creation and design of headers and footers, page numbering.

Multi-column layout of text on the page. Many text documents, particularly those of a legal nature, contain tables. Before mastering the techniques of creating, filling in, and formatting tables, the student should understand the structure of the table, the composition of its individual parts, and the rules for arranging information in table cells. Then you need to determine the order of building the table, filling the table with data, and then its design.

To speed up and automate the creation of text documents, modern text editors provide tools such as samples or templates. You need to understand the concept of a template, the order of its creation and use. The student should become familiar with the existing standard set of templates, be able to use them, and create their own custom templates.

Technologies for working with table processors

When preparing for practical classes on this topic, it is necessary to understand the purpose of spreadsheets, their main features, and only then begin to study the tools of a particular spreadsheet editor. The student should pay attention to the main structural elements: book, sheet, column, row, cell, range of cells. The key concept is a reference to a cell (its address). It is important to understand the difference between absolute and relative references, and pay attention to the structure of the full cell reference in order to organize links between cells in different workbooks and / or sheets.

Then you need to pay attention to the concept of cell, column, and row format, and determine the means and how to use them to set them. Pay special attention to the format of numeric data and setting the width of the cell (column) in which the calculation result is placed.

You should especially understand the organization of calculations, the rules for writing formulas, and the use of absolute and relative cell references in them. Determine which operations and functions can be used in formulas. The key points in organizing calculations are questions about the "distribution" of the formula, how it is distributed, and how to change absolute and relative references.

Charting tools based on numerical data allow you to visually see the results of calculations, as well as the dynamics and trends of data changes relative to a certain parameter. When mastering charting tools, you should pay attention to the order in which the chart is constructed, in particular, the selection of the data area and the area of "axial" parameters and labels. You should also pay attention to the chart editing and formatting tools and how to use them.

When mastering the tools for organizing and processing lists using spreadsheets, first of all, you should pay attention to the structure of the list, to the location of the list on the sheet. Learn what tools and methods should be used to process lists: ordering, summarizing, and selecting data based on criteria. At the same time, the key issue is the formation of a criterion in the form of a logical expression: the complexity of the logical expression, its structure. You should also pay attention to the location of the selection results on the sheet(s) and their storage.

Topic 2. Technologies of working with legal information in professional information reference legal systems

It should be understood that legal state information systems are a source of official legal information, where legal information is collected and systematized in the form of regulatory acts, acts of official explanation and law enforcement acts.

Please note that the State information and legal system of the Ministry of Justice of the Russian Federation "Normative legal Acts in the Russian Federation" (1982) is available since 2017 on the portal <http://pravo.minjust.ru/>.

The reference integrated full-text legal information bank IFLIB "Legislation of Russia" (1993), supervised by the Federal Security Service of the Russian Federation, is the main element of the state legal information system, created as part of the implementation of the state policy in the field of legal informatization of the Russian Federation, available since 2011 on the portal <http://pravo.gov.ru/ips/>.

The history of its development dates back to 1993, when the Federal State Unitary Enterprise Scientific and technical centre of legal information STC "System" was assigned to organize integrated banks of regulatory acts, as well as to ensure prompt access to them by users.

Unified digital platform "Gostekh" (<http://platform.gov.ru>) - a cloud-based platform solution for federal and regional authorities that allows you to quickly and efficiently create government information systems and digital services. Federal State Institution "State Technologies" (FSI "Gostekh") — a subordinate organization of the Ministry of Digital Development of the Russian Federation is the operator of the UDP "Gostekh". FSI "Gostekh" was created on the basis of the Coordination Center of the Intergovernmental Commission for Cooperation in the Field of Computer Technology.

Commercial legal frameworks are the best technical invention in the legal processing of information.

The Russian market of commercial reference legal systems is represented by the following companies: USIS (1989), Referent (1995), LEXPRO (2008), Pravo.ru (2008), Kontinent (2008), System Yurist (2012).

The main players in the commercial market of reference legal systems are ILS GARANT (1990), IS "Kodeks" (1991) and RLS Consultant Plus (1992).

When studying this topic, it is necessary to learn the principles of systematization and structuring of information in the RLS, as well as ways to display the substructures of Russian legislation. Special attention should be paid to the thematic classifier and the classifier of key concepts, their structure, composition, and purpose.

It is necessary to understand the purpose, functions and tools of the RLS as software tools for creating, maintaining and searching legal documents.

Next, you should focus on studying the system of details describing the document, as well as other fields of the search card used in the RLS to search for documents.

The next stage of studying the RLS is mastering the document search tools. At the same time, special attention should be paid to choosing the type of search: thematic, by banking details, full – text, or a combination of them, depending on the task facing the user.

The closest attention should be paid to forming the query as a logical expression. Therefore, it is necessary to recall such concepts of mathematical logic as a logical variable, logical operations, and the structure of a logical expression.

Special attention should be paid to preserving the information found, namely, maintaining thematic electronic folders of documents, installing electronic bookmarks in the texts of documents, which will provide easy and quick access to the necessary information. Therefore, you should study the storage structure of folders and bookmarks, as well as the tools for creating and using them.

Since in legal practice it is often necessary to provide an excerpt from a normative legal act, you should pay attention to the means of transmitting information from an ATP document to a document prepared in a text editor, for example, MS Word.

You should also familiarize yourself with additional features of the ATP: dictionaries of legal terms, reference information, online services, analytical collections and materials.

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF MASTERING THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

Current certification. Implementation of continuous monitoring of the student's tasks and evaluation of the results of his work.

When evaluating a completed task, the following factors are taken into account:

- the quality of task completion (whether there are minor flaws or significant errors).
- task completion time.
- the degree of independence in completing the task.
- ability to evaluate the results of your work and correct mistakes.

Forms of boundary control (in case of modular organization of discipline study):

Total:

2. Format the table cells.

3. Rename workbook work Sheet 1, giving it the name "BASE_CRIME_NAME" of the student.

4. Calculate totals for all years using the Autosum button .

5. Calculate the crime structure indicator by placing them in the "% of total" column.

6. Add to the table the last column "Average indicator for 2016-2020". For each type of crime, calculate this indicator as the arithmetic average of "Absolute indicators" for all years.

7. For each year, add the "Absolute deviation from the average" column. Calculate the absolute deviation of the annual level of a certain type of crime from the average.

8. Create a pie chart illustrating the crime structure in 2016. Place the chart on a separate sheet.

9. For crimes against the person (murder, intentional infliction of harm to health, and rape), build a table on a separate sheet of the book and a corresponding graph describing the change in the number of crimes of these types for 2018-2022 years:

Types of crimes	2018	2019	2020	2021	2022
Murders and attempted murders	29551	31140	32618	34999	32285
Intentional infliction of serious bodily harm	45170	47669	47454	53576	58469
Rape and attempted rape	9014	8346	8968	9380	8117

10. Rename Sheet 2 of the book, giving it the name "Crimes against the person".

11. set data on the number of crimes in the form of links to the corresponding cells of the table in the "BASE_CRIME_FIO" sheet.

12. based on the table data of the sheet "Crimes against the person", build a graph by placing it on the same sheet.

13. For a table located on the "BASE_CRIME_FIO" sheet, use the autofilter:
– output only totals.
– display data on those types of crimes, the average rate of which for the period 2018-2028-2022 years was in the range from 10000 to 100000.

14. For a table located on the "Crimes against the person" sheet, use the advanced filter to display records in which:

– The number of crimes in 2019 did not fall in the range from 10,000 to 50,000.

– the number of crimes against the person in 2018 did not exceed 50,000, and in 2019 exceeded 10,000;

– the number of crimes against the person in 2018 exceeded 50,000, or the number of crimes in 2020 did not exceed 10,000.

15. For the table located on the "BASE_CRIME_FIO" sheet, use sorting to sort the types of crimes in descending order of the average indicator for 2018-2028-2022.

Topic 2. Technologies of working with legal information in professional information reference legal systems

Practical work. Using the RLS ConsultantPlus solves the following tasks:

Task 1.

Information Bank Version Prof necessary to build a list of Federal laws adopted after January 01, 2020, on the topic "Management in the field of information and informatization". Export the list of found documents to MS Word.

- student triple table – 5 pcs.,
- chair for individual work-2 pcs.,
- chair – 54 pcs.,
- student computer – 12 pcs.

3) Subscription of scientific literature for 4 seats:

- single student table – 4 pcs.,
- student computer – 4 pcs.,
- chair – 4 pcs.

2. The territory of the Library at 72 Shitova Embankment, building 3, Moscow, is equipped with computer equipment with the ability to connect to the Internet and provide access to the University's EIE and includes:

Reading room with 62 seats:

- student double table – 31 pcs.,
- chair – 25 pcs.,
- student computer – 16 pcs.

3. The territory of the Library at Бакунинская 13 Bakuninskaya Street, Moscow, includes:

Reading room with 30 seats:

- student double table – 12 pcs.,
- chair – 30 pcs.,
- laptop (with the ability to connect to the Internet and provide access to the EIE of the University) - 7 pcs.

5.4.4. Computer class with Internet access

The implementation of the discipline (module) involves computer classes with access to the Internet (room No. 30 at the address: Moscow, Yablochkova str., 5, p. 2).

ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE SYSTEMS

B1.O.30

year of recruitment – 2025

Code and name of the training area:	40.03.01 Jurisprudence
Level of higher education:	bachelor`s level
Focus (profile) of the main educational program of higher education:	International Business Law
Form(s) of training:	full-time education
Qualification:	lawyer

Москва – 2025

The program was approved at the meeting of the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies on April 2, 2025, Protocol No.8.

Author(s):

Minbaleev A.V. – Doctor of Law, Head of the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies at O.E. Kutafin University (MGUA).

Chubukova S.G. – Candidate of Law, Associate Professor of the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies at the O.E. Kutafin University (MGUA).

Martynova T.L. – Candidate of Technical Sciences, Associate Professor of the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies at O.E. Kutafin University (MGUA).

Shchitova A.A. – Candidate of Law, Senior lecturer at the Department of Information Law and Digital Technologies at the O.E. Kutafin University (MGUA).

The program is designed in accordance with the requirements of the Federal State Educational Standard of Higher Education

I. GENERAL PROVISIONS

1.1. Goals and objectives of mastering the discipline (module)

The purpose of mastering the discipline (module) "Artificial Intelligence Systems" is: aimed at providing students with basic scientific and practical legal knowledge about the main problems of using artificial intelligence systems in legal activities, the main trends in the development of domestic and foreign science and legislation in the field of artificial intelligence.

The discipline is aimed at training legal professionals who are able to actively participate in the modernization and improvement of the legal system of the Russian Federation.

Achieving this goal requires solving a certain number of tasks. The solution of each task contributes and promotes the student to achieve the set goal:

- mastering the basic methods of the theory of intelligent systems, knowledge representation and reasoning modelling;
- determination of the legal nature of artificial intelligence systems;
- analysis of the practice of using artificial intelligence systems in Russia and foreign countries;
- determination of the main directions of development of legal regulation of relations on the use of artificial intelligence systems in Russia and in the world;
- research of the main legal problems related to the implementation of artificial intelligence systems in business processes and public administration.

1.2. The place of the discipline (module) in the structure of the MPEP HE Discipline (module) "Artificial intelligence systems" refers to the mandatory part of Block 1. Disciplines (modules) of the main professional educational program of higher education.

Mastering the discipline provides an opportunity to expand and deepen the knowledge gained at the previous stage of training, acquire skills and abilities determined by the content of the program. The competencies that are formed in the course of mastering the discipline are necessary for successful professional activity. Students acquire the ability to independently find and use the necessary content-logical connections with other disciplines of the program, such as "Information Technologies in Legal activity", "Information Law", "Fundamentals of Digital Law", "Fundamentals of Innovative Law".

Knowledge gained in the course of studying the discipline (module) "Artificial intelligence systems" will help in analysing disputes that arise in relationships in the digital environment, and will also help to increase the level of legal awareness and legal culture of participants in digital relations.

1.3. Formed competencies and indicators of their achievement (planned results of mastering the discipline (module))

Based on the results of mastering the discipline (module) "Artificial intelligence systems" students should have the following competencies:

The following are universal:

GPC-8 is able to purposefully and effectively obtain legally relevant information from various sources, including legal databases, solve professional tasks using information technologies and taking into account information security requirements professional skills:

GPC-9 is able to understand the principles of modern information technologies and use them to solve professional tasks

Sections (topics) of the discipline (module)	Code and name of formed competencies	Indicator of achievement of competencies (planned result of mastering the discipline (module))
Topic 1. Artificial intelligence as a research discipline	GPC-8 is able to purposefully and effectively obtain legally relevant information from various sources, including legal databases, solve professional tasks using information technologies and taking into account the requirements of information security	IGPC 8.1 Receives legally relevant information from various sources, including legal databases, processes it and systematizes it in accordance with the set goal
Topic 2. Artificial intelligence as a branch of creating innovative intelligent technologies and systems.	GPC-8 is able to purposefully and effectively obtain legally relevant information from various sources, including legal databases, solve professional tasks using information technologies and taking into account the requirements of information security	IGPC 8.2 Applies information technologies to solve specific tasks of professional activity OPK 8.3 Demonstrates readiness to solve professional tasks taking into account the requirements of information security
Topic 3. Artificial intelligence systems in the digital economy and digital transformation of the legal sphere	GPC-9 is able to understand the principles of modern information technologies and use them to solve professional tasks	IGPC 9.1 Understands the principles of modern information technologies
Topic 4. The concept and features of artificial	GPC-9 is able to understand the principles of modern	IGPC 9.2 is able to choose modern information intelligence as an object of legal relations	information technologies and use	technologies necessary for solving specific tasks of professional activity

Topic 5. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in foreign countries.	GPC-9 is able to understand the principles of modern information technologies and use them to solve problems of professional activity	IGPC 9.3 Has the skills to use modern information technologies necessary to solve specific problems of professional activity
Topic 6. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the Russian Federation.	GPC-9 is able to understand the principles of modern information technologies and use them to solve the problems of professional activity	IGPC 9.2 Can choose modern information technologies necessary for solving specific tasks of professional activity

Lecture 1. Artificial intelligence as a research discipline

Content:

1. The essence and concept of artificial intelligence.
2. The main stages of artificial intelligence development.
3. General characteristics of the development of artificial intelligence as a research area.
4. Methods of artificial intelligence.
5. Positive and negative impact of artificial intelligence technologies on society, business, citizens and individuals.

Tasks for preparing for the lecture:

1. Find open source materials on artificial intelligence methods from the MIPT Centre of Competence for Artificial Intelligence, the Russian Association of Artificial Intelligence, corporations and foundations of Russian and foreign universities that deal with the development of artificial intelligence. Specify their name and competence.

2. Find material on how intelligent technologies and systems solve problems related to creative tasks.

Lecture 2. Artificial intelligence as a branch of creating innovative technologies and systems

Content:

1. The main areas and directions of application of artificial intelligence technologies.
2. Priority artificial intelligence technologies.
3. The main components of intelligent technologies and systems.
4. Neural networks.
5. International system of assessment of achievements in the field of artificial intelligence development
6. Artificial intelligence technologies in the legal sphere

Tasks for preparing for the lecture:

1. Formulate the main directions and areas of use of artificial intelligence systems in the information society.
2. Define what is meant by the term "machine learning" of neural networks.

Lecture 3. Artificial intelligence systems in the digital economy and digital transformation of the legal sphere

Content:

1. The concept and types of digital technologies.
2. The concept and features of digital legal relations.
3. Development of artificial intelligence systems as part of the National Project "Digital Economy"
4. National strategy for the development of artificial intelligence in the Russian Federation for the period up to 2030
5. Artificial intelligence systems in legal activity.

Tasks for preparing for the lecture:

1. Using reference legal systems and Internet information resources, find Russian state strategies and doctrines that set goals for the development of artificial intelligence systems.
2. After analysing state strategies and doctrines, formulate the planned trends in the development of artificial intelligence systems.
3. In the National Strategy for the Development of Artificial Intelligence in Russia until 2020, find provisions concerning the problems of legal support for the development of artificial intelligence in Russia.
4. Select examples of the use of artificial intelligence in public administration.

Lecture 4. The concept and features of artificial intelligence as an object of legal relations

Content:

1. Approaches to understanding artificial intelligence and artificial intelligence systems.
2. The concepts of robot (robotic agent, robot agent), robotic systems, cyber-physical systems.
3. Artificial intelligence systems as a special type of information systems: distinctive features and attributes.
4. Approaches to the consideration of the artificial intelligence system as a subject of legal relations. The concept of an electronic person.
5. Development of the theory of quasi-legal entities.

Tasks for preparing for the lecture:

1. In the scientific literature, the definition of an artificial intelligence system can be found..
2. In the scientific literature, find approaches to defining the electronic face of different authors.

Lectures 5-6-6. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in foreign countriesContent:

1. Ethical norms and standards for the use of artificial intelligence systems.
2. Features of the legal model for regulating artificial intelligence systems in the EU.
3. Features of the legal model for regulating artificial intelligence systems in the United States and Canada.
4. Features of the legal model for regulating artificial intelligence systems in Asian countries.
5. Self-regulation in the field of artificial intelligence

Tasks for preparing for the lecture:

1. Find information about the specifics of legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence in certain areas – transport, healthcare, education and science, state and municipal administration, etc.
2. Find information in the literature about how self-regulation in the use of artificial intelligence systems is carried out in foreign countries.

Lectures and 7-8. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the Russian FederationContent:

1. International regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics.
2. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence
3. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the field of transport.
4. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the healthcare sector.

5. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in education and science.

Tasks for preparing for the lecture:

1. In the scientific literature, reference legal systems "ConsultantPlus", "Garant", "Code" and information resources of the Internet, you can find regulatory legal acts, local acts of organizations regulating the use of artificial intelligence.

2.3. Seminar-type classes

Seminar 1. Artificial intelligence as a research discipline

1. Analysis of approaches to the definition of artificial intelligence.
2. The main stages of development of artificial intelligence as a science.
3. Methods of artificial intelligence.
4. Neural networks.
5. The positive and negative impact of AI technologies on society, businesses, citizens, and individuals.

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

1. Define the tasks of artificial intelligence from the perspective of modelling human cognitive functions.

Seminar 2. Artificial intelligence as a branch of creating innovative technologies and systems.

1. Main areas and directions of application of artificial intelligence technologies.
2. Priority artificial intelligence technologies.
3. The main components of intelligent technologies and systems.
4. Current state of artificial intelligence technologies in the legal sphere

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

1. Determine which digital technologies use computer vision technology, and get acquainted with the results obtained from leading Russian and foreign manufacturers.
2. Prepare reports on the use of recommendation systems and intelligent decision support systems in various applications.
3. Choose examples of the use of smart technologies in the legal field.

Seminar 3-4. Artificial intelligence systems in the digital economy and digital transformation of the legal sphere

1. The concept and types of digital technologies.
2. The concept and features of digital legal relations.
3. National program "Digital Economy" on artificial intelligence systems. Federal project "Artificial Intelligence".
4. Roadmap for" end-to-end "digital technology "Neurotechnology and artificial Intelligence".

5. National strategy for the development of artificial intelligence in the Russian Federation for the period up to 2030

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

1. What is the special feature of digital legal relations?
2. Determine what public relations are formed in connection with the use of artificial intelligence technologies.
3. What are the main tasks in the field of legal regulation set by the National Strategy for the Development of Artificial Intelligence in the Russian Federation for the period up to 2030?
4. Define the role of artificial intelligence systems for the development and use of other digital technologies (big data, the Internet of things, virtual and augmented reality, etc.)

Seminar 5-6. The concept and features of artificial intelligence as an object of legal relations

1. Approaches to understanding artificial intelligence and artificial intelligence systems.
2. The concepts of robot (robotic agent, robot agent), robotic systems, cyber-physical systems.
3. Artificial intelligence systems as a special type of information systems: distinctive features and attributes.
4. Approaches to the consideration of the artificial intelligence system as a subject of legal relations. The concept of an electronic person.
5. An electronic person as a quasi-legal entity.

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

1. In the scientific literature and information resources of the Internet, find approaches to the definition of artificial intelligence by various authors.
2. What is the difference between the concepts of "digital face" and "digital personality"?
3. Analyse the legislation of the European Union and legal literature and determine the specifics of the electronic person's visa status.
4. Formulate cases of changes in digital legal personality, as well as possible termination of digital legal personality.

Seminar 7-8. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in foreign countries

1. Ethical norms and standards for the use of artificial intelligence systems.
2. Features of the legal model for regulating artificial intelligence systems in the EU.
3. Features of the legal model for regulating artificial intelligence systems in the United States and Canada.
4. Features of the legal model for regulating artificial intelligence systems in Asian countries.
5. Self-regulation regulation in the field of artificial intelligence

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

1. What ethical standards set out the basic principles of regulating artificial intelligence?
2. Select information on the main legal acts regulating relations in the field of artificial intelligence in a specific foreign country based on the teacher's assignment.
3. Find information in the literature about how self-regulation in the use of artificial intelligence systems is carried out in foreign countries.

Seminar 9-106. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the Russian Federation

1. International regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics.
2. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence
3. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the field of transport.
4. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the healthcare sector.
5. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in education and science.

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

1. In the scientific literature, reference legal systems "ConsultantPlus", "Garant", "Code" and information resources of the Internet, find regulatory legal acts, local acts of organizations regulating the use of artificial intelligence:
 - in the field of transport;
 - in the field of healthcare;
 - in the field of education and science.

2.4. Laboratory workshop

Topic 1. Artificial intelligence as a research discipline

Determine which artificial intelligence methods (fuzzy-stochastic modelling, fuzzy models and systems, reasoning modelling and non-classical logic, neural network technologies, evolutionary modelling and genetic algorithms, multi-agent systems, knowledge engineering, knowledge management, and ontological modelling) are used to develop intelligent systems in the following subject areas:

- qualification of offenses;
- making managerial decisions;
- systematization and codification of legislation;
- search for normative legal acts and judicial practice on a specific topic.

Use materials on artificial intelligence methods from the MIPT Centre of Competence for Artificial Intelligence, the Russian Association of Artificial Intelligence, corporations and foundations of Russian and foreign universities that deal with the development of artificial intelligence.

Topic 2. Artificial intelligence as a branch of creating innovative technologies and systems

For the model of knowledge representation and processing – a neural network in the subject area defined by the teacher, determine the necessary AI technologies:

- computer vision,
- natural language processing.
- speech recognition and synthesis.
- recommendation systems and intelligent decision support systems.

Justify the use of the selected technologies for:

- development of claims;
- preparation of appeals to state bodies;
- developing a chat-bot on a specific topic.
- etc.

Topic 3. Artificial intelligence systems in the digital economy and digital transformation of the legal sphere

Choose a specific artificial intelligence system developed and used in legal practice.

For the selected system, define:

goals and objectives of the system.

the implemented data model.

applied methods of artificial intelligence;

possible risks (profiling, discrimination, lack of transparency in the work of AI, the possibility of abuse, data storage security failure).

Topic 4. The concept and features of artificial intelligence as an object of legal relations

Task 1. Analyse approaches to understanding artificial intelligence and artificial intelligence systems in the works of V. B. Naumov, P. M. Morkhat, and O. A. Yastrebova.

Task 2. For robotic systems, analyse the advantages and disadvantages of the following approaches to determining the legal personality of artificial intelligence systems.

complete denial of legal personality;

granting the status of an animal.

granting the status of a legal entity;

granting the status of an individual;

introduction of the concept of an electronic entity into scientific circulation; assignment to quasi-legal entities.

Topic 5 Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in foreign countries

Task 1. Analyse the legal model for regulating artificial intelligence systems in:

1. EU
2. USA
3. Canada.

4. In China
5. South Korea.

Task 2. Identify the main areas of legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence in certain areas in foreign countries (on the assignment of the teacher):
 on public transport,
 in healthcare,
 in education and science,
 in state and municipal administration, etc.

Topic 6. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the Russian Federation

Task 1. Identify the main areas of legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence in certain areas in the Russian Federation (on the assignment of the teacher):
 on public transport,
 in healthcare,
 in education and science,
 in state and municipal administration, etc.

Guidelines for preparing for a Laboratory workshop

In the course of solving the task, the student must determine the legal norms on the basis of which the problem should be solved, interpret them correctly and formulate the solution legally correctly. At the same time, consider the theoretical provisions of information and digital law related to the content of the task, explaining the nature of the disputed relationship, the ways and mechanism of the impact of legal means on it, the procedure for their application, etc. Acting in this way, the student should learn to closely link the theory of information and digital law with the practice of applying the current information legislation and thus more fully and effectively to better understand the essence of information and legal categories and concepts, to reveal and understand the social meaning and service role of the information law norms, concepts, and information and legal constructions used in this situation. Students are required to complete tasks in writing in a special notebook while preparing for practical classes. In writing, the decision must contain a summary of the actual circumstances, their assessment, and an indication of the legal norms in accordance with which the problem was solved. Using the written text, the student should give a detailed legal justification for the decision made in his speech at the classes.

2.5. Independent work

Students perform a number of independent tasks within the framework of independent work.

Types of independent work include:

search and study of existing information materials on the topics of the discipline; search and study of regulatory legal acts, including using electronic databases; analysis of the materials studied and preparation of reports in accordance with the topic chosen and agreed with the teacher.

As part of the study of materials of both a doctrinal and law enforcement nature, students should form their own opinion about the problems raised in the analyzed topic.

Features of independent work of students on certain topics of the discipline (module)

Topic 1. Artificial intelligence as a research discipline

To understand the role and place of artificial intelligence in the system of scientific disciplines, it is necessary to focus on the goals and objectives of artificial intelligence. It is necessary to understand the role and place that AI technologies play today in the modern information society (education, medicine), public administration, and the digital economy. Therefore, when defining the concept of artificial intelligence, it is necessary to take into account the multidimensional nature of this concept.

The general description of the development of artificial intelligence as a research area is carried out in accordance with the stages of development of this young science, its subject and methods. Artificial intelligence methods are closely related to the development of mathematical, software, and technical support for technologies and systems.

The main methods of AI today include:

fuzzy-stochastic modelling;

fuzzy models and systems.

modelling reasoning and non-classical logic;

neural network technologies.

evolutionary modelling and genetic algorithms;

multi-agent systems.

knowledge engineering, knowledge management, and ontological modelling.

For a more complete understanding of artificial intelligence methods, you should read the materials of the MIPT Centre of Competence for Artificial Intelligence, the Russian Association of Artificial Intelligence, corporations and foundations of Russian and foreign universities dealing with the development of artificial intelligence.

The growing role of digital information and digital data, the rapid development of digital technologies stimulated the development of society and its digital transformation, which made it necessary to use artificial intelligence technologies in most "end-to-end" technologies.

It is necessary to pay attention to the essence of the positive and negative effects of the development of intellectual technologies received by society, business, citizens and individuals. It is important to consider the current stage of technological changes in the development of artificial intelligence in close connection with the need and obligation to regulate this process.

Topic 2. Artificial intelligence as a branch of creating innovative intelligent technologies and systems

Artificial intelligence can be used to implement new human capabilities in all areas of activity, including:

- freeing a person from monotonous work by automatically creating software;
- support for communication between people;
- support in decision-making;
- automation of hazardous types of work.

In order to develop the “end-to-end” digital technology “Neurotechnology and Artificial Intelligence”, in 2019 the Russian Federation developed a roadmap - a set of technological tasks divided into sub-eeDT (eeDT - end-to-end digital technologies).

The main AI technologies being developed are:

- computer vision,
- natural language processing.
- speech recognition and synthesis.
- recommendation systems and intelligent decision support systems.

To learn from the most widely used and effective model of knowledge representation and processing –a neural network, you should understand the concept of deep networks, machine learning. Neural networks are used in the implementation of AI technologies such as computer vision, natural language analysis, data analysis, decision support systems (for example, in assessing financial risks, etc.).

You should pay attention to the breadth of AI applications.

Special attention should be paid to the intellectual technologies, used in legal activity: work with intelligent systems for analysing judicial practice (the Sutiazhnik system of the Garant consortium, analysis of judicial practice of the “ConsultantPlus” company), preparation of standard court decisions, etc.

In the thematic classifiers of the reference legal systems "ConsultantPlus", "Garant", "Codex", you can get acquainted with approaches to systematization of legislation on the use of innovative technologies and artificial intelligence in the digital sphere.

Topic 3. Artificial intelligence systems in the digital economy and digital transformation of the legal sphere

When studying this topic, it is important for students to understand what the digital economy is, and how this term is legally defined. It is necessary to study the relevant strategic and regulatory legal acts.

It is important to identify and analyse the problems of doing business in the digital environment.

One of the key problems in modern law is the legal regulation of the development and use of artificial intelligence systems.

A separate task is to study digital technologies as a tool for establishing new forms of use of intellectual property objects. Modern digital technologies are a means of creating a significant number of intellectual property objects. Today, it is important to understand the legal nature of intellectual property objects created using digital technologies, primarily artificial intelligence.

It is important to identify the key features of digital legal relations that allow us to distinguish and isolate them in the structure of modern information and other industry relations:

1. Arise about the use of data in digital form, as well as the results of data analysis and the results of processing and use of such data in various spheres of public life using digital technologies;

2. They are complex, formed both within the framework of information and other legal relations – civil, administrative, labour, criminal law, procedural and other.

3. Universal nature, due to the possibility of using digital data and technologies in almost all spheres of public life. It is no coincidence that digital technologies are traditionally called end-to-end.

4. Technical and technological conditionality. Objects of digital relations-digital technologies, as well as the digital nature of data, make it necessary to include objects of a technical nature (computer equipment, information systems, information and telecommunications networks, directly digital technologies) in relations about information, which act as identifiers of these relations, determine their digital nature and mediation. However, it should be borne in mind that such conditionality does not imply the exclusion of the subject.

5. Use of various techniques, methods and means of legal regulation in combination with technical, organizational, ethical standards, as well as self-regulation and co-regulation mechanisms, and other regulatory mechanisms. An important pattern in the development of digital legal relations is the uncertainty of the set of regulators. The rapid development of digital technologies and the emergence of new ones make it difficult to unambiguously predict what exactly will be needed to regulate digital relations in the future. The task of digital law in this regard is to develop models for regulating digital relations as soon as possible, based on the principles of discrete and non-linear development, flexibility and efficiency, and the possibility of replacing certain regulators, including legal ones for specific relations.

6. Special legal regime of digital law objects. The individual direction of regulation and isolation of each of the objects of digital legal relations within its own unique legal regime is associated with a special set of techniques, methods and means of regulating the relevant relations, as well as technical, organizational and other means that are used in this process. The legal regime of digital objects implies the inclusion in each specific case of unique means not only of legal, but also of technical, organizational, biological and other nature. So, technologies based on artificial intelligence are based on the peculiarities of human thinking and biopsychosocial mechanisms of its functioning. Any regulation of the use of digital technologies in genetic research is based on a significant number of ethical regulators operating in the field of genetic research. All digital technologies are based on a significant number of technical and organizational norms, which in one form or another are either transformed into legal norms or fixed as mandatory for implementation.

The features of digital relations should also include a specific subject structure; the presence of a significant number of specific legal regimes of individual digital technologies, etc. The tools for regulating these relations are a set of regulators. Over time, the unique legal tools for managing changes in the digital environment will expand to include regulatory tools based on digital technologies themselves, which will have a direct impact on the regulatory mechanism.

Topic 4. The concept and features of artificial intelligence as an object of legal relations

Within the framework of the topic under consideration, students should know the essence of artificial intelligence and robotics. Artificial intelligence is a set of technologies, including informational and digital ones that allow solving cognitive problems related mainly to human intelligence. Artificial intelligence is often seen as the ability of intelligent systems to perform creative functions that are unique to humans; it is a series of algorithms and software systems that are distinguished by the ability to solve certain problems in the same way as a person who thinks about solving them would do. Traditionally, the use of artificial intelligence technologies is associated with such categories as robot, robotic agent (robot agent), robotic system, cyber-physical system with artificial intelligence, etc. A robot is most often viewed as a human-programmable mechanical device capable of performing various tasks and interacting with the external environment without human assistance.

The term "artificial intelligence" was proposed in 1956 by John McCarthy, as a branch of science for modelling "intelligent" computer programs. At the same time, "intelligence" is understood as a thinking ability, a mental principle that determines a person's activity. Initially, artificial intelligence was considered as the automation of mental activity. In the modern sense, artificial intelligence is a scientific direction that aims to solve problems of hardware or software modelling of intellectual activities of people, that is, the creation of information systems capable of performing creative functions that are traditionally considered the prerogative of a person and even distinguish an artificial brain as a repetition of the functional properties inherent in the brain by artificial means. In other words, from the user's point of view, artificial intelligence is a computer program or a system of such programs (information system), with the functional purpose of imitating human intellectual activity.

Currently, various systems for automating mental activity are used, including expert information systems, such as statistical models of linguistic translations, speech recognition, photos, etc., and neural information systems (self-learning information systems), the use of which is currently used in medicine.

Topic 5. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in foreign countries

The analysis of foreign experience in legal regulation of relations in the field of artificial intelligence and robotics shows that there are several models for regulating relations that arise in connection with the use of artificial intelligence.

The practice of private initiatives is quite common, which is associated with the joint efforts of a number of companies to develop the use of artificial intelligence technologies and consolidate the basic principles of working with such technologies. For example, the Azilomar Principles of Artificial Intelligence (USA), aimed at creating useful intelligence, maintaining human values, and confidentiality of personal data.

An important mechanism for regulating relations in the field of artificial intelligence is self-regulation. Self-regulation today has a different impact on the development of digital technologies both in Russia and around the world. There are several directions of such influence. First, the question is raised about the possibility of using the self-regulation mechanism for the development of a number of areas of the information and telecommunications sphere, the sphere of mass communications, in which digital technologies are actively used. Moreover, this is not only the traditional regulation of the Internet environment, but also individual branches of the use of crypto currencies, block chain technologies, artificial intelligence, and others. Secondly, it is the use of digital technologies in the process of developing self-regulation in existing areas. Thus, digitalization of the construction industry, which includes the functioning of information systems based on the use of big data, block chain technology, and artificial intelligence, involves the creation of a single information space that covers all subjects of the construction industry's self-regulation system.

Most states today follow the path of national legal regulation of relations in the use of artificial intelligence technologies.

The analysis of national regulation indicates a rather limited range of relations that are subject to legal influence-this is mainly the transport sector, education, medicine, public security, industry, and public administration. But there is a clear trend to expand and include new areas in which the use of artificial intelligence is regulated.

The analysis of foreign experience shows that there are a number of models for regulating artificial intelligence. At the same time, legal regulation is not the only regulator. The active use of organizational norms, ethical norms, self-regulation and co-regulation, the formation of supranational norms indicates the search for a solution to the complex problem of regulating relations in the use of cyber-physical systems and artificial intelligence.

Foreign models of legal regulation of artificial intelligence are based on the national legislation of the regulatory country. One of the first laws to regulate this area was the Law "On the Development and Distribution of Smart Robots" adopted in 2008 in South Korea. In 2017, Estonia adopted regulations on the use of robot couriers that deliver various correspondence and purchases within a certain space. In Germany, on May 12, 2017, the Bundestag amended the German Road Traffic Law (Strassenverkehrsgesetz), according to which, from June 21, 2017, it is officially allowed to operate a car using a fully or fully automated driving function, if this function is used for its intended purpose, etc.

Among the main trends in the regulation of the use of artificial intelligence, the following can be identified: the combination of various mechanisms of social regulation of the use of artificial intelligence (legal, ethical, technical, local and other mechanisms of regulation, self-regulation and co-regulation, as well as their synthesis; the creation of fundamentally new synthesized regulatory mechanisms based on a multi-level command system of norms); the mandatory provision of human security and human rights in the use of artificial intelligence, eliminating the risks of destroying humanity; - a combination of conceptual regulation of the comprehensive use of artificial intelligence and regulation of the most acute problems that require immediate solutions for certain artificial intelligence technologies (unmanned vehicles, the use of robots in the service sector, telemedicine, etc.).

With the rapid development of artificial intelligence, it is necessary to attach greater importance to possible risks and security threats, develop promising recommendations for their prevention and limitation, minimize risks and ensure safe, reliable and controlled development of artificial intelligence. The active use of artificial intelligence and robotics has led to the need for a legal understanding of these technologies. "Robot calls" and "robot threats" raise the question of the need for legal regulation of a number of relations arising in connection with the use of artificial intelligence and robotics. Today, there is an ambiguity in the perception of artificial intelligence systems and robots from the point of view of law (from the use of the "human slaves" regime to equating the rights of robots with human rights and creating electronic persons as subjects of law). How can a robot be considered as a subject or object of law? Using the method of legal fiction allows us to consider it as a subject of law, endowed with a special legal personality. Foreign experience shows that it is possible to grant a robot the status of a citizen (subject), for example, the humanoid female robot (gynoid) Sofia, which was developed by the Hong Kong Company Hanson Robotics and received citizenship of Saudi Arabia in October 2017. European Union Resolution 2015/2103 (INL) "Norms of civil law on robotics" indicates the possibility of granting robots the status of electronic persons by analogy with legal entities. This approach is actively supported by many corporations around the world, which seek to avoid legal liability for the actions of robots used in the process of doing business. Robots are also considered as an object of law, since they are complex objects of intellectual property, including computer programs, databases, other objects of copyright and related rights, objects of patent law, and production secrets (know-how).

Topic 6. Legal regulation of the use of artificial intelligence and robotics in the Russian Federation

The legal regulation of artificial intelligence in the Russian Federation is based on the following basic standards: the Constitution of the Russian Federation, the Federal Law "On Information and Information Technologies and Information Protection", the Federal Law "On Communications", the Civil Code of the Russian Federation, etc.

According to Article 71 of the Constitution of the Russian Federation, information technologies belong to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Russian Federation; the legal regulation of intellectual property, which includes computer programs, is also referred to the exclusive jurisdiction.

Article 12 of the Federal Law "On Information, Information Technologies and Information Protection" defines the main directions of state regulation in the field of information technologies.

According to the Civil Code of the Russian Federation, a computer program is a collection of data and commands presented in an objective form, intended for the operation of computers and other computer devices in order to obtain a certain result, including preparatory materials. The author of the result of intellectual activity is a citizen whose creative work created such a result. In accordance with the Civil Code, a computer program is recognized as a result of intellectual activity, which is granted legal protection.

Intellectual property rights, as well as exclusive property rights, as well as personal non-property rights are recognized for the results of intellectual activity.

Copyrights to all types of computer programs are also protected as copyrights to works of literature. Copyrights to computer programs arise and are recognized by virtue of the mere fact of creating and giving them an objectively perceived form.

According to the Civil Code, state registration of computer programs and integrated circuit topology, as well as databases, can be carried out at the request of the owner of exclusive copyright. An exception is the prohibition of state registration of data containing state secrets.

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF MASTERING THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

Current certification. Implementation of continuous monitoring of the student's task performance and evaluation of the results of their work.

When evaluating a completed task, the following factors are taken into account:

- the quality of task completion (whether there are minor flaws or significant errors).
- task completion time.
- the degree of independence in completing the task.
- ability to evaluate the results of your work and correct mistakes.

Forms of boundary control (in case of modular organization of discipline study):

- testing (control at the level of knowledge);
- solving control tasks (control at the level of understanding and proficiency).

V. LOGISTICS SUPPORT

5.1. Providing the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the discipline (module) is posted in the Digital Scientific, Educational and Social Network of the University (hereinafter - DSESN), in the system of which "Electronic personal accounts of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" function. You can access the content by entering an individual password. The DSESN is designed to create a person-oriented information and communication environment that ensures information interaction of all participants in the educational process of Kutafin University (MSAL), including providing them with publicly accessible and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services that operate on the basis of applied information systems of Kutafin University (MSAL).

Each student is provided with individual unlimited access to electronic library systems (e-libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of Kutafin University (MSAL) during the entire period of study. In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unlimited access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and reference legal systems connected at the Kutafin University (MSAL) on the basis of license agreements, and having adapted versions of sites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (e-library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access for 100% of students from any point where there is access to the Internet information and telecommunications network, both on the territory of Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

Contents of the discipline (module)

I. Theoretical section

The material of the section provides for the students to master a system of scientific, practical and specialized knowledge necessary for understanding the natural and social processes of the functioning of the physical culture of society and the individual, the ability to use them creatively for personal and professional development, self-improvement, and the organization of a healthy lifestyle when performing educational, professional and socio-cultural activities.

II. Practical Section

The educational material of this section is aimed at improving the level of functional and motor abilities, developing the necessary qualities and personality traits, mastering the methods and means of physical education and sports activities, and acquiring personal experience in the targeted use of physical education and sports.

The practical section of the program is implemented in methodological-practical and educational-training classes in study groups.

Methodological-practical classes provide for the development of basic methods and ways of developing educational, professional and life skills and abilities by means of physical education and sports.

Each methodological-practical class is consistent with the corresponding theoretical and practical topic. When conducting methodological-practical classes, it is recommended to adhere to the following approximate scheme:

the teacher briefly explains the teaching methods and, if necessary, demonstrates the appropriate techniques, methods of performing physical exercises, motor actions to achieve the necessary results according to the studied methodology;

students practically reproduce thematic tasks under the supervision of the teacher with mutual control;

students are given individual recommendations for practical self-improvement of thematic actions, techniques, methods. Under the guidance of the teacher, the results of the assignment are discussed and analyzed.

Educational and training sessions are based on the extensive use of theoretical knowledge and methodological skills, on the application of various means of physical education, sports and professional-applied physical training of students.

Their focus is related to ensuring the necessary motor activity, achieving and maintaining an optimal level of physical and functional fitness during the training period; acquiring personal experience, improving and correcting individual physical development, functional and motor capabilities; with the development of vital and professionally necessary skills, psychophysical qualities.

Mandatory types of physical exercises for inclusion in the work program for physical education are: individual disciplines of track and field, swimming, sports games, skiing, exercises of professional-applied physical training (PAPT).

PAPT means, selected in accordance with the tasks of PAPT of future specialists, include specially targeted physical exercises, natural factors of nature, hygienic factors.

The selection of exercises for practical classes should provide for the improvement of previously studied and training in new motor actions (abilities and abilities), as well as the development of endurance, strength, speed of movement, agility and flexibility. Physical exercises from various sports, professionally applied exercises, and health-improving systems of physical exercises are used.

Practical educational material for the special educational department is developed by the departments of physical education, taking into account the indications and contraindications for each student. The educational material has a corrective and health-improving-preventive focus. When implementing it, an individually differentiated approach is necessary depending on the level of functional disorders in the body caused by temporary or permanent pathological factors. Students of the special educational department pass specially developed control exercises and tests.

Exempted from practical classes for a long period, they study the theoretical and methodological sections on the topic developed by the department for independent mastering. At the end of the semester, these students complete a written test (abstract). The content and specific means of each practical lesson in all departments are determined by the teachers of the study groups, taking into account the schedule of classes of the Department of Physical Education for each study department.

III. Control section

Control classes, tests provide operational, current and final differentiated information on the degree of mastery of theoretical and methodological knowledge and skills, on the state and dynamics of physical development, physical and professional-applied preparedness of each student.

The criteria for the effectiveness of educational and training classes are the requirements and indicators based on the use of motor activity not lower than a certain minimum - the regularity of attendance at mandatory classes and mandatory tests developed by the Department of Physical Education for students of different study groups, on professional-applied physical training, taking into account the specifics of training specialists.

Operational control provides information on the progress of students in completing a specific section, type of educational work.

Current control allows you to assess the degree of mastery of a section, topic, type of educational work.

The final assessment (tests) makes it possible to identify the level of development of the student's physical culture and self-determination in it through a comprehensive examination of knowledge, methodological and practical skills, characterization of the student's general physical, sports and technical preparedness, and his psychophysical preparedness for professional activity.

Assignments for preparation:

Study of the recommended primary and additional literature, regulatory material.

Lecture 2. Definition of concepts of physical qualities and features of their development. Classification of physical exercises.

Lecture plan:

1. Definition of concepts of physical qualities and age features of their development.
2. Development of physical qualities and means of health improvement by physical exercises.
3. Physical exercises as a means of developing speed, strength, endurance, flexibility, agility. Mutual influence of combination in the use of general development exercises for the development of physical qualities.
4. Classification of physical exercises.
5. Health orientation (significance) of general development exercises.
6. Role and place in the system of physical education, health events and as a means of improving physical fitness (health walking, running, health groups, etc.).

Tasks for preparation:

Study of recommended primary and additional literature, regulatory material.

2.3. Seminar-type classes

II semester

Practical classes in ski training

Practical classes No. 1

Subject of the lesson: Mastering motor skills and abilities in cross-country skiing. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of cross-country skiing.

1. Formation techniques with and on skis. Teaching the technique of turns on the spot.

2. Teaching the technique of alternating two-step running, simultaneous step-less running. Special preparatory exercises without skis, simulating skiing (with and without poles).

Assignments to prepare for the practical lesson:

- study of sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 3rd and 4th topics of lectures;
- study of the material of textbooks from the list of literature.

Practical classes No. 2-3

Subject of the lesson: Mastering motor skills and abilities in cross-country skiing. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of cross-country skiing.

1. Teaching the technique of alternating two-step running, simultaneous step-less running. Special preparatory exercises without skis, simulating skiing (with and without poles).

2. Special preparatory exercises on skis without poles and with poles: stepping step, sliding step. Teaching the technique of ascents, descents, braking and turns while moving on skis.

Tasks for preparation for the practical lesson:

- studying the sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 3rd and 4th lecture topics;
- studying the material of textbooks from the list of literature.

Practical lessons No. 4

Lesson topic: Teaching skating methods of movement, Simultaneous two-step, simultaneous one-step, half-skating, skating without pushing off with poles and alternating two-step skating. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of cross-country skiing.

Practical classes in track and field

Practical classes No. 5

Lesson topic: Introduction to the procedure and scope of studying the practical material of the discipline, with the rules of conduct during studies at the university. Acceptance of control exercises.

1. Introduction to the procedure for mastering the practical material of the discipline.

2. Conducting a questionnaire.

Assignments to prepare for the practical class:

- study of sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 1st and 2nd lecture topics;
- studying the material of textbooks from the list of references.

Practical classes No. 6-7

Lesson topic: Improving the level of physical fitness by means of track and field.

1. Assessment of general physical fitness (acceptance of control standards, determination of initial data).

Assignments to prepare for the practical class:

- study of sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 2nd and 3rd lecture topics;
- study of the textbook material from the list of references.

Practical classes No. 8

Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills and abilities in athletics. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of athletics.

1. Teaching the technique of special running exercises.
2. Familiarizing students with various athletics disciplines, various running distances. Teaching the technique of running, types of running.
3. Teaching the technique of long jumps from a place.

Assignments to prepare for the practical lesson:

- study of the sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 1st and 2nd topics of lectures;
- study of the material of textbooks from the list of references.

Practical classes in sports games

Practical classes №9-10

Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills and abilities in sports games. Teaching volleyball playing techniques. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of sports games.

1. Teaching and improving the technique of volleyball game elements.
2. Teaching attacking techniques: stances and movements.
3. Teaching how to pass and receive the ball, serving technique.

Assignments to prepare for the practical class:

- study of sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 2nd and 3rd lecture topics;
- studying the material of textbooks from the list of references.

Practical classes №11-12

Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills and abilities in sports games. Teaching volleyball playing techniques. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of sports games.

1. Elements of tactical actions on the court.
2. Familiarize with the rules of the game.
3. Two-way game.

Assignments to prepare for the practical lesson:

- study of the sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 2nd and 3rd lecture topics;
- studying the material of textbooks from the list of references.

Practical swimming lessons

Practical lessons No. 13-16

Topic of the lesson: Mastering motor skills and abilities in swimming. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of swimming.

Familiarization with the health and therapeutic value of swimming, sanitary and hygienic requirements for swimmers, rules of conduct and safety measures during lessons in the pool. General developmental and special exercises on land. Studying the technique of preparatory exercises for mastering the aquatic environment: moving along the bottom, diving, floating, sliding.

Teaching the technique of swimming using the back crawl method. General characteristics of the method. Body and head position. Studying the technique of leg and arm movements in the back crawl. Teaching correct breathing when swimming. Studying the technique of coordinating movements and breathing. Simple turn and start technique. Overcoming increasing segments and distances at a uniform speed.

Teaching the technique of swimming using the front crawl. General characteristics of the technique. Body and head position. Learning the technique of leg movement in the front crawl. Basic variations and learning the technique of coordinating arm movement and breathing in the front crawl. Learning the elements of the turn technique when swimming the front crawl. Overcoming increasing segments and distances at a uniform speed. Developing physical qualities using swimming elements.

Tasks to prepare for the practical lesson:

- studying the sections of this program;
- mastering the material of the 3rd and 4th topics of lectures;
- studying the material of textbooks from the list of references.

2.4. Independent Work

Model of independent work in full-time education

Independent work consists of:

- studying individual topics of the discipline as assigned by the teacher using the educational literature recommended by him (textbooks and teaching aids, additional literature on the section being studied);
- preparing for lectures, taking notes on the text of educational literature;
- mastering sections reflected in the course program not covered during lectures;
- working with reference books and dictionaries;
- preparing for passing control exercises;
- independent work in the form of preparation for educational games and other active forms of participation in educational activities.

A student, exempted from practical classes in physical education, prepares an essay on the proposed topics within the problematic field of the discipline, the student can also suggest his own topic for the essay. The student prepares an essay, makes a report on it. The quality of the abstract and the level of the report are taken into account in the final assessment for the discipline.

Model (features) of independent work of part-time and correspondence forms of study in individual sections and topics of the discipline

As part of the study of individual topics of the discipline (module) "Physical Education and Sports", attention should be paid to the analysis of the causes of low performance and the basic principles of self-control during independent physical exercise. Analytical work is expected during the course. It is also expected to use role-playing and educational games during practical classes.

Sample topics for independent study:

methodology for conducting industrial gymnastics taking into account the specified conditions and nature of work means and methods of muscle relaxation in sports. Fundamentals of self-massage techniques. Assessment of motor activity and daily energy expenditure methods for assessing the level of health. Methods of self-monitoring the functional state of the body

Model (features) of independent work for part-time and correspondence courses and weekend groups:

As part of studying the topics of the discipline (module) "Physical Education and Sports", a full-time and correspondence student is expected to independently master individual types of physical exercises, master the technique of various sports, and the method of self-monitoring the state of health during physical exercise. The student must select educational material on the topic of the practical lesson according to the list offered in the program, and prepare for the topics of practical lessons using textbooks offered by the department as literature.

Sample topics for independent study:

methods of regulating the psycho-emotional state. Methods of self-assessment of the level and dynamics of general and special physical fitness. Fundamentals of the methodology for conducting a training session methods of assessing and correcting posture and physique. Methods of self-monitoring the state of health, physical development and functional fitness methods of independent mastering of individual elements of professional and applied physical training. Methods of mastering vital skills and abilities (walking, skiing, swimming)

The practical lesson itself should be built on the fact that the correspondence course student can, using the selected educational materials and knowledge obtained during listening to lectures and studying textbooks, independently answer the test questions that will be offered to him, as well as analyze the model tasks offered to him.

Approximate topics of independent work full-time and part-time forms of study

1. Physical education and sports as social phenomena of society.
2. Current state of physical education and sports.
3. Physical education of the individual. Values of physical education.
4. Physical education in general cultural and professional training of a specialist.
5. The human body as a single self-developing and self-regulating biological system.

6. The impact of natural and socio-ecological factors on the human body.
7. Means of physical education and sports in improving the functional capabilities of the body.
8. Physiological mechanisms and patterns of improvement of individual systems of the body under the influence of targeted physical training.
9. Human health as a value. Factors that determine health.
10. Healthy lifestyle and its components.
11. Physical self-education and self-improvement in a healthy lifestyle.
12. Criteria for the effectiveness of a healthy lifestyle.
13. Psychophysiological characteristics of intellectual activity and academic work of the student.
14. Dynamics of student performance during the academic year and factors determining it. The influence of various modes and conditions of training on the state of the student's body.
15. Features of the use of physical education tools in regulating performance, psycho-emotional and functional state.
16. Methodological principles of physical education.
17. Methods of physical education.
18. Fundamentals of the methodology of teaching movements.
19. Methodology of initial and advanced learning of movement, consolidation and further improvement of motor action.
20. Fundamentals of improving physical qualities.
21. Fundamentals of the methodology for developing strength abilities.
22. Methodology for using physical education tools to develop speed of movement.
23. Methodological techniques for developing agility and flexibility.
24. Tools and methods for developing general and special endurance.
25. Sections of sports training.
26. General physical and special training, their goals and objectives.
27. Zones of physical activity intensity.
28. Forms of physical exercise classes.
29. Educational and training session as the main form of teaching physical exercise.
30. Structure and focus of the educational and training session.
31. Forms and content of independent classes.
32. Organization of independent classes in physical exercises of various focuses.
33. The nature of the content of classes depending on age.
34. Features of independent classes for women.
35. Limits of intensity of loads in conditions of independent classes for people of different ages.
36. Planning and management of independent classes.
37. Features of the methodology for compiling individual programs of physical education and sports.
38. Compiling exercise complexes and features of morning exercises.

39. Selecting the content, means and methods, planning the volume and intensity of physical activity of independent classes in physical education and sports.

40. Equipping places and preparing equipment for independent classes in physical education and sports.

41. Methodology for compiling a plan-summary of independent classes in physical education and sports.

42. Hygiene of independent classes.

43. Contents of medical and pedagogical control.

44. Determination of assessment indices of physical development.

45. Assessment of the functional state of the cardiovascular system. Methodology for conducting stress tests.

46. Methodology for conducting functional tests, determining respiratory rate and vital capacity of the lungs to assess respiratory functions.

47. Methodology for conducting tests and assessing the functional state of the nervous system.

48. Methods for determining physical performance and physical condition.

49. Methodology for conducting and evaluating the results of testing the level of development of physical qualities.

50. Self-monitoring the effectiveness of independent studies.

51. Basic methods and indicators of self-monitoring. Methodology for keeping a self-monitoring diary.

52. Definition of the concept of "sport".

53. Mass sports, its goals and objectives.

54. Student sports. The system of student sports competitions.

55. Modern popular systems of physical exercises.

56. Methodology of athletic and rhythmic gymnastics.

57. Methodology of breathing types of gymnastics.

58. Features of gymnastics for the eyes, gymnastic poses stretching, hydroaerobics, aerobics K. Cooper.

59. High-performance sports, its goals and objectives.

60. Characteristics of the main groups of sports.

61. Model characteristics of a high-class athlete.

62. Unified sports classification. Olympic Games.

63. Characteristics of the impact of a selected sport or system of physical exercises on physical development, fitness and mental qualities.

64. Professionally applied physical training, its goals and objectives.

65. Use of professionally applied physical education tools for development and improvement of professionally important psychophysical qualities.

66. Industrial physical education and its types.

67. Features of choosing forms, methods and tools of physical education and sports during working and free time of specialists.

68. Methodology for compiling and conducting sets of exercises for introductory gymnastics, physical education pause, physical education minute and micropause of active rest.

69. Prevention of occupational diseases and injuries by means of physical education.

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF MASTERING THE DISCIPLINE (MODULE)

Students of all academic departments who have completed the working curriculum take a test in physical education in the second semester. The condition for admission to the test exercises is regular attendance of classes, ensuring a physiologically and methodologically justified increase in functional and motor fitness.

The criterion for the successful mastery of the educational material by the student is the expert assessment of the teacher's regularity of attendance of mandatory classes and a satisfactory assessment of the fulfillment of control standards.

In each semester, students take mandatory tests to determine the level of physical fitness in each half-year. Sample tests for general physical fitness for the academic departments are presented below.

Practical standards for the discipline "Physical Education and Sports" (for the main medical group of full-time education)

№	Sports	Tests	M			F
			5	4	3	5	4	3
1	Athletics	Run 60 m, s (required test)	8,7	9,3	10,0	9,9	10,5	11,2

Control exercises and tests for assessing the general physical fitness of the special educational department

1. K. Cooper test (6-minute run alternating with walking)
2. Bending and unbending arms in a prone position (number of times)
3. Raising (sit) and lowering the body from a prone position, legs fixed, hands behind the head (number of times)
4. Long jump from a place (cm)
5. Skiing (girls 2 km, boys 3 km without taking into account the time)
6. Swimming segments (girls 25 m, boys 50 m without taking into account the time)

All test results are assessed in dynamics from the initial result individually for each student. Exercises are performed strictly individually, taking into account contraindications.

The following can be used as assessment tools for current monitoring of academic performance, midterm and final certification:

- control questions for lectures;
- writing tests/abstracts;
- conducting tests.

Sample questions for lectures

Lecture No. 1

1. The concept of "Physical Education". The purpose and objectives of physical education.
2. Physical education and a healthy lifestyle

3. Definition of the concept of health
4. Basic requirements for organizing a healthy lifestyle.
5. Criteria for the effectiveness of a healthy lifestyle.
6. Legislation of the Russian Federation in the field of physical education and sports. Labor Code.
7. Strategy for the development of physical education and sports in the Russian Federation until 2030.
8. Concept for the development of student sports in the Russian Federation until 2025
9. Basic and regional sports
10. Independent physical education classes.
11. Safety precautions during physical education classes.
12. Material and technical support for physical exercise classes.
13. Equipment and inventory in various sports (examples).
14. Choosing rational clothing and footwear for physical exercise

Lecture No. 2

1. Health-improving focus of physical exercise
2. Prevention and correction of posture disorders and flat feet by means of physical culture and sports
3. Strengthening the cardiovascular system by means of physical culture and sports
4. Strengthening the respiratory system by means of physical culture and sports
5. Strengthening the musculoskeletal system by means of physical culture and sports
6. Dosing physical activity depending on gender and age. Health groups
7. Monitoring physical activity - types and forms of implementation
8. Self-monitoring of the impact of physical activity on the body. Self-monitoring diary
9. Types of control in sports.
10. Characteristics and features of various forms and types of control.
11. Evaluation of the effectiveness of the use of means and methods of the training process (using a specific example).

Approximate topics of tests/papers for those exempted from practical classes in physical education

1. Physical education and sports as social phenomena of society. Current state of physical education and sports.
2. Physical education as an academic discipline of higher professional education and holistic development of the student's personality. Value orientations and attitudes of students to physical education and sports.
3. Means of physical education and sports in managing the improvement of the functional capabilities of the body in order to ensure mental and physical activity.

4. Healthy lifestyle and its components. Basic requirements for organizing a healthy lifestyle.
5. Basics of rational nutrition.
6. The influence of physical education on the body of those involved.
7. The influence of lifestyle on health. Criteria for the effectiveness of a healthy lifestyle.
8. Prevention of sports injuries. Providing first aid in case of injury.
9. Features of using physical education tools to optimize performance, prevent neuro-emotional and psychophysical fatigue of students, and improve the efficiency of academic work
10. Methodological principles of physical education. Tools and methods of physical education.
11. General physical and special training in the system of physical education. Their goals and objectives.
12. Self-monitoring of the effectiveness of independent physical education classes.
13. Mass sports and high-performance sports, their goals and objectives. Sports classification.
14. Student sports. Features of organizing sports training at a university. The system of student sports competitions. Modern popular systems of physical exercises.
15. Characteristics of the impact of the chosen sport on physical development and fitness, mental qualities and personality traits.
16. Determining the goal and objectives of sports training in a university. Possible forms of organizing training at a university.
17. Self-monitoring of the state of the body, its main methods, indicators and self-monitoring diary.
18. Determination of the physical development of the body using methods of standards, anthropometric indices.
19. Determination of the functional state of the body using functional tests, exercise tests.
20. Self-massage, its effect on the human body, methodology.
- 21 Flexibility and methodology for its development.
22. Endurance and methodology for its development.
23. Strength abilities and methodology for their development.
24. Speed abilities and methodology for their development.
25. Coordination abilities and methodology for their development.
26. Definition of the concept of PPF, its goals, objectives, means. The place of PPF in the system of physical education of students. Organization, forms and means of PPF of students at a university.
27. Industrial physical education. Features of the choice of forms, methods and means of physical education and sports during the working and free time of specialists.
28. Organization of physical education and sports classes in the organization
29. Safety regulations and dosing of physical activity in production

30. Schedule of physical exercises during the work process (example)
31. Efficiency and its change under the influence of rationally structured physical activity
32. Optimization of work and rest schedule by means of physical education
33. Applied physical education for teachers
34. Applied physical education for people engaged in mental work
35. Applied physical education for people employed in the field of transport services.
36. Applied physical education for people working in difficult working conditions (medicine, mechanical engineering, extraction of natural resources)
37. Applied physical education for employees of law enforcement agencies, armed forces

Criteria for assessing the abstract

1. Novelty of the text (relevance of the topic, novelty and independence in posing the problem, ability to work with literature);
2. The validity of the choice of source (assessment of the literature used);
3. The degree of disclosure of the essence of the issue (compliance of the plan with the topic of the abstract, completeness and depth of knowledge on the topic, validity of the methods and techniques of working with the material, the ability to generalize, draw conclusions, compare different points of view on one issue);
4. Compliance with the requirements for the design (how correctly the references to the literature used are formatted, the list of references, assessment of literacy and the culture of presentation, compliance with the requirements for the volume of the abstract).
5. The structure of the abstract (the total number of pages is no more than 15): title page (1 page); contents (1 page), introduction (1 page); main part (7-10 pages), conclusion (1 page), list of references.

V. LOGISTICAL SUPPORT

5.1. Provision of the educational process with other library and information resources and means of ensuring the educational process

Students are provided with access (remote access) to modern professional databases and information reference systems. The full-text work program of the academic discipline (module) is posted on the Digital scientific, educational and social Network of the University (hereinafter - CNOSS), in the system of which the "Electronic personal cabinets of the student and scientific and pedagogical worker" function. Access to the materials is possible by entering an individual password. CNOSS is designed to create a personality-oriented information and communication environment that ensures information interaction between all participants in the educational process of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL), including providing them with publicly available and personalized reference, scientific, educational, and social information through services based on applied information systems of O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL).

Throughout the entire period of study, each student is provided with individual unrestricted access to electronic library systems (e-libraries) and to the electronic information and educational environment of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL). In addition to the electronic libraries of the Kutafin University (MSAL), it is provided with individual unrestricted access to all remote electronic library systems, databases and legal reference systems connected at the O.E. University. Kutafina (MSAL) on the basis of licensing agreements, and having adapted versions of websites for students with disabilities.

The electronic library system (e-library) and the electronic information and educational environment provide simultaneous access for 100 percent of students from anywhere with access to the Internet information and telecommunications network, both on the territory of the O.E. Kutafin University (MSAL) and outside it.

As a result of studying the discipline (module) "Elective disciplines (modules) in physical education and sports" the student should:

know:

- the basics of a healthy lifestyle of the student;
- the basics of general physical and special training in the system of physical education;
- the basics of professional and applied physical training
- the influence of health-improving systems of physical education on health promotion, prevention of occupational diseases and bad habits;
- methods of control and self-control during physical exercise;
- rules and methods of planning individual classes of various target orientations;

be able to:

- use physical education tools to optimize performance;
- perform physical education complexes, athletic gymnastics exercise complexes;
- assess the level of physical development and physical fitness of a person;
- overcome artificial and natural obstacles using various methods of movement;
- implement creative cooperation in collective forms of physical education classes;

possess:

- conceptual apparatus for increasing efficiency, maintaining and strengthening human health;
- motor skills and abilities in the chosen sport;
- skills of preparation for professional activity;
- skills of organizing and conducting individual, collective and family recreation, and when participating in mass sports competitions;
- skills of forming a healthy lifestyle in the process of active creative activity.

II. STRUCTURE AND CONTENT OF THE DISCIPLINE

The volume of the discipline (module) "Elective disciplines (modules) in physical education and sports" is 328 hours in the chosen sport. The form of midterm assessment is a credit.

Content of the discipline (module)

I Practical section

The educational material of the section is aimed at increasing the level of functional and motor abilities, forming the necessary qualities and characteristics of the individual, mastering the methods and means of physical education and sports activities, acquiring personal experience in the targeted use of physical education and sports in the chosen sport.

The practical section of the program is implemented in methodological-practical and educational-training classes in study groups.

Methodological-practical classes provide for the development of the basic methods and ways of forming educational, professional and life skills and abilities by means of physical education and sports.

Each methodological-practical lesson is consistent with the corresponding practical topic. When conducting methodological and practical classes, it is recommended to adhere to the following approximate scheme:

- the teacher briefly explains the teaching methods and, if necessary, demonstrates the appropriate techniques, methods of performing physical exercises, motor actions to achieve the necessary results in the chosen sport;
- students practically reproduce thematic tasks under the supervision of the teacher with mutual control;
- students are given individual recommendations for practical self-improvement of thematic actions, techniques, methods. Under the guidance of the teacher, the results of the task are discussed and analyzed.

Educational and training classes are based on the extensive use of methodological skills, on the application of various means of physical education, sports and professionally applied physical training of students.

Their focus is related to ensuring the necessary motor activity, achieving and maintaining an optimal level of physical and functional fitness during the training period; acquiring personal experience in studying and improving motor skills and abilities in the chosen sport; with the development of vital and professionally necessary skills, psychophysical qualities.

The selection of exercises for practical classes should provide for the improvement of previously studied and the teaching of new motor actions (abilities and skills), as well as the development of qualities of endurance, strength, speed of movement, agility and flexibility. Physical exercises from various sports, exercises of professional and applied orientation, health systems of physical exercises are used. The content and specific means of each practical lesson in all departments are determined by the teachers of the study groups, taking into account the schedule of classes of the Department of Physical Education for each educational department.

Control section

Control classes, tests provide operational, current and final differentiated information on the degree of mastering of skills and abilities, on the state and dynamics of physical development, physical and professional-applied preparedness of each student.

The criteria for the effectiveness of educational and training classes are the requirements and indicators for passing control exercises (standards) developed by the Department of Physical Education for students of different study groups, in the chosen sport.

Operational control provides information on the progress of students in completing a specific section, type of academic work.

Current control allows you to assess the degree of mastering a section, topic, type of academic work.

Final control makes it possible to identify the level of formation of motor skills and abilities in the chosen sport, the characteristics of the general physical, sports and technical preparedness of the student, his psychophysical preparedness for professional activity.

2.2. Seminar-type classes

Practical lesson plans for full-time education in selected sports

Practical volleyball lessons Practical volleyball lessons I semester

Practical exercises No. 1-2 Lesson topic: Familiarizing students with the order and scope of studying practical material on volleyball techniques and tactics. Introduction to the basic rules of the game of volleyball. 1. Safety regulations, prevention of injuries and diseases during volleyball practice. 2. Determination of the level of physical development. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 3-5 Lesson topic: Improving physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Study of racks and ways of moving. 3. Learning the technique of arm and leg movement when passing from above with two hands. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 6-8 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Study of racks and ways of moving. 3. Learning the sequence of movements of the arms and legs when performing a transfer from above with two hands. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 9-12 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Study of racks and ways of moving. 3. Training in the sequence of movements of the arms and legs when performing a transfer from above with two hands forward, above oneself and behind the head.

Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 13-16 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Determination of the level of physical development. 2. Determination of the level of technical training. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

The second semester

Practical exercises No. 1-2 Lesson topic: Familiarization of students with the order and scope of studying practical material of the second trimester on volleyball technique and tactics. Familiarization with the basic rules of the game of volleyball. 1. The history of the development of the rules of volleyball. Modern rules and refereeing. 2. Determination of the level of physical development. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 3-6 Lesson topic: Improving physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Learning the technique of attacking with your own throw. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 7-8 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Learning the technique of attacking through the net from the passer's pass. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 9-10 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Developing the strength of the muscles of the legs, trunk and arms. 2. Learning the technique of playing defense when receiving attacking blows. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 11-13 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Training in the technique of single blocking. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 14-15 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of dexterity and flexibility. 2. Training in the technique of performing a deceptive offensive strike. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 16-18 Mastering motor skills in volleyball Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Determination of the level of physical development. 2. Determination of the level of technical training. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

3rd semester

Practical exercises No. 1-2 Lesson topic: Familiarizing students with the order and scope of studying practical material on volleyball techniques and tactics in the third trimester. The study of modern volleyball rules. 1. Safety regulations, prevention of injuries and diseases during volleyball practice. 2. Determination of the level of physical development. 3. Determination of the level of technical preparedness. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 3-6 Lesson topic: Improving physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of motor skills. 2. Fixing the rack technology and methods of movement. 3. Fixing the transmission technique from above with two hands forward and behind the head. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 7-10 Lesson topic: Development of motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of motor skills. 2. Fixing the technique of passing from above with two hands from a place and in a jump. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 11-14 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Developing the strength of the muscles of the legs, trunk and arms. 2. Fixing the technique of performing the technique from below with two hands. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 15-16 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of performing the lower direct feed. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 17-18 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Determination of the level of physical development. 2. Determination of the level of technical training. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

The fourth semester

Practical exercises No. 1-2 Lesson topic: Familiarizing students with the order and scope of studying practical material on volleyball techniques and tactics in the third semester. The study of modern volleyball rules. 1. Safety regulations, prevention of injuries and diseases during volleyball practice. 2. Determination of the level of physical development. 3. Determination of the level of technical preparedness. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 3-4 Lesson topic: Improving physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of motor skills. 2. Fixing the rack technology and methods of movement. 3. Fixing the transmission technique from above with two hands forward and behind the head. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson:

- study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 5-6 Lesson topic: Development of motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of motor skills. 2. Fixing the technique of passing from above with two hands from a place and in a jump. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references. Practical exercises No. 7-8 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Developing the strength of the muscles of the legs, trunk and arms. 2. Fixing the technique of performing the technique from below with two hands. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 9-10 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of performing the lower direct feed. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 11-12 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of performing the lower side feed. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 13-14 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of dexterity and flexibility. 2. Fixing the technique of performing the upper direct feed. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 15-16 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of receiving various types of pitches. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 17 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Determination of the level of physical development. 2. Determination of the level of technical training. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references. –

Practical exercises No. 18 Lesson topic: Familiarization of students with the order and scope of studying practical material of the IV semester on volleyball technique and tactics. Introduction to the basic rules of the game of volleyball. 1. Modern rules and refereeing. 2. Determination of the level of physical development. 3. Determination of the level of technical preparedness. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

V semester

Practical exercises No. 1-2 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Developing the strength of the muscles of the legs, trunk and arms. 2. Fixing the technique of an attacking shot through the net from the passer's pass. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 3-4 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of single blocking. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 5-8 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of group blocking. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 9-12 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of dexterity and flexibility. 2. Fixing the technique of executing an offensive strike from the passer's pass. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 12-14 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of executing attacking strikes in various zones. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 15-16 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of performing attacking strikes with block resistance. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

VI semester

Practical lesson No. 1-4 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Consolidation of the technique of receiving attacking blows. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 5-8 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Fixing the technique of receiving pitches. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 9-12 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Endurance development. 2.

Consolidation of the technique of receiving attacking blows. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 13-15 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Developing the strength of the shoulder girdle muscles. 2. Conducting educational and training volleyball games. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 16-18 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Determination of the level of physical development. 2. Determination of the level of technical training. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

The seventh semester

Practical exercises No. 1-2 Lesson topic: Familiarization of students with the order and scope of studying practical material of the V semester on volleyball technique and tactics. Introduction to the basic rules of the game of volleyball. 1. Modern rules and refereeing. 2. Determination of the level of physical development. 3. Determination of the level of technical preparedness. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 3-6 Lesson topic: Improving physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of attacking with your own throw. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 7-10 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of attacking through the net from the passer's pass. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 11-13 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Developing the strength of the muscles of the legs, trunk and arms. 2. Improving the technique of playing defense when receiving attacking blows. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 14-16 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of single blocking. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical exercises No. 17-18 Lesson topic: Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of group blocking. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

VIII semester

Practical lesson No. 1-2 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of dexterity and flexibility. 2. Improving the technique of performing an attacking strike. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 3-4 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of performing attacking strikes with block resistance. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson 5-6 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of executing attacking strikes in various areas of the court. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 7-8 Mastering motor skills in volleyball. Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of receiving attacking blows. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

Practical lesson No. 9-10 Mastering motor skills in volleyball Improving the level of physical fitness by means of volleyball. 1. Development of reaction speed and speed of movement. 2. Improving the technique of receiving attacking strikes and serves. Tasks for preparing for a practical lesson: - study of textbook material from the list of references.

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF DISCIPLINE DEVELOPMENT

Students of the academic departments of their chosen sport who have completed the working curriculum, take control exercises and standards for their sport. The criterion for the success of mastering the educational material for students is the teacher's expert assessment of attendance at training sessions and the results of appropriate control tests on general physical and athletic fitness. In each semester, students complete mandatory physical fitness control tests. Sample tests on general physical and sports-technical fitness for students of educational departments are presented below.

Practical standards for the discipline (module) "Elective disciplines (modules) in physical culture and sports" (for the main medical groups of full-time education.

2.2. Lecture-type classes

Lectures are one of the most important types of training sessions and form the foundation of the theoretical training of students.

The purpose of the lectures is to give students the basis of theoretical knowledge in the discipline, on the basis of which skills and abilities are subsequently developed, to concentrate their attention on the most complex and key issues, to stimulate their independent active cognitive activity.

Lectures should become an educational logical and communicative guide in the labyrinth of social and legal problems of the modern world.

Topics of lectures for full-time education

Section I. LOGIC AS A SCIENCE. LAWS AND FORMS OF THINKING IN LAW

Lecture 1: Logical Foundations of Scientific Thinking of a Lawyer

Content:

1. Logic as a philosophical science, its place and role in the cognitive and practical activities of a lawyer.
2. Concept as a Form of Logical Thinking: Types, Relations and Operations
3. Laws of logic and their methodological function.

Tasks for preparation:

1. To identify the main characteristics of "words" and "word combinations" from the Discipline "Russian language".
2. Find examples of classification of "words" and "word combinations".
3. Repeat what "homonyms" and "synonyms" mean, Find examples of the use of these words and phrases.
4. To reveal what is the essence of the words "operation" and "attitude"?
5. Repeat what the word "law" means, what laws you studied in the courses "social studies", "history"
6. Get acquainted with the work program of the Discipline "Logic".

Lectures 2. Judgment and their types. Application in the thinking process of a lawyer

Content:

1. General characteristics of judgments: composition and types.
2. Categorical judgments, their classification. Distribution of terms. Logical square.
3. Complex Judgments and the Table of Truth
4. Modal judgments: the concept and types of modalities.

Tasks for preparation:

1. Repeat from the school course "Russian language" what a "sentence" is and what sentences there are.
2. Clarify which sentences express information and which do not. Find examples in the works of Russian classical writers.
3. What does the "principle of double negation" in sentences mean in the Russian language? When it is applied.
4. Clarify how additional information can be expressed in sentences.
5. Repeat from the previous lecture: what is the meaning of concepts in expert activity; what is the essence of concepts; which is necessary for a complete logical characterization of concepts.

Section II. INFERENCE AND LOGICAL AND COMMUNICATIVE FOUNDATIONS OF ARGUMENTATION IN THE LEGAL PROFESSION

Lecture 3: Inference in Legal Cognition and Practice

Content:

1. Inference as a form of thinking: structure, features and types.
2. Deductive reasoning in legal activity:
Conclusions from simple and complex judgments
3. Non-demonstrative conclusions in the practice of a lawyer: specifics, classification and their rules.

Tasks for preparation:

1. Remember how the unity of thinking and language is manifested
2. Repeat from the previous lecture: what is the subject of formal logic; What is the importance of logic in the professional activity of a lawyer.
3. What is the difference between the truth of thought and the formal correctness of reasoning?
4. Repeat what the law of thinking is and their typology
5. What is the scientific and practical significance of logical operations with concepts?
6. Remember what types categorical judgments on quantity and quality are divided into
7. Understand what types of complex judgments there are, and what are the conditions for their truth

Lecture 4: Logical Foundations of Argumentation. Proof and Refutation in the Legal Profession

Content:

1. Argumentation. Concept, structure and methods of proof and refutation
2. Types, methods and rules of proof and refutation.
4. Questions and answers. Dispute and its types. Rules and tricks.
5. Logical hypothesis in legal research

Tasks for preparation:

1. Repeat the composition of deductive, inductive and traductive reasoning.
2. Remember why non-deductive reasoning is probabilistic
3. Find the application of inductive methods of establishing causal dependence in the rules of law
4. Recall from the previous lecture what the essence of logical fallacies is "hasty generalization" and "after that, therefore, because of this"
5. Compare, understand and apply analogy in logic and jurisprudence.
6. Remember what folk signs are legitimate to use in popular induction.

2.3. Seminar-type classes

The organization of seminar-type classes depends on the purpose, content and form of the lesson, it is also necessary to take into account the two-sided nature of the learning process: the joint activity of the teacher and students.

Seminar-type classes logically continue the work begun at the lecture.

The purpose of seminar-type classes in logic is:

- Testing the knowledge of students that they received at lectures and in the process of independent study of educational and methodological literature.
- Explanation and discussion of the most important and complex issues of the topic considered in the practical lesson.
- Formation of students' skills in applying logical theory in legal practice, the ability to solve logical problems.
- Formation of the ability to comprehend and understand legal facts.

Topics of seminar-type classes for students of full-time education

Section I. LOGIC AS A SCIENCE. LAWS AND FORMS OF THINKING IN LAW

Practical Lesson No 1: The Subject and Meaning of Logic. Logic in Legal Activity. Concept as a Form of Thinking.

Types: Problem-based seminar with the solution of specific problems

1. The subject and functions of logic. Thinking and language. The role of thinking in the cognition of legal phenomena.
2. The concept of forms and laws of thinking. Forms of thinking.
3. Concept as a form of thinking. Ways of concept formation.
4. General characteristics of the concept. Concept and word. Contents and volume. Types of concepts.
5. Logical characteristics of legal concepts
6. Types and relations between concepts. Relations between concepts in Euler circles.

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

- Types of concepts. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 1. Control. 2(1,2,3,4), 6(2,6,8,9).
- Relations between concepts. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 1. Control. 7(3,8,11,12), 12(3,4,7,10), 15(5,10,12,15).

Practical Lesson No 2: Logical Operations with Concepts in Law.

Types: Seminar-training, with the solution of specific tasks

1. Limitation and generalization of concepts, their limits.
2. Practical Significance of Logical Operations of Generalization and Limitation of Concepts in the Activities of a Lawyer
3. Definition (definition) of the concept and their classification
4. Rules of determination and errors possible in case of their violation.
5. Division of concepts: essence, tasks, structure and types of division of concepts
6. Rules of division and errors possible in case of their violation.
7. The Importance of Logical Operations in Law

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

- What is the essence and practical significance of logical operations of generalization and limitation of concepts?
- What is the definition of a concept? Indicate the types of definition.
- What are the rules for determining through genus and specific difference? Name the mistakes that arise when they are violated.

- What is the division of a concept? What are the types of division?
- What rules are the division operation subject to, what logical errors arise when they are violated?
- What is the scientific and practical significance of logical operations for a lawyer?

– Solves problems: logical operations with concepts. Exercises: V.I. Kirillov, V.I., Orlov, G.A., Fokina, N.I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 1. Control. 19(1,2,8,14), 20(1,2,12,15), 24(3,4,8,9), 28(2,3,8,12).

Practical Lesson No 3: Judgment and Their Types. Their Application in the Mental Activity of a Lawyer

Types: Seminar-discussion, with the solution of specific problems

1. General characteristics of judgment. Judgment and sentence.
2. Types and composition of simple judgments.
3. Classification of categorical judgments. Singling out and excluding judgments.
4. Distribution of terms in attributive judgments.
5. Relations between judgments (logical square)
6. The structure of a complex judgment. Types of complex judgments and the conditions for their truth.
7. Logical rules for determining the truth of complex judgments

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

– Judgment and Sentence. Types of Simple Judgments. Exercises: Kirillov V.I., Orlov G.A., Fokina N.I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V.I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 2. Control. 1(1,4,5,11),2(1,2,4,11).

– Categorical judgments, their composition and classification. Exercises: Kirillov V.I., Orlov G.A., Fokina N.I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V.I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 2. Control. 3(2,5,7,11), 4(3,8,13,15), 5(1,5,8,11), 7(1,3,6,7)

– Distribution of terms in simple categorical judgments. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 2. Control. 6(1,6,10,11), 8(1,2,5,8,).

– The Structure of a Complex Judgment. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 2. Control. 9, 10. Conjunctive Divisive and Conditional Judgments. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 2. Control. 9(2,7,12,14), 10, 11(1,3,8,10), 12(2,6,7,10).

– Table of Truth of Complex Judgments. Combined Judgments. Exercises: Kirillov V.I., Orlov G.A., Fokina N.I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V.I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 2. Pr.13,14,15.

Practical Lesson No 4: Modal Logic and Laws of Logic. Their use in the legal profession

Types: Seminar-discussion, with the solution of specific problems

1. Modality of judgments and rules of law. Types of modality.
2. The concept of logical law. General characteristics.
3. Basic and non-basic logical laws.
4. The law of identity as an expression of the definiteness of thought.
5. The Law of Contradiction. The Concept of Dialectical and Formal-Logical Contradiction
6. The law of the excluded middle and the specifics of its application in the legal profession
7. The law of sufficient reason and its role in legal practice.
8. The relationship between the laws of thought and their role in the professional activity of a lawyer.

Tasks for preparation:

– Theoretical preparation for participation in the discussion

Answer the questions:

What is the law of thinking

What is the difference between the basic (general) laws of thinking and the non-basic (particular) ones; formulate the basic laws of thinking, characterize their role in cognition and in expert activity;

what fundamental properties of thinking express logical laws;

Name the main mistakes that arise when the laws of thought are violated, and characterize the possible consequences of such a violation.

Complete practical tasks:

– Modality of judgments. Exercises: Kirillov V.I., Orlov G.A.

Fokina N.I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / Ed. by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. – Ch.2. Ref.16 -19.

– Basic Laws and Principles of Logic. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 7. Upr. 7(4,5, 6, 7).

Section II. CONCLUSIONS AND LOGICAL AND COMMUNICATIVE FOUNDATIONS OF ARGUMENTATION IN THE LEGAL PROFESSION

Practical Lesson No 1: Deductive Reasoning: Conclusions from Simple Judgments. Their Use in Jurisprudence

Types: Seminar-discussion, with the solution of specific problems; problem seminar with the solution of specific problems.

1. General characteristics of inference as a form of thinking. Reasoning and conclusions.
2. The structure of inference and varieties of inferences.
3. Specificity of deductive reasoning and their role in the activities of a lawyer.
4. Direct inferences (transformation, inversion, opposition to the predicate).
5. A simple categorical syllogism: terms, rules, figures and modes.

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

Direct conclusions. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 3. Upr. 1(11,13,14,15), 2(9,11,13,15), 3(11,12,13,14), 5(6,8,12,14), 6(3,4,7,10), 8(2,3,9,12).

Logical square. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 3. Upr. 10 (1,2,14,45), 11(1,4,11,14).

A simple categorical syllogism. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch.3. 13(1,3,8,10), 14(12,13,14,15), 15(9,11,14,15), 17(11,13,14,15).

Practical Lesson No 2: Deductive Inferences: Conclusions from Complex Judgments. Their Role in the Activities of a Lawyer

Types: Seminar-discussion, with the solution of specific problems; problem seminar with the solution of specific problems.

1. Conclusions from complex judgments. Specificity of inferences based on the properties of logical connections.
2. Purely conditional inference: structure and rules of construction
3. Conditional-categorical reasoning. Modes and Rules.
4. Divisive-categorical inference and its modes.
5. Conditional-disjunctive inference: structure and types of dilemma.
6. Concepts of enthymeme, polysyllogism, and compound abbreviated syllogisms

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

A purely conditional conclusion. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 4. Upr. 1(1,2,5,8).

Conditionally categorical conclusion. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 4. Upr. 2(1,3,5,7); 3(2,3,8,13); 5(2,3,4,5).

Divisive-categorical inference. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 4. 6(1,3,7,12); 7(2,6,10,12); 8(1,3,4,8).

Conditional-disjunctive inference. Exercises: Kirillov V.I., Orlov G.A., Fokina N.I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V.I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Upr. 9(1,2,3,6); 10(1,2,5,6).

Enthymeme. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: Textbook / Ed. by Prof. V. I.

Kirillov. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 4. Upr. 11(2,4,10,12); 12.

Practical Lesson No 3: Non-deductive (plausible) reasoning and its role in the legal sphere

Type: Seminar-training, with the solution of specific tasks

1. The concept and types of inductive reasoning.
2. Complete and incomplete (popular, statistical, scientific) induction.
3. Methods of establishing the causal relationship of phenomena and their application in the activities of a lawyer
4. Inferences by analogy: the concept and types of analogy, conditions that increase the degree of probability of conclusions by analogy.
5. Specificity and role of analogy in legal activity

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

– What is induction? What is the difference between incomplete induction and complete induction?

– What are the conditions for increasing the probability of incomplete induction conclusions?

– Describe the main methods of establishing a causal relationship.

– Give a definition and give a scheme of inferences by analogy.

– What are the types of analogy in terms of object and degree of validity?

Complete and incomplete induction. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 5. Control. 1(1,2,11,15); 2(1,3,5,10); 3.

Methods of Scientific Induction. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 5. Control. 5(1,2,4,11).

Inference by analogy. Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook / edited by Prof. V. I. Kirillov. – Moscow: Prospekt, 2024. – Ch. 5. Control. 4.

Practical Lesson No 4: Logical Foundations of Argumentation. Proof and Refutation in Legal Activity

Type: Case seminar, with solving specific problems

1. Proof (substantiation) and refutation (criticism) as methods of logical argumentation

2. Concept, structure and methods of proof. Rules and errors in justification.

3. The concept of refutation (criticism) and its structure.

4. Types of refutation (criticism).

5. Rules and errors in proof (justification) and refutation (criticism).

6. Problems of Proof in the Modern Legal Process

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

Structure and forms of justification. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 6. Control. 1(1,4,5,9); 2(1,10,12,14); 3(1,6,9,11); 4(2,6,7,15).

Types of justification. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 6. Control. 7(1,2,6,10); 9(1,6,8,13).

Types of refutation. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 6. Control. 11(1,2,5,6); 12(1,2,3,5).

Rules and errors in justification. Exercises: Kirillov V. I., Orlov G. A., Fokina N. I. Exercises in Logic: A Textbook. Moscow, Prospekt Publ., 2024. –Hl. 6. Control. 14(2,4,5,10); 15(1,2,8,10); 16.

Tasks for preparation:

Prepare answers to questions and solve problems:

– What is the difference between a problem and a task?

- What problems can have a final solution?
- What principles underlie the construction of a hypothesis?
- Is a theory refuted in a logical sense if the falsity of some of its propositions is revealed?
- Why is the theoretical confirmation of a hypothesis its proof?

2.4. Independent work

Types of independent work:

- 1) study of the recommended basic and additional literature to the topic of the lecture and practical lesson;
- 2) preparation of reports, essays, presentations with their subsequent discussion in practical classes;
- 3) preparation for participation in discussions, round tables, colloquiums provided for by the program, independent study of the relevant literature on the topic;
- 4) performing exercises and tests for self-control in preparation for a practical lesson;
- 5) preparation for control testing.

Model (features) of independent work of part-time students

In the study of logic, the main requirements are consistency and systematicity. Never start a new section without mastering the material of the previous one. Otherwise, instead of just "misunderstanding", you will have a "misunderstanding squared". In independent work, your main assistants should be lecture notes, a textbook and a collection of tasks and exercises. To study the theoretical material, first recall the lecture in your memory, then, based on the main milestones set by the teacher, study the material of the corresponding section of the textbook and, finally, consolidate the knowledge gained by solving problems and performing exercises. Do not use the Internet instead of a textbook! Those who are not competent enough will not be able to correctly navigate the world of true and false or simply false information that the World Wide Web is filled with. The Internet can help you in finding new interesting logical problems and puzzles, but nothing more.

Tips for independent work on individual sections and topics of the course.

Section I. LOGIC AS A SCIENCE. LAWS AND FORMS OF THINKING IN LAW

Tasks to prepare for a practical lesson on the topic "Concept".

Students should demonstrate several situations that require the expression of the same concept in different words. For example, how can the concept of "suspect" be expressed in the words prosecutor, lawyer, judge.

- To demonstrate with specific examples in which cases it is possible to resort to the comparison of incomparable concepts.
- To show the importance for a lawyer of the ability to operate with concepts of equal volume and to correctly use specific and generic concepts.

Tasks to prepare for a practical lesson on the topic "Logical operations with concepts".

- Find in textbooks, codices and other educational materials the operations of generalization, limitation, definition, division of concepts, and, perhaps, detect errors in these operations.

Tasks on the topic "Judgment".

- To show the complex connection between a judgment and a sentence on the basis of creating a "mini-trial" environment, when the same judgment in linguistic form is expressed by different sides of the judicial competition.

- Work with the texts of textbooks, codes, court speeches, etc., in which they should highlight and symbolically write down complex and combined complex judgments.

Tasks on the topic "Modality of judgments".

- Composing a short essay indicating the use of different types of modality.

- To evaluate the performance of colleagues in the group using operators: proved, refuted, probably, possible, impossible, necessary, accidental, etc.

- Find in the Constitution of the Russian Federation, codes, court speeches, public speeches legally binding, law-prohibiting and law-representing normative statements and legal norms.

Section II. CONCLUSIONS AND THEIR APPLICATION IN LEGAL PRACTICE

Tasks on the topic "Deductive reasoning".

- Simulate situations in which reasoning in the form of direct conclusions is necessary.

- Come up with "trap questions" for your colleagues in the group.

- To show examples of the role and significance of each of the three figures of the categorical syllogism, to find out the features of their application in legal theory and legal practice.

- Find the error of "quadrupling the term" in the literature.

- To demonstrate what errors in the reasoning and actions of the investigator, prosecutor, etc., an uncritical attitude to conclusions built in the form of a purely conditional conclusion can lead.

- To find out why the negative-affirmative mode of disjunctive-categorical inference is more productive than the affirmative-negative mode, to demonstrate its application in judicial and investigative practice.

- To find the use of abbreviated syllogisms in the literature and to show that these conclusions are typical for human mental and speech activity.

Tasks on the topic "Non-deductive reasoning".

- Find examples of "hasty generalization" in popular induction in the literature.

- To demonstrate by their own examples the use of methods of scientific induction in practical legal activity.
- Give examples of analogy in the legal process, legal assessment, in the process of investigation, in forensic examination.

Section III. LOGICAL AND COMMUNICATIVE FOUNDATIONS OF ARGUMENTATION IN THE LEGAL PROFESSION

Tasks on the topic "Logical foundations of argumentation".

- To analyze the judicial speeches of famous Russian lawyers: P.A. Alexandrov, S.A. Andreevsky, K.K. Arseniev, A.F. Koni, N.P. Karabachevsky, V.I. Zhukovsky, V.D. Spasovich, A.I. Urusov and others and to find in them various forms of justification and evidence.
- To demonstrate the ability to find various forms of refutation and criticism in the texts of famous Russian lawyers.
- To analyze the judicial speeches of F.N. Plevako and find sophisms in them.

III. ASSESSMENT OF THE QUALITY OF MASTERING THE DISCIPLINE

To carry out control and evaluation activities, it is recommended to use tools that provide for a multi-level nature of training and are used in an integrated manner.

Control tasks involve testing various aspects of knowledge, the depth of understanding of the educational material by students, their ability to creatively apply the acquired logical knowledge to the analysis of the legal practice of Russian society

Forms of control of logical competencies in students are:

Verification of theoretical preparedness carried out by questioning. Depending on the preparedness of the group, the survey can be carried out: speeches of students on a voluntary basis can be combined with the call of the teacher, the call of trained students can be combined with the challenge of less prepared ones.

Checking practical preparedness.

Control over the performance of written homework by students, by general or random check.

Calling students for a weekly consultation to work off debts, in case of failure to complete written homework, poor answers in a practical lesson (ignorance of theoretical material, inability to solve logical problems) or the absence of a student in seminar-type classes.

Testing.

Midterm control in certain sections of the course.

3.1. Model tests for current control, as well as for monitoring the independent work of students in certain sections of the discipline

1. In the reasoning "Student Filippov began to study worse after he began to attend a disco. This means that visiting a disco is the reason for the decline in the academic performance of the student Filippov" the law was used

a) Identities

- b) Non-contradictions
- c) of the excluded third
- d) sufficient reason

2. The statement "A socially dangerous act not provided for by criminal law cannot be considered a crime" is

- a) Concept
- b) Judgement
- c) inference

3. Choose the correct answer (more than one).

The concept of "MSAL student" is:

- (a) single or (b) general
- (c) concrete or (d) abstract
- (e) positive or (f) negative
- (g) irrelevant, or (h) relative;

4. Choose the correct answer.

The concepts of "higher education institution, university" are in relation to

- a) of equal volume
- b) Intersection
- c) Subordination
- d) subordination
- e) antipodes
- f) Contradictions

5. In the text "Logic is the science of the forms in which human thinking takes place, and of the laws to which it obeys" the operation

- A) Definition
- B) division
- C) generalization
- D) restriction

6. In the definition of the concept "Feudalism is a social system based on exploitation" the rules of

- a) Proportionality
- b) no circle
- c) Clarity
- d) non-negativity

7. Choose the correct answer (more than one):

In the division of the concept "Crimes are divided into intentional, reckless and economic" the rules are not observed

- A) proportionality
- B) one base
- C) exclusion of division members

D) continuity of division

8. The statement "Deprivation of liberty with a suspended sentence is of an educational nature" is a simple judgment:

- a) Existence
- b) with attitude
- c) attributive

9. A simple judgment "According to statistics, May of this year is warmer than May of the previous five years" can be written by the formula

- a) $S - P$
- b) $x R y$
- c) $\exists x P(x)$

10. The judgment "A person guilty of committing a crime is subject to criminal liability" can be written down

- a) all S is P
- b) no S is P
- c) some S are P
- d) some S are not P

11. The attributive judgment "Most of the investigative actions have one of their tasks to identify traces of a crime" is

- a) general affirmative
- b) general negative
- c) partial affirmative
- d) partial negative

12. The attributive judgment "No one should suffer for the truth" has a symbolic designation

- a) And
- b) E
- c) I
- d) About

13. In the attributive judgment "Some convicts are recidivists" the subject and the predicate

- a) Both are distributed
- b) subject distributed, predicate not distributed
- c) Both are not distributed
- d) Subject Not Distributed, Predicate Distributed

14. The complex judgment "An action can be either thoughtful, or impulsive, or produced in a state of affect" includes simple judgments

- a) two
- b) three
- c) four

d) five

15. The complex judgment "An action can be either thoughtful, or impulsive, or produced in a state of affect" is

- a) connective (conjunctiva)
- b) exclusive-separating (strict disjunction)
- c) connective – separating (non-strict disjunction)
- d) conditional (implicate)
- e) equivalent (double implication)

16. Choose the correct answer (more than one).

Question: "For what term is the State Duma of the Russian Federation elected?" Is

- a) correct or b) incorrect
- (c) simple or (d) complex
- (e) clarifying or (f) supplementing

17. Answer "The State Duma of the Russian Federation is elected for a term of four years" to the question: "For what term is the State Duma of the Russian Federation elected?" is (more than one)

- (a) substantive or (b) non-substantive
- (c) true or (d) false
- (e) direct or (f) indirect
- (g) concise, or (h) extensive;
- (i) complete or (j) incomplete

18. In the immediate conclusion : "All students of law schools study logic. Consequently, some students of logic are students of law schools" the conclusion is made by

- a) Turning
- b) Treatment
- c) Opposition to the predicate
- d) By logical square

19. From the judgment "Some transactions are not unilateral" it is possible to conclude by transformation

- a) Some transactions are unilateral
- b) Some transactions are not non-unilateral
- c) Some transactions are non-unilateral
- d) No transaction is unilateral

20. Direct inference "Some states are unitary. Consequently, some states are not unitary" can be written in a diagram

- a) Some S are not P \rightarrow Some are not P are S
- b) Some S are P \rightarrow Some P are S
- c) Some S are P \rightarrow Some S are not P

d) Some S are not P \rightarrow Some S are P

21. From the judgment "Some doctors are surgeons" one can conclude

- a) Some surgeons are doctors
- b) All surgeons are doctors
- c) Some surgeons are not doctors
- d) No surgeon is a doctor

22. A simple categorical syllogism: "The accused has the right to defense. N. is the accused. Therefore, he has the right to defense" has a figure

- a) First
- b) Second
- c) Third
- d) Fourth

23. From the premises of a simple categorical syllogism : "All doctors have a higher education. Some doctors work in judicial and investigative bodies" can be concluded

- a) Some with higher education work in judicial and investigative bodies
- b) Some of those working in the judicial and investigative bodies have higher education
- c) Some of those working in the judicial and investigative bodies do not have higher education
- d) Some with higher education do not work in the judicial and investigative bodies

24. Divisive-categorical syllogism : "A crime can be intentional or careless. The crime committed by N. is intentional, therefore, it is not reckless" can be symbolically written

$$\frac{p \vee q, r}{\neg q} \\ \frac{\leq p \vee q \geq, \neg p}{Q}$$

$$\frac{\leq p \vee q \geq, \neg q}{R}$$

$$\frac{p \vee q, q}{\neg R}$$

25. From the premises of the disjunctive-categorical syllogism : "A claim for the protection of an infringed right shall be accepted for consideration by a court, arbitration, or arbitral tribunal. M.'s claim for the protection of the violated right was accepted for consideration by the court" can be concluded

- a) M.'s claim for the protection of the violated right was not accepted for consideration by arbitration
- b) M.'s claim for the protection of the violated right was not accepted for consideration by arbitration or arbitral tribunal
- c) M.'s claim for the protection of the violated right was not accepted for consideration by the court
- d) M.'s claim for the protection of the violated right was not accepted for consideration by the court or the arbitration court

26. Determine the degree of probability of inductive reasoning: "In the city of D., measurements of the radiation background were made. In the first, third, fifth and seventh districts, the radiation level was normal. In total, there are 12 districts in the city. It can be assumed that the level of radiation corresponds to the norm in all areas of the city"

- a) unlikely
- b) equally likely
- c) More likely than not
- d) very likely

27. A generalization in the judgment "There is not a single mistake in the test work on logic" can be obtained by induction

- a) Full
- b) incomplete popular
- c) incomplete by the method of selection
- d) incomplete by the method of exclusion (elimination)

28. In the discourse "The more air enters the furnace, the hotter the fire burns in it. If the access of air to the furnace is completely stopped, then the fire will be extinguished. This means that air is a necessary condition for combustion" the method of induction (more than one answer) was used

- a) Similarities
- b) distinctions
- c) related changes
- d) Residues

29. From the premises of induction "Sharp angles have a vertex, right angles have a vertex, obtuse angles have a vertex" we can conclude

- a) Some corners do not have a vertex
- b) All corners have vertices
- c) Some corners have vertices
- d) No corner has a vertex

30. The conclusion of E. Ryazanov's film comedy "Carnival Night", "Beware of the Car", "Garage" and others are very successful. Obviously, this attitude of the viewer can be attributed to all the films of this talented film director, including those that have not yet been released" is an analogy (more than one answer)

- (a) properties, or (b) relationships
- (c) strict or (d) non-strict

3.2. Topics of essays, essays and creative works for current control, as well as for monitoring the independent work of students in certain sections of the discipline

1. The Origins of Logic: The "Greek Miracle".
2. Legal practice of the 5th-6th centuries BC as a source of logic.
3. Antinomies, sophisms, paradoxes.
4. "Binary logic" of mythological thinking.
5. Did Homer's characters reason?
6. Logic and Argumentation in Ancient India and China.
7. Logic and Argumentation of the Middle Ages (Features of Scholastic Logic).
8. Ideas of logic in the Arabic-speaking world of the Middle Ages.
9. Logic and Argumentation of the Modern Age.
10. The ideas of G. Leibniz and their importance for the further development of logic.
11. Mathematization of formal logic in the 19th and 20th centuries.
12. Semiotics: Emergence and Development.
13. The Sapir-Whorf hypothesis of "linguistic relativity".
14. Requirements for scientific classification and its most successful examples
16. The role of definitions in legal sciences.
17. Features of legal definitions.
18. Modal logics and semantics of "possible worlds".
19. The Problem of Translating Natural Language Utterances into the Language of Logic.
20. The problem of "uncertainty of translation" in the language of law.
21. Formal and informal in knowledge (the importance of Gödel's theorems for science and culture).
22. The methodological significance of the principle "anything follows from lies".
23. Is there no third option? (The problem of the law of the excluded middle in jurisprudence).
24. Non-classical logics and their philosophical foundations.
25. "Paradoxical Worlds" by Lewis Carroll.
26. The Problem of Induction and Inductive Reasoning in Legal Sciences.
27. Analogy and law.
28. Artistic tropes as a means of expressing meaning in judicial speech.
29. The role of examples and illustrations in judicial speech.
30. The Art of Speech in Court (from Antiquity to the Present Day).

31. Argumentation and Propaganda: Methods of Logical and Rhetorical Manipulation.

32. Public dispute, its specifics and tasks.

33. Tricks in the dispute.

34. Arguments and their use in law and politics.

35. The development of logic and the change of historical styles of thinking and patterns of learning.

3.3. Control questions for current control and intermediate certification based on the results of mastering the discipline

1. The subject of logic as a science.

2. Thinking as an object and tool of cognition. Logic and legal thinking.

3. The concept of logical form. Truth and correctness of thought.

4. Language as a sign system. Requirements for the language of law.

5. Semantic categories of linguistic expressions. The language of logic.
